QUINCY'S UNCLE SAM and his billboard are drawing angry comments, even a death threat, from Arlington, Mass., and Troy, N.Y.

Rounseville Stands Ground On Birth, Home Claim Quincy's Uncle Sam Irks Arlington, Troy, N.Y.

By TOM HENSHAW
Uncle Sam was asleep when the call came.

"If you don't take down that sign I'm going to come down and shoot you," said the menacing voice at the other end.

The sign in question is a billboard at the corner of Newport Avenue and Beale Street in Wollaston and it proclaims that Quincy is the "Birthplace and Home of Uncle Sam."

After all these years, the fact that the man who is by court order known as the official symbol of America lives and works in Quincy still rankles in Arlington, Mass., and Troy, N.Y.

Those are the places that lay claim to Samuel Wilson, who was known unofficially as Uncle Sam until 1991 when Leroy Lincoln (Sandy) Rounseville became officially Uncle Sam Rounseville.

"That's why I put up the sign," said the former Sandy Rounseville the other day. "I got tired of hearing people from other places say Uncle Sam was born there."

Unfortunately for peace and quiet around the Rounseville home, Sam included his telephone number on the billboard.

"I get calls at 2:30, 3:30 in the morning pointing out that Uncle Sam was not born in Quincy," he said, "but only that one death threat. It came from a man in Arlington."

The man whom Arlington claims as its Uncle Sam was born Samuel Wilson in 1766. He was 8 years old when legend has it, Paul Revere rode by his house to warn Sam Adams and John Hancock that the Brits were coming.

Later, Sam and his brother, Ebenezer, moved to Troy, N.Y., where they entered the meat-packing business, supplying the American army with food during the War of 1812.

The barrels in which the food was shipped were stamped "U. S.," meaning that the U. S. Government approved of the contents but the soldiers took it to mean the supplier, "Uncle Sam" Wilson.

Which has a better claim to the man — The place where he was born? The place where he made his name? Or the place where he lives who is designated Uncle Sam by a court order?

The judge who permitted the former Sandy Rounseville to change his name specified that he never use his newly acquired notoriety to promote the sale of beer.

He had no intention of doing so, instead using his influence to promote patriotism, voting rights and charitable causes without compensation, although an expense check is sometimes welcomed.

For a while, he was Uncle Sam fulltime, even globe-trotting at his own expense as far afield as Barcelona, Spain, to root the U. S. Olympic team to victory in 1992.

"I was going broke," he said. "I owed more money

Opponents, Proponents Gearing Up For Appeal Showdown

ABCC Hearing On Squantum Beer, Wine License Aug. 8

By CRAIG SALTERS

Members of the "No Need" Committee, a group formed to oppose the April 17 granting of a beer and wine license to Tedeschi Food Shop, 751 East Squantum St., say a strong argument and a show of neighborhood unity are what's needed at the appeal hearing Aug. 8 before the Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission (ABCC).

But Tedeschi Food Shop's Mark Shanahan, who received the license, also intends to attend the Aug. 8 meeting, as does City Clerk Joseph Shea, chairman of the License Board which granted Shanahan's application.

Shanahan declined to comment on the matter, stating his preference to speak before the ABCC Commission itself.

He did add, however, that his shop had gathered several hundred signatures in favor of the granting of a beer and wine license as it reads itself for the hearing.

But "No-Need" Committee member Marie Stamos countered that signatures against the license were also increasing.

"We need numbers," said Stamos, adding that she was buoyed by growing membership and the roughly 250 residents who attended their June 20 rally at the First Church of Squantum. "We need to have a good, strong argument that there is no need (for the license) and show that the people are against it."

Stamos said the committee, which is spearheaded by Squantum resident Carol Flannery, is organizing the writing of letters and the signing of cards and petitions, both available at Stamos & Stamos Realtors in Squantum, which have been sent not only to elected officials but to the ABCC Commission itself and even Tedeschi Food Shops of Rockland and Cirtlow Realty Trust of Hingham, the owners of the property.

The committee is also organizing buses for opponents who wish to attend the Aug. 8 hearing.

So far the committee has enlisted some powerful allies, including Mayor James Sheets, who spoke at the June 20 rally and said he in-

Newton Pushes State For Information On Salem Relocation

Saying he has received no response from the Massachusetts Highway Department (MHD) concerning possible correspondence pertaining to the proposed relocation of the USS Salem, Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton has asked State Secretary William Galvin to intervene on his behalf.

Reached for comment Tuesday, however, Massachusetts Highway Department Spokesman Doug Cope told The Sun that there was no such correspondence.

"There is no official correspondence that we're aware of between the people of the Salem and the department," Cope said.

In a letter dated June 29 and addressed to Galvin, Newton cited Feb. 27 and May 4 letters sent by Newton to MHD Commissioner Matthew Amorello. In those two letters, Newton requested all pertinent documents from MHD under the Freedom of Information Act.

"I am particularly interested in exchanges of correspondence between the Massachusetts Highway Department and the U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum at the USS Salem regarding the suggested move, when it was first suggested, and the mention of any related costs," wrote Newton in his Feb. 27 letter.

Citizens Club will meet on Tuesday, July 17, at 12:30 p.m. at Nickerson Legion Post, 20 Moon Island Rd., Squantum.

There will be no meeting in August.

Forms Available For Quincy ArtsFest 'Call For Entries'

The Quincy Art Association announces that "Call for Entries" forms for the 2001 Quincy ArtsFest are available.

Artists and photographers interested in participating in the fourth annual Quincy ArtsFest can receive a "Call for Entries" form by calling the Quincy Art Association at 617-770-2482 or the Quincy Park Department at 617-376-1254.

This year's show will take place on Saturday, Sept. 15, and Sunday, Sept. 16. The show will be held on the lawn at the Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Complex at One Merrymount Parkway.

The fourth annual Quincy ArtsFest is sponsored by the Best Western-Adams Inn in Quincy, the Quincy Art Association and the City of Quincy Park and Recreation Departments.

"The City of Quincy is proud to sponsor a festival of local talent in our most beautiful park. The Quincy ArtsFest is part of our larger effort to develop our parks into the cultural centers of our community. I hope that artists from Quincy and throughout the South Shore participate in and visit this marvelous talent showcase," said Mayor James Sheets.

The Quincy ArtsFest is comprised of four categorized shows; Juried Art, Juried Photography, Young Artists and Quincy Art Association members.

The Juried Art show will award cash prizes in the categories of oil, acrylic, drawing and pastel, watercolor, printmaking, mixed media and sculpture.

The Juried Photography show will feature categories of color, black and white and digital.

The prizes in each category will range from $100 to $50. The overall "Best in Show" prize recipient will receive $500. There will also be special prize recognition for Best Quincy Park (Painting and Photography) and Best Quincy (Painting and Photography).

"Over the past three years we have seen the quantity and quality of the work on display grow steadily. It is my hope that we can continue to build upon our past successes to create one of the best family-oriented events on the South Shore," Sheets added.

For more information, call the Quincy Park Department at 617-376-1254.

Susan Shea To Head Connolly Ward 4 Campaign

Bryan Connolly, candidate for Ward 4 City Councillor, has named Susan Shea of Furnace Brook Parkway in West Quincy as his campaign manager.

In announcing that Shea will lead his campaign,

Connolly said, "I am proud to have my lifelong friend leading my campaign for Ward 4 Councillor. Susan's commitment to public service and love of our community sets a great example for me and everyone involved in my campaign."

A lifelong Ward 4 resident, Shea is a teacher in the Quincy Public School system. She teaches Grade 6 at Broad Meadows Middle School, where she also coordinates the DARE program for that class.

This fall, Shea will serve as Broad Meadows' faculty supervisor for the Alliance Against Racism and Intolerance program. Shea is also a member of the Ward 4 Democratic Committee.

"Bryan Connolly's honesty, integrity, and dedication to helping people will make him a great representative of Ward 4," Shea said. "Bryan will bring the vision and work ethic that Ward 4 needs to address issues such as traffic, development, finances, and education in our city."

Shea is a graduate of St. Mary's School, Fontbonne Academy, and the University of Massachusetts at Boston. At the University of Massachusetts, she studied history and political science, graduating with honors. She also completed the undergraduate education program at UMass.

Shea is currently working toward her Master of Education degree at Lesley University.

Anyone interested in meeting Connolly or joining the Connolly campaign should call (617) 471-7244.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

IS SOMETHING CHEWING AT YOU?

While many people believe that chewing tobacco offers a safe alternative to cigarettes, the notion has the potential to be dead wrong. The fact is that a person can get the same poisons and cancer-causing agents from chewing tobacco as from smoking. While it may be true that a person does not inhale chewing tobacco, it greatly increases the chances for oral cancer. In addition, chewing tobacco poses a real threat to the health of teeth, gums and the bones that hold teeth in place. Thus, aside from being very addictive, chewing tobacco causes cavities; periodontal disease; a pre-cancerous condition called leukoplakia; and cancer of the mouth, pharynx and throat. Chewing tobacco is anything but safe.

This week's column on chewing tobacco has been brought to you in the interest of better dental health. We're happy to provide dentistry for people of all ages, helping ensure your natural teeth will last you a lifetime. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we achieve excellence in client satisfaction by performing quality dental services. We stress preventive health care for the entire family. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. Your oral health requirements, from restorative to cosmetic considerations, will be met with the latest technology. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

P.S. Many major league baseball players are giving up chewing tobacco in favor of chewing gum or sunflower seeds.

House Budget Includes $65,000 For Traffic Signals Along Quincy Shore Drive

State Rep. Bruce Ayers worked to include in the House version of the state budget an appropriation of $65,000 for the upgrade of traffic signals on Quincy Shore Drive.

After much debate in the House, Ayers was awarded the finances necessary to upgrade many of the aging traffic signals along roads operated by the Metropolitan District Commission. He cited the many concerns voiced to his office from residents and businesses about the traffic signals.

This is a public safety issue that needs to be addressed," Ayers said, "and by securing this funding, it will provide the city with the necessary resources to make the improvements."

Ayers said he worked in collaboration with Mayor James Sheets and Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon on the necessary procedures and requirements needed to place the traffic signals under the control of the city.

Randolph Residents Seek To Keep Ayers

A group of Randolph residents have filed a petition with more than 350 names asking to remain in the First Norfolk District, which is currently represented by Rep. Bruce Ayers of Quincy.

Randolph selectmen, preparing to comply with the 2000 census, have proposed to raise the number of precincts in the town from eight to nine to reflect geographical changes.

The move, however, would alter the common border between Quincy and Randolph and disconnect Randolph's Precinct 6 from West Quincy in the First Norfolk District.

The Secretary of State has yet to approve the change and some Randolph residents filed their petition opposing it with the Secretary of State before the June 22 deadline.

Ayers drew high praise from his Randolph constituents.

"We'd hate to lose him," said Nancy Fahey, who helped gather the signatures. "He's worked hard for us over the past three years on a variety of issues that affect the district."

"He's done a good job," said Marjorie Sarofeen. "He is always active and involved with our community issues. If you want something, you just call him and he's there."

Ayers himself would like to remain a Randolph representative.

"Randolph is a great town to serve," he said. "Our office has very much enjoyed serving the residents of Precinct 6 and the entire town on a variety of state-related issues and we want to continue to serve.

Quincy Kids Win National Acclaim

Five youngsters from the Beechwood on the Bay Kindergarten have won state and national awards for their creative work in a poster contest sponsored by the National Federation of Garden Clubs.

Amanda Brodeur captured first prize in both the state and national competitions while Travis Jones won a state award and an honorable mention on the national level.

Justin Nickerson, Nolan

O'Brien and Khare Lynch received state honors

The children were invited to make ecology posters entitled "Up in the Galaxy - My Garden in Space" and write short narratives in the contest that was promoted locally by the Seaside Gardeners in Squantum.

The winning posters and essays are on display at the Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St., Quincy. For more information about the project, call 617-471-5712.

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On July 4, 1776, more than a year after the first volleys of the American Revolution were fired at Lexington, Mass., the Second Continental Congress officially adopts the Declaration of Independence. Seven years later, with the signing of the Treaty of Paris with Britain, the United States formally became a free and independent nation.

• On July 2, 1839, early in the morning, Africans on the Cuban schooner Amistad rise up against their captors, killing two crewmembers and seizing control of the ship, which had been transporting them to a life of slavery on a sugar plantation at Puerto Principe.

• On July 5, 1946, French designer Louis Reyar parades a model down a Paris runway in a daring two-piece swimsuit. Uncertain of what to name it, Reyar spontaneously dubbed it "bikini," inspired by news-making U.S. nuclear tests off the Bikini Atoll in the Pacific Ocean.

• On July 8, 1950, the day after the U.N. Security Council recommended that all U.N. forces in Korea be placed under the command of the U.S. military, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the hero of the Pacific War, is appointed head of the United Nations Command by President Harry Truman.

• On July 3, 1971, gamma surgery, a revolutionary bloodless method of destroying tumors and cancers, is performed in Sweden. The gamma knife, composed of 179 beams of cobalt radiation, was fired deep into the skull. The rays burned away the diseased area while the patient remained conscious.

• On July 6, 1976, in Annapolis, Md., the United States Naval Academy admits women for the first time in its history with the induction of 81 female midshipmen.

• On July 7, 1981, President Ronald Reagan nominates Sandra Day O'Connor, an Arizona court of appeals judge, to the U.S. Supreme Court. Known as a moderate conservative, O'Connor was to replace retiring justice Stewart Potter, a Dwight D. Eisenhower appointee.

Looks Like Old Fashion Mayor's Race

It's beginning to look like an old fashion mayor's race. Incumbent James Sheets, seeking an historic seventh term, obviously isn't taking his challenger, School Committeeman William Phelan, lightly.

Sheets is setting up a campaign headquarters at 1514 Hancock St. in downtown Quincy where, for a short time, the Fabiano's men's store was located.

And Phelan is looking around the downtown area for a headquarters of his own.

Brings back memories of the Amelio Della Chiesa-James McIntyre mayoral battle of 1959 when they had campaign headquarters across the street from one another on Hancock St. Della Chiesa, the old pro, won this one over the young challenger.

Frank McCauley and Dan Raymond went at it in 1981 from headquarters a little further apart. McCauley took "The Tax Man" office at Hancock and School Sts. and Raymond was located at Hancock and Dimmock Sts. at the other end of downtown.

McCauley, who won that one, had the good sense to cover up "The Tax Man" sign. Another candidate years later neglected to do that and found a photo in the newspapers of his name under "The Tax Man" sign. He didn't win.

Sheets has been a prominent figure on Quincy's political scene for 28 years, starting as Ward 4 councillor in 1973. And he knows you don't take things for granted -- especially a credible challenger.

Phelan is that and is gearing for a serious, all-out run for the mayor's office.

He was encouraged by the large turnout at his campaign kickoff at the Elks Lodge the other night. The crowd attending was estimated at more than 300 or 400.

Sheets has always been able to pull a good crowd, whether for a political event or a fundraiser for a community cause.

But there's little doubt that in Phelan, Sheets has his first major challenger since winning the office in 1989 over three formidable opponents: Peter O'Connell, former Mayor Joseph LaRaia and Steve McGrath.

Since then he has run for re-election unopposed three times and with rather light opposition twice.

Meanwhile, Robert Boussy, who ran for mayor two years ago, still has them guessing around City Hall. He has nomination papers out, but has yet to declare for what office. He has until July 24 to make up his mind and file them.

Sheets piled up 85 percent of the vote -- 14,487 to 2,475 -- against Boussy in the 1999 election.

If Boussy decides to try again and his nomination papers are certified, he would force a preliminary election for mayor.

WARD 3 seems to be turning into the city's political hot-bed.

The candidate field for that open city council seat is now six, the most crowded of all the ward races.

Atty. John Garland, 41, who lives on Harvard St. and has a law practice in Quincy Center, is the latest to take out nomination papers. And has now formally announced.

He joins John Cain, Kevin Coughlin, Alan Cousin, David McGillicuddy and John Rodophele in the race for the seat being vacated by Pat McDermott who decided not to seek re-election to a fourth term.

KEVIN COUGHLIN will kick off his campaign for the Ward 3 seat Tuesday, July 10 at 7 p.m. at Greater Quincy Knights of Columbus, Hollis Ave. and Hancock St., North Quincy. Donation $20 per person, $30 per couple.

SOMETIMES YOU CAN find a surprise in a family tree.

Mayor James Sheets got one the other day at the ribbon cutting ceremonies at the new $30 million, 464-room Marriott Hotel in Crown Colony.

J.W. Marriott, Jr., chairman of the board and CEO of Marriott International, one of the keynote speakers, told those attending that he and Sheets were related.

His mother's maiden name, he said, was Sheets. He said his great-grandfather or great-great-grandfather was a Sheets from the same coal mining area of Pennsylvania that the mayor came from. He was a Mormon pioneer who crossed the plains in 1848, eventually becoming the longest serving bishop (45 years) in the church.

Marriott also noted that he has a son working in the Copley Marriott in Boston named David Sheets Marriott.

"You can claim it (the relationship)," Marriott said to Sheets. "I will claim it."

Sheets found that quite interesting and is sure to take another look at the family tree.

YOU'RE A YOUNG old-timer if you can remember when the Quincy telephone exchanges were Granite, President and Mayflower. That's when you spoke to an operator to make a call. And sometimes had to wait if you were on a two-party line and the other party was using it.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A LATE 1920's postcard view of Wollaston Beach taken from the boardwalk to the Wollaston Yacht Club. The Metropolitan Police station is in the upper right. The white frame structure on the right was a bandstand. The crowd in the water in the foreground appears to have been encouraged off the sand and seawall by the photographer. The seawall shown here was built in 1926 and has since been replaced. Hopefully scenes like this are in our near future.

READERS FORUM

Wants Wider Search For New School Superintendent

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I was a bit surprised by the news that the search for a new Quincy school superintendent, now that Eugene Creedon is retiring after a decade of service as superintendent, will be a three-week local search for his replacement.

Why is the Quincy School Committee so satisfied with such a short search and casting such a small net? While someone from within the system may know it better than outsiders, I think it is good to open up the search wider. Otherwise the impression is clear. The job's going to someone already. Or the job is going to someone who takes orders well. Both bad impressions.

Quincy has a reputation well earned that it is very parochial. Our politics reminds many of cousins marrying cousins. It is the job of School Committee members to seek out and encourage top quality administrators to apply. If we only choose from within and apparently afraid of outsiders, we will always have a school system never reaching its full potential. Locals sometimes only see the obvious. Outsiders can have a clearer view of things unencumbered by local politics or prejudices built into the system.

Yes, there are many qualified applicants from within, but are we so afraid of others we bar them from applying? If we want the best, the search must be both longer and wider in scope.

Our public schools, especially in these times, needs the best man or woman as our new school superintendent. Does he or she need to be born and raised in Quincy? Does the new superintendent need to already be working in this school system? Is the school superintendency that unimportant that an outsider might just screw the works?

To these questions I say No, No and No.

The trouble too often with public school systems is that the children seem the last priority. They should be our No. 1 concern. The School Committee does a disservice to itself and those competent folks within the system by narrowing the pool of candidates to locals only.

I urge the School Committee to rethink its position and welcome all comers to apply and let the chips fall where they may.

MDA Lock-Up A Fun, Successful Fundraiser

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

All of "Jerry's kids" in Braintree and Quincy join me in expressing thanks for a successful MDA Lock-Up at Giomatti's Restaurant in Braintree on June 12.

The event was fun for more than 55 local "jailbirds," who generously volunteered to serve for MDA.

Everyone worked hard, calling friends and business associates to pledge over $27,000 in charitable contributions to benefit the local programs of the Muscular Dystrophy Association. We especially want to thank Giomatti's Restaurant, Nextel Cellular, Norfolk County Sheriff's Department, Quincy Police and Godiva Chocolatier who sponsored the event.

Thanks to the community leaders, teachers, business owners and others who made the MDA Lock-Up an outstanding success. Area families will continue to receive comprehensive medical services that the MDA clinics in the Boston area provide. They'll also benefit from MDA support groups and summer camp. Equally important, this Lock-Up and other MDA events represent real hope by helping MDA annual fund more than 400 scientific teams seeking treatment and cures for neuromuscular diseases, including research at Boston area research institutions.

Grateful For Postal Food Drive

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On behalf of the volunteer staff and customers of The Pantry Shelf, I would like to take this opportunity to thank the postal carriers for the enormous effort put forth during the Postal Food Drive on May 12. A drive of that magnitude puts extra pressure on the letter carriers. It is wonderful to have people with great community spirit.

I fear that with the downturn in the economy pantries in our area will be strained to the limits. For that reason, I am especially thankful to have extra groceries. The postal employees continued support of the pantries in our area is greatly appreciated.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Volpe Signs Bill For Cemetery Expansion

By PAUL HAROLD

Gov. John Volpe signed legislation allowing the city to expand its cemetery operations to a portion of the MDC's Blue Hills in the St. Moritz area of West Quincy.

The 10-year struggle to gain needed expansion space was led by Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa. The 42-acre site was transferred to the city at no cost.

John Mahoney, chairman of the cemetery board, said there was $34,942 on hand to design and develop the new area.

BUSINESS LEADERS SUPPORT $1 MILLION PARKING PLAN

City business leaders packed city hall for a special city council meeting to support a proposed $1 million expansion of the Ross Parking Area.

Eight-two owners of the largest stores in downtown said the expanded parking was needed to prevent the shrinkage of assessed values of downtown properties that were valued at $18 million.

Planning Director James Lee said the expansion would increase parking from 500 to 1,000 cars and would require substantial land takings on the northerly and southerly ends of the parkingway.

Frank Remick, owner of Remick's department store, said downtown businesses wanted improvements for the high taxes they were paying. He said his tax bill in 1939 was $6,226 while his 1962 bill of $42,259 represented 43 percent of the store's total income.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE URGED TO READ TEXTBOOKS

School Committee member Dr. Edward Mann suggested it was time school committee members read textbooks that were being recommended for use by department heads. The book that started the debates was "The World of Communism," for use by high school seniors.

Members Dr. Charles Djerf and Charles Sweeney said such a policy "smacked of censorship" and that the committee would continue to rely on its professional staff for book recommendations. Sweeney asked, "What if the text was solid geometry," noting that such specialty areas were beyond the expertise of the members.

SPNEA Hosts Paper-Costumed Ladies At Josiah Quincy House

The Josiah Quincy House, owned by the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities (SPNEA), is displaying paper costumes created by Edward F. Maeder now through July 30.

Using paper goods readily available at most supermarkets, these paper costumes are creatively fashioned by Mr. Maeder, Curator of Textiles at Historic Deerfield. With paper towel for fabric, crepe paper for decorative trim, doilies for lace, and coffee filters and q-tips for fancy sleeve ruffles, Mr. Maeder creates unique eighteenth century-style fanciful fashion statements.

SPNEA is pleased to showcase these wonderfully imaginative costumes. Visit Quincy House and the costumed ladies for a special tour through July 20. Quincy House, 20 Muirhead St., is open weekends from June 2 through October 14, with tours on the hour from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Quincy residents and SPNEA members are free.

Edward F. Maeder, Chair, Curatorial Department and Curator of Textiles, Historic Deerfield, was founding director of the Bata Shoe Museum in Toronto, Ontario, Canada where he was actively involved in the design and execution of several children's exhibitions related to footwear. During his 15 years as curator of Costume and Textiles at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, he was responsible for 32 exhibitions, many of which he personally designed.

The Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities (SPNEA), a regional organization headquartered in Boston, owns and operates 35 properties from the seventeenth century to the present. SPNEA shares New England's architecture, landscapes, objects, and people's stories through innovative programs for residents, visitors, and scholars.

Summerfest '01 Concert Season To Begin July 11

The Quincy South Shore Cultural Commission and Quincy Tourism announce its 19th consecutive season of free concerts to the residents of Quincy and neighboring communities.

All performances for Summerfest '01 will begin July 11 and continue every Wednesday from 7 to 9 p.m. through Aug. 29.

The big bands will appear in July while several new musical groups were added to the August schedule, including popular jazz singer Kris Pappas, whose venues include Foxwoods Casino, Regattabar and Scullers Jazz Club. "Horns in the House" is led by trombonist George Murphy playing swing, classical rock, R&B and disco.

July 11: Silver Bullet Swing Band — 16-Piece Big Band, featuring the musical styles of the big bands and featured vocalist Kay Gallard.

July 18: The Roy Scott Big Band — 20-Piece Jazz Orchestra, swing favorites from the 30's and 40's as well as contemporary big band hits with featured vocalist Ruth DeBrot.

July 25: The Bruce Peterson Orchestra, with featured vocalist Andrea Bates.

Aug. 1: Reminiscent — Classical hits from the 50's and 60's.

Aug. 8: Kris Pappas — Popular jazz singer whose venues include Foxwoods, Regattabar and Scullers Jazz Club.

Aug. 15: Horns in the House Big Band, with featured vocalist playing swing, R&B, classic rock and disco.

Aug. 29: Continentals — 16-Piece Swing Band, featuring songs of the 40's era.

The concert season attracts over 4,000 concertgoers over the summer season and is staffed by an all-volunteer staff with support services by the city.

All performances will be held at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre, next to Adams Field and the Quincy Park and Recreation Headquarters. Performances that must be held indoors because of the weather will be held at the Gazebo at Best Western Adams Inn, 29 Hancock St., North Quincy.

Majors Doug, Linda Jones Commanders At Quincy Temple Welcome Service, Reception For New Salvation Army Leaders

A public welcome service and reception will be held for Majors Doug and Linda Jones, the new pastors and commanding officers of The Salvation Army Quincy Temple Corps, Sunday, July 8 at 11 a.m.

The service and reception will be held at Quincy Temple, Elm and Baxter streets, Quincy.

The majors come to Quincy after having served as commanding officers of The Salvation Army in New Bedford for the past 11 years. They have a daughter, Shannon, who is a junior in high school, and two sons, Joshua and Matthew, who are students at Houghton Christian College, near Buffalo, N.Y.

The Joneses will live in The Salvation Army's officers' quarters in Braintree. Salvation Army ministers marry other Army ministers and commit their lives to full-time service in the work which was originally known as the Christian Mission when it began over 130 years ago in London, England. Today, the Army is in 107 countries around the world. The Army has been in Quincy since 1895.

Majors Jones will be responsible for the Army's congregation, its brass band, several types of ministry to others, as well as a vast array of social services, including adult day health services, a pre-school, emergency food and utilities assistance and its special effort to help people with Christmas and winter assistance.

NEW COMMANDING OFFICERS of the Salvation Army Quincy Temple Corps are Majors Doug and Linda Jones.

The Joneses follow Majors Ed and Flo Forster into this appointment. The Forsters were appointed to the Salvation Army's international headquarters in London, England.

Robert Noble Installed As Ex-POW State Commander

The American Prisoners of War, Department of Massachusetts held its 11th annual convention recently at the Wyndham Hotel in Westborough.

The National Commander of the organization, William Schmidt from Columbus, OH, installed the department officers.

Robert G. Noble, Quincy, was installed as Department Commander for a second time; Philip McIntyre, Hardwick, as Senior Vice Commander and Adjutant; Henry Stone, Oakham; as First Junior Vice Commander; and Ethel Bearisto, Waltham, as Second Junior Vice Commander.

Guest speaker was Thomas G. Kelley, commissioner of the Department of Veterans Services, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, a recipient of the Congressional Medal of Honor during the Vietnam War.

He was a Surface Warfare Officer with several tours on destroyers and staff duty in Washington, D.C., Japan, and Korea. He retired after 30 years of service in the United States Navy with the rank of captain.

The American Prisoners of War is a patriotic organization formed over 50 years ago by next of kin of MIAs and POWs of World War II to obtain information about the men and women who were under control of enemy forces. They also organized to provide mutual support.

They are the only veterans organization in which spouses and next of kin are full members and who hold offices within the group. The organization's motto is: "We exist to help those who cannot help themselves."

Noble is active in Quincy as a member of the Cavanaugh Post D.A.V., George Bryan VFW Post, and the Morrisette American Legion Post. He is a longtime member of the Christmas Festival Committee, a board member of Quincy Community Access Television Corp., a board member of Quincy Kiwanis, a member of the Democratic City Committee, a delegate to the Democratic Issues Convention in June, and a member of the Marie Curry Walk (For Breast Cancer) Committee.

Noble is also an active member of the Mini-Management Advisory Committee to the Veterans Administration Boston Health Care System. He is also a photographer for The Quincy Sun.

Gloria Noble, wife of Robert, was elected and installed as a delegate to the Department of Massachusetts American Ex-POW at the convention.

Robert and Gloria Noble are recipients of the Jewish War Veterans Post "Citizens of the Year" Award and the Dennis F. Ryan "Community Award" presented by the Democratic City Committee.

Quincy Farmers' Market Opens For 19th Summer Season

The Quincy Farmers' Market has begun its 19th season and will continue throughout the summer every Friday from 11:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Hancock Municipal Parking Lot, Chestnut St., behind Hancock St. in Quincy Center.

Now in season are strawberries, sweet sugar snap peas, and a variety of lettuce, bedding plants, herbs, and flowers. A local baker will also join the growers with her whole-grain breads and rolls.

Farmers are willing to individualize their crops to meet customers' wishes, so shoppers are encouraged to bring wish lists of favorite fruits and vegetables.

"Today, when the global marketplace brings produce to the supermarkets from every corner of the world, it is important that we look for and ask for locally grown produce in season, to better serve our own and our farmers' needs," said Jonathan Healy, state agricultural commissioner.

The Quincy Farmers' Market season ends in October.

Jack Garland Candidate For Ward 3 Council Seat

Jack Garland, a Quincy attorney, announces his candidacy for the open Ward 3 seat on the City Council.

Garland pledged to be an aggressive and accessible neighborhood councilor, and would represent the people of Ward 3 with energy, skill and a singular dedication to enhancing the quality of life in Quincy.

In his announcement, he declared:

"As the Ward 3 city councilor, I would make sure that the city delivered on the basics: streets that are maintained and regularly resurfaced, parks and playgrounds that are kept clean, first-rate fire and police protection, and tax relief.

"As a member of the legislative body governing the city, a councilor must find ways to lessen the tax burden on our homeowners. Seeking alternative sources of funding, making sure that Quincy gets its fair share of state monies and scrutinizing the expenditure of every city tax dollar are all crucial to ensure fiscal responsibility.

"I also want to find ways to relieve the traffic and speeding problems that affect Ward 3. As a longtime resident of Ward 3, I know first-hand how traffic can diminish our quality of life. I will take any and every action to curb speeders and find permanent solutions, including the construction of a northbound expressway off-ramp to reduce traffic on the streets of North Quincy,

Garland said the continued beautification of Ward 3 — including the Gateway Project at Hancock Street and Newport Avenue — would be a priority.

"Ward 3 has the honor to serve as the front door to our community," he said. "Whatever we can do to improve the appearance of this area reflects well on us and on our historic city."

Garland said he will personally meet the voters of Ward 3.

"My campaign will be conducted the only way I know how — meeting people one on one, listening to their concerns and sharing with them my vision of a better Quincy."

Garland is married to the former Michelle Cullen. They have three children: Kara, 13, Joseph, 12, and Tom, 6.

Garland is a member of the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association, the Quincy Historical Society and the Big Brother Association.

Garland practices law in Quincy and is an instructor at Quincy College. A graduate of Boston College and Catholic Memorial High School, he earned his law degree from the New England School of Law (Evening Division).

28 New Practical Nurses Awarded Pins At Quincy College

Quincy College recently awarded 28 students their professional pins in the program of Practical Nursing at its annual professional pinning ceremony.

A one-year certificate program of the college, practical nurses serve a vital role in health care locally and throughout the country, aiding patients and lead nurses to provide excellent care. Like many of Quincy College's Allied Health classes, students in this class find themselves at a great time to graduate.

As the population ages and hospitals clamor over well-qualified practical and registered nurses to fill positions left vacant by a retiring older generation, in addition to the hundreds of new positions posted each week, the Quincy College nursing class has been inundated by recruitment calls from many area hospitals interested in employing these graduates.

"It is a true testament of the strength of our program," said Marybeth Pepin, coordinator of the Practical Nurse programs at Quincy College. "Year after year our Allied Health students are so heavily recruited and placed in well-respected hospitals."

The pinning ceremony is a professional recognition night where faculty, students, their families and friends, and the members of the health care industry gather to celebrate the achievement of Allied Health graduates and welcome them into the profession. The pins that graduates receive are allowed to be worn on their uniforms and signify the college or school in which they received their training.

Worn throughout their career, the pins are a great source of pride for many in the nursing community, especially for the alumni in highly lauded and successful programs like those at Quincy College.

The Class of 2001 Practical Nurse Program are:

Prisca Lum Akene, Christine C. Corbett, M.J. Dominique Deroncelay, Jennifer Ann Duff, Renald Dugue, Rosalind L. Eisan, Maria M. Feliciano, Reynaldo A. Franklin, Rachel A. Fries, Julie Goldman, Hazel Goldstein, Nancy Marie Houghton, Afua M. Hendricks, Jean C. Holmes.

Shoujuan Hu, Pauline Marian Hufault, Caroline Wanjiku Karugu, Joan C. Lynch, Janet MacLeod, Lori Mainini, Sharon M. Man, John L. May, Philippe R. Michel, Laura L. Rasch, John Timmons, John Wambu, Patricia A. Weis, Tena L. Young.

Harold Elected Vice President Registers Of Deeds Assn.

Paul D. Harold of Quincy, Norfolk County Register of Deeds, was elected vice president of the state Registers of Deeds Association at its annual meeting at Ocean Edge in Brewster.

Harold was sworn in as

non. The association is comprised of the Registers of Deeds and First Assistant Registers of Deeds from across Massachusetts. Other officers are Michael Miles, First Assistant Register of Southern Essex County, president; Mary O'Brien, Register of Deeds Berkshire County, secretary; and Diane Powers, Register of Deeds Dukes County, treasurer.

Harold said the association speaks for the 19 registries in issues before the legislature, working closely with the banking and real estate community. Thirteen of the registries are under the control of the Secretary of State's office, with six free standing registries, including Norfolk County, which operate on their own revenues and come the control of the county commissioners.

VALUES: Keep Quincy Strong

Jimmy Liang represents values that make Quincy strong Looking to the future, honoring the past

In 1983 the Liang family left Guangdong Province, China with a dream for a better life. They settled in Quincy to provide their three sons with a fine education and the opportunity to succeed. Jimmy Liang's parents instilled the value of hard work, commitment and the resolve to turn dreams into reality. He is now co-owner of Fuji, the successful Wollaston restaurant. Jimmy Liang wants to contribute to the city that made his American dream come true.

- Families and neighborhoods are the building blocks of strong communities
- Public education provides our families with opportunities for success
- Language and cultural barriers to elder services need to be bridged
- Economic development is essential to providing critical public services, but should leave no family or neighborhood behind
- Affordable housing will strengthen our families and neighborhoods
- Safe and well maintained streets, sidewalks, parks, playgrounds and open spaces promote healthy neighborhoods

Phelan Draws Large Turnout At Campaign Kickoff

An estimated 400 people attended School Committeeman William Phelan's campaign kickoff for mayor at the Quincy Lodge of Elks last week.

Phelan thanked them for their support of his candidacy.

Phelan said all eight of the Phelan siblings were brought up by their parents to always try and help others and that sense of responsibility was why he became an attorney and was why he has chosen to seek a position as a public servant.

Phelan pledged to work hard, speak about the issues and "open the doors of City Hall to the people."

"This was by far the largest turnout of any political reception this season," noted Councillor at-Large and former Mayor Frank McCauley, who attended the function.

Also in attendance were Council President Paul Harold, Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton, Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico, state Rep. Stephen Tobin, state Sen. Michael Morrissey, School Committeewoman Christine Cedrone and Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti.

89 Students Complete QCAP Education Program

Quincy Community Action Program, Inc. (QCAP) recently awarded certificates to 89 students for their participation in QCAP's Adult Basic Education (ABE) Program.

The ceremony was held at Bethany Congregational Church, Spear St.

The students received certificates for their successful completion of coursework in basic literacy, GED preparation, and English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL).

QCAP's ABE program has established partnerships with key community leaders through its Quincy Adult Basic Education Collaborative and Weymouth Adult Basic Education Planning Council to more effectively meet the needs of adult learners in both communities.

The ABE program provides classes in basic literacy, pre-GED, GED preparation, and ESOL in Quincy and Weymouth. The program is funded through a grant from the Massachusetts Department of Education.

Classes are free to all students. For more information about classes and locations, contact Jackie Mann at (617) 471-0796, ext. 113.

Joyce Baker Honored As 'Realtor Of The Year'

Joyce Baker of CityView Real Estate was named the 2001 "Realtor of the Year" by The Plymouth and South Shore Association of Realtors at their first annual Awards Reception held recently at the Cohasset Golf Club.

Also receiving "Realtor of the Year" honors was Donna Wood, CRS, GRI of Macdonald & Wood Real Estate Group, Duxbury. The 2001 Realtor Outstanding Award went to George Raymond, CRB, GRI of Herbert Raymond & Son, Realtors, South Weymouth.

All three were honored for their key role in merging the current association through their formation of the Board Alliance Group.

The newly formed Plymouth and South Shore Association of Realtors was the result of a merger between the former Plymouth County

Board of Realtors and the South Shore Association of Realtors this past January. Honorees were recognized for their work through their previous associations.

Baker currently serves on the PASS Board of Directors and is a MAR state director as well. She serves on the Budget and Finance Committee at both the state and local levels.

Baker is the president of the Quincy Historical Society, a past president and treasurer of DOVE, Inc., a founding director of the Quincy Partnership, and a former member of the WGBH Community Advisory Board.

She is socially and politically active in the city and is also well known for her activities, past and present, in non-profits.

Also named at the reception were the 2001 "Affiliate of the Year" recipients: William Bowers of Mt. Washington Bank, South Boston, and Edward McDonald, Esq., of Lane, Lane, and Kelly, Braintree. Both were honored for their dedication and continued support of the association.

An estimated 200 guests, including family and friends of award winners, attended the inaugural reception.

Rating Shows Conway Largest Independent Broker In New England

A national rating agency has released figures showing Jack Conway & Co. as having the 102nd largest sales volume of real estate brokerage firms in the United States.

Jack Conway & Co. did almost $1 billion in gross sales last year. The 44-year-old company also was rated the 49th largest privately owned independent in the U.S., and the largest of the privately owned independents in New England. The rating was done by Real Trends, a national magazine that tracks the real estate industry.

"We are happy to be recognized as one of the nation's leaders," said Chairman/CEO Jack Conway. "We are in good company with some formidable industry names."

Jack Conway & Co. has resisted numerous opportunities to join a franchise or to sell out to national players during the past several years, Conway said.

"We feel we can best serve our mission by staying 100 percent private, 100 percent independent and 100 percent a family owned business," he said.

Founded in 1957, Norwell-based Jack Conway & Co. has more than 600 agents and 37 offices from Boston to Cape Cod. The company also owns Conway Financial Services and Conway Relocation Co.

Colorado-based REAL Trends, Inc. is a publishing and communications company that provides news, research and information-based services to the residential real estate industry.

First-Time Homebuying Workshop July 7

Neighborhood Housing Services, an MHFA- and HUD-approved First-Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will hold a free First-Time Homebuyer's Workshop in partnership with Fleet Mortgage.

The all-day workshop will be held Saturday, July 7, at the Roche Bros. Supermarket, 100 Falls Blvd., Quincy. It will begin at 9 a.m. and continue until 4 p.m. Lunch will be provided.

Agenda will be comprehensive as well as individualized. The focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process, including how to locate a property within budget, how to make an offer and determining the best mortgage program.

Each participant will have the opportunity to meet individually with mortgage professionals, Realtors and an attorney.

Participants will learn how they can purchase property with little or no money and how to best utilize local down payment and closing costs grants available across the South Shore.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited. For more information contact Debbie Edgerly at Neighborhood Housing Services at 617-770-2227, ext. 31.

MORE THAN A PLACE TO PARK

According to a recent online survey, 74% of all respondents named the garage as the most desirable amenity in a home. To begin with, a garage offers homeowners a secure entrance; however, its desirability involves much more. It is also a repository for bicycles, gardening equipment, tools and workshops, which are so important to our lifestyle choices. Beyond that, in times where there is a dearth of storage space, the garage stands ready to handle any overflow. For prospective homeowners with an eye toward cost-effective expansion, the garage represents the potential for an extra bedroom or den. Sellers should bear these selling points in mind and rid their garages of accumulated possessions when showcasing their homes.

A garage provides desirable storage space for more than just a vehicle. If you're selling your home, be sure to keep the garage clear of household possessions during a viewing. Buying and selling a home can be challenging. ERA CENTRAL REAL ESTATE can make the home selling and buying process stress-free and enjoyable. Our services to sellers include a market analysis, recommendations on how to improve the visual appeal of the home, and listing the home in Multiple. We list residential and commercial properties. Call us at 617-328-1312, or visit us at 128 McGrath Highway.

TIP: According to the survey mentioned above, a large kitchen ranked second (72%) among the amenities that homebuyers found most desirable.

Golf Tournament Raises $16,000 For Affordable Housing

NEIGHBORHOOD HOUSING SERVICES of the South Shore and Father Bill's Place recently hosted the second annual Mulligan Golf Tournament, "A second chance for people in need of a home." This year the tournament raised more than $16,000 to help create affordable housing for working families. Accepting a check for $5,000 are Normand Grenier, left, executive director of Neighborhood Housing Services; and John Yazwinski, director of Father Bill's Place. Next year's tournament is scheduled for Friday, June 14. For more information regarding participation and sponsorship, contact Robert Corley at (617) 770-2227 ext. 21.

PETERSON ASSOCIATES took first place at the recent second annual Mulligan Golf Tournament. Hosted by Neighborhood Housing Services and Father Bill's Place, the tourney raised over $16,000 to help create affordable housing for working families. From the left, John Yazwinski, director Father Bill's Place; John Stevens, Bill Wolowacki, Dick Peterson, Mike Frank, all of the winning team; and Normand Grenier, executive director NHS. The tournament raised more than $16,000 for affordable housing for working families.

Eight Easy Tips For Saving Energy And Money

(NAPS)—Saving energy may be easier than you think.

The following tips from the experts at the Environmental Protection Agency can help you save both energy and money:

- The right light bulbs can be up to 75 percent more energy efficient. If half of all U.S. households replace just five of their existing incandescent light bulbs with Energy Star qualified bulbs, the U.S. would save enough energy to light the nation's Capitol for 95 years.

- Adjust your thermostat dial and turn up the savings. If you set your air conditioner thermostat at 78 degrees F while you're home and 85 degrees while you are away, it can help save you up to 20 percent in cooling costs (depending on your previous thermostat settings.)

- Change the air filters in your home's cooling and heating system.

- If your central air conditioning system is more than seven years old, you may want to consider a replacement. Look for the Energy Star label when you buy to get the most energy-efficient model and save up to 20 percent on cooling costs. Air conditioning represents as much as or more than 40 percent of your power bill.

- Set your hot water temperature at the "normal" setting — no higher than 120 degrees F. This can save up to 11 percent of your water heating costs. Wrapping your water heater with a hot water insulation kit can save on water heating costs.

- To save energy, wash your clothes in cooler water. If you're shopping for a new washer, replace your old one with an Energy Star qualified model, which uses 50 percent less water and 30 to 40 percent less energy per load. To maximize energy efficiency, only run your washer with a full load.

- Adding new weather stripping and caulking around your windows and doors can help reduce your energy bill toward 20 percent. When buying new windows, look for the Energy Star label.

- If your refrigerator is 10 years or older, it may be time for a replacement. A new Energy Star qualified refrigerator uses less than half of the energy of a 10-year-old conventional model. You can test the seal on your refrigerator and freezer door gasket periodically by closing the door on a dollar bill. If the bill pulls out easily, you may need a new gasket.

Quality Players Added

Granite Hope Team D-e-p-t-h Spells C-r-o-w-n

By CHRIS POISSON

Five letters are being thrown around the Quincy Granite training camp this year almost as much as the footballs in the passing drills.

The letters, D-E-P-T-H, spell depth, which in turn the team hopes will spell an Eastern Football League championship. Everyone from the general manager to the coaching staff to the players feel the team has added enough quality players to at least advance past the first round of the playoffs.

And that is something Quincy did not accomplish last season. After a promising 5-2 start in its inaugural season in the EFL, injuries and lack of personnel eventually caught up with Quincy as it dropped three of its final four games, including a 12-7 setback to Middleboro in the opening round of the postseason.

Although a 6-5 overall record and a playoff berth is not a bad season, this semi-professional football organization wants to be better in its second go-around in the EFL. It knew last year that it didn't belong with the league's elite, the Middlebros and the Marlboros.

"They were just so much better than we were last year," said head coach Ken McPhee. "We've made some nice improvements with the team and I think we're going to be a better team."

In their third year as a franchise, the Granite will begin their summer quest for a title Saturday night (7 p.m.) in the 2001 season opener against the Boston Cowboys at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"We want to win the league," McPhee said. "I don't know where we are, but let me put it this way: If we can stay healthy and keep things together, I think we have a shot at least going deep in the playoffs."

OFFENSE

All offenses begin with the offensive line, which happened to be the Granite's weak link last season. Remember poor wide receiver Derrick Epps filling in at quarterback, scrambling in the backfield like he was the chicken being chased by Rocky.

That shouldn't happen this year.

FOOTBALL

First, the quarterback situation is stabilized and, more importantly, Quincy has upgraded the offensive line with bigger and more experienced players. Jim Charis, an 11-year EFL veteran, Alex Malasi, Mike Zawilinski, Ronald Pierre-Louis and Damien Simpson have hooked on with the Granite, joining incumbents Joe Glover, Mark Williams and John Marks.

"The big improvement area this year is the offensive line with the addition of Alex Malasi, Jim Charis and Ronnie Pierre Louis," said Paul Doherty, last year's place kicker and now rookie general manager. "There's another, Damien Simpson, who if he shows up should be a starter. And Mike Zawilinski is the center. So it's a totally revamped line. It has some pro size. They're 6-3, 300-pounders. Good looking linemen."

"I think the major improvement is the offensive line with the depth," McPhee reaffirmed. "We have some people that can step in and play. We have some depth this year, which is something we didn't have on the offensive line last year."

With this "totally revamped" offensive line, Quincy's ground attack should become more explosive. Quincy has a plethora of bodies in the backfield, anchored by starting tailback Jackson Vetic, a league all-star, and starting fullback Mike Elder. Elder returns to Quincy after a year in the service with the Marine Reserves.

Veterans Dan Abraham, Will Felix, Anthony Caputo and Greg Harty also return from last year and will be accompanied by newcomers John Barr (Curry College), Maxwell Vetic, Bob Manning, Alex Sainlaire and Matt Callahan. Farouk Brown, last year's fullback, might return in the middle of the season as he is currently continuing his education at ENC.

"With the offensive line the way it is, I think our running game is really going to improve this year," Doherty said. "We just couldn't run the ball last year. We couldn't move anybody out of the way.

So we put a lot of pressure on our passing game and, of course, we had an excellent quarterback and excellent receivers so we were able to represent a decent passing game. But our running game was just terrible."

The passing game should only improve under what the Granite hope is a balanced offense. Mike Thomas, a former quarterback at the University of North Carolina who joined the team a year ago, has returned and will start Saturday. With a preseason under his belt and more time to get to know his teammates, the talented Thomas could end up being one of the top QBs in the league.

"Mike Thomas is Mike Thomas," McPhee said. "Mike is just a phenomenal athlete. He just takes everyone to another level. He just has that ability to play. I've never coached a kid with that kind of ability."

Liam Higgins, who missed most of the season with injuries last year, is a little banged up and will not be available for the season opener. When he returns he could possibly split time with Thomas. But after last year's quarterback fiasco, the Granite has brought in three more signal callers: Brendan Dever from the Boston Cowboys, Greg St. Plice and Randy Campbell.

"Offensively, Mike and Liam make us better right away," McPhee said. "They have people to throw to down field and when you can stretch the field, you make the defenses play you vertically and then the underneath stuff becomes very easy to do."

The receiving targets are all-star Bill MacDougall (seven TDs in 2000) and newcomer Dwayne Williams. Quincy also has Bo Garcia, Epps, Gene Anderson, Carl Clary, Michael Mathisen, Rik Freeman and Tony Petreyko on the bench. Jeff Powers is the starting tight end.

DEFENSE

Like all great defenses, Quincy has given itself a nickname — the Dark Side. Ever since the Granite came into existence, the defense has been one of the tops in North Quincy High School 2001 graduates Joe Holleran and Jen Conley recently received the U.S. Marine Corps' Distinguished Athlete Awards, honoring student-athletes who have played above their potential and have displayed a "never quit" attitude.

The Marine Corps recognizes

students who serve as role models for younger students and exhibit personal traits of courage, poise, self-confidence and leadership.

A member of the football, basketball and track teams, Holleran recently finished first in the javelin at the South Shore Principals meet and he was also an honorable mention to the Old Colony League All-Star football team. He will be attending Bridgeton Academy in the fall.

An OCL all-star, Conley was a member of the soccer, basketball and softball teams. She will be attending Boston College next year.

Applications Available For NQHS Women's Sports Hall Of Fame

Applications are now available for the North Quincy High School Women's Sports Hall of Fame.

The committee wants to honor distinguished female athletes as well as coaches, teams and friends of women's athletics.

Eligibility is as follows:

- Female athletes will be eligible 10 years after the class of which they were a member graduates from North Quincy High.

- Teams will be eligible 10 years after the team's season has ended.

- Coaches will be eligible two years after service to the athletic program has ended.

For an application, call Brian Buckley, athletic director, at 617-984-8912, or write to the Women's Hall of Fame, c/o The Athletic Department, NQHS, 316 Hancock St., North Quincy, 02171.

Deadline for applications is Sept. 30. The ceremony will be held April 7, 2002.

Lipton Cup Regatta Starts Friday At Squantum Yacht Club

The 15th annual Lipton Cup Regatta will be held tomorrow (Friday) to Sunday at the Squantum Yacht Club, 646 Quincy Shore Drive.

The festivities will begin tomorrow with registration from 7 to 9 p.m.

The Lipton Cup, which will host 1,000 sailors from Canada to Florida, is expected to include the following classes of sailboats in the race: N10, Optimist, Laser, International and Club 420, One Design 14, Hustler, Thunderbird, Rhodes 19, 210's, Vanguard 15's and Indians.

The Lipton Cup trophy, originally given to the Massachusetts Bay Yacht Clubs Association in 1930 by tea magnate Sir Thomas J. Lipton, was first awarded to Herbert Albright, a victorious skipper in the Indian class sailboat.

After more than 55 years of inactivity, the Lipton Cup trophy, nearly three feet tall and a silver Victorian splendor, is once more the object of grand sailboat racing competition in the waters of Massachusetts.

Pre-registration forms are available at the Squantum Yacht Club on Wollaston Beach, 617-328-9759, or by contacting Don McGilvray at 617-328-5730.

Everlasting Engraving Wins City, League Championships

Everlasting Engraving recently captured the city and league titles for the first time in four years with a dramatic 15-10 victory over Wistalko and Associates at Kincaid Field.

Everlasting Engraving rallied for 13 runs in the fifth inning to knock off the four-time defending champions.

Michelle Boyd picked up the win. Rebi Sorensen and

Mary Pratt Softball

Rachel Sorensen also pitched. Boyd stroked three doubles and Stephanie Stone had a pair of singles. Maria McGinness made a nice defensive play in deep center field. Catchers Christine Perry and Danielle Rand, shortstop Kelly Barden and second baseman Marissa Monaco also played well.

For Wistalko and Associates, Mary Bloomer and Ashley MacIsaac pitched well. Kerri McAteer had three singles and Bloomer added one.

Braves Defeat Twins, Orioles

Behind the solid pitching of Matt McGue, Wayne Milford and Ed Sholes, the Braves edged the Twins, 5-4, in recent St. John's Junior Farm league action.

Sarah Doherty stroked a nice RBI single. Milford, James Harrison, Sholes, Joe Spargo, Daniel McLaughlin, Kevin Mullarkey, Rudy Tyon

Spargo, Mary Spargo, Ed Sholes, Derek Matthies and Matt Cardarelli powered the offense in the last game of the season. Adam Mullen, Rick Long, Dan Keely and Sarah Doherty shined in the field.

Nicholas Poli's Game-Winning Hit Leads Century 21 Past DARE

Nicholas Poli stroked a two-out, two-run single in the bottom of the fourth inning that proved to be the game-winning hit in Century 21's 10-7 win over Quincy DARE in recent Triple A playoff action.

Miah Foley had tied the game at 7-7 with a clutch hit. Bobby Harrington picked up his second win of the playoffs, going six innings and striking out 10. He also added three hits at the plate. Joe Benoit had a single and a double. Matt Bresnahan had a hit and shined defensively at third base.

For Quincy DARE, Eric Moreschi hit well and played strong defensively. Benn Johnson-Tatelbaum, Daniel Macauley and Jonathan Cahill played well.

Week-Long Soccer Camp At Fore River Field Aug. 6-10

Quincy Youth Soccer and NOGA Soccer have teamed up to provide a week-long soccer camp this summer at Fore River Field.

The camp will be held Aug. 6-10 and is open to all Quincy Youth Soccer players regardless of ability. Players ages 4-11 are invited to the first session from 9 a.m. to noon and players 12 and over are invited to the second session from 4 to 7 p.m. All children will initially be grouped by age and then by ability.

As part of the camp program, the NOGA Soccer coaches will also run free clinics for parents and coaches on Tuesday, Aug. 7 and Thursday, Aug. 9 from 5 to 6:30 p.m.

NOGA is regarded as one of the premier soccer coaching organizations in the United States, with over 150 coaches who work with 50,000 of America's soccer youth every summer. All staff members hold national coaching licenses from the U.S. and the United Kingdom and many are also qualified teachers.

For more information or to receive a registration form, call director Graham Stafford at 617-479-6122.

Morrisette Looks To End Skid, Avenge Loss To Quincy

The Morrisette American Legion baseball team has struggled so far this season, dropping four games in four days last week.

Sunday night's game at Braintree was postponed due to rain. On Tuesday, Morrisette (3-7) battled rival Quincy and tomorrow (Friday) it hosts Weymouth at 8 p.m.

Last Friday night, Morrisette fell, 6-4, to West Roxbury. Tom Hughes started and went four innings, allowing three earned runs on seven hits. Hughes, a catcher, struck out three and did not walk a batter. John O'Connell allowed four hits and no earned runs in the final three frames.

Brian O'Hanley went 3 for 4 with an RBI, and Neal Gavin (2 for 4), Hughes (1 for 4) and Steve Pizzi added an RBI apiece. Joe Thorley also had a hit.

Morrisette suffered a 6-2 loss to Quincy last Thursday night, managing only five hits. Gavin had two hits and Pizzi knocked in a run on a groundout. Hughes, O'Hanley and Thorley added the other hits.

Thorley yielded three runs on eight hits in 5 2/3 innings, striking out five and walking three. Pat Duff pitched the final 1 1/3 innings, giving up two runs.

Quincy took a 1-0 lead in the first on Mike Feeham's RBI single and extended the margin to 3-0 on John Fidalgo's two-run double in the second inning. Morrisette cut it to 3-1 in the bottom half, but Quincy tallied three runs in the sixth on a wild pitch and Chris Lockhead's two-run single with the bases loaded.

In its first year in the New England Football League it gave up about 10 points per game. Last year it pitched two shutouts and yielded about 15 PPG, which may be misleading because it was short-handed in the losses to Marlboro (36-0) and Middleboro (34-0).

What to expect this year? Well, most of the defensive players have returned and a few newcomers have been sprinkled in.

"We look like we're going to be a juggernaut on defense," McPhee said. "I think we're going to be better than last year. I really do with some of the additions we've come up with."

The Dark Side's strength is the secondary, anchored by all-star safety John Skabekis who led the league in interceptions last year with 11. The hard-hitting Troy Parks, Louis Bullard and John Murphy will also see most of the time, but the Granite has some depth and experience with returnees Tom Walsh, Brian Blackman and Ian Grant.

All-star Al Casey leads the defensive line along with Jason Vega, Tyrone Mungo, David Harris, Christos Arsoniadis and Marc Thibault. Steven Jones, Mike Richard, David D'Olympio and Andelson Merisca are the defensive ends.

Quincy has a pair of all-stars to lead the linebackers. Ryan Craig and Sean Halpin clog up the middle and are strong against the run. Ozia Robinson and Joe Arai are back and Quincy has added Charles Israel, Jose Cruz, Ricky Grasso and Richard Sieboldt.

SPECIAL TEAMS

As soon as Doherty saw newcomer Matt Kulesza boot a 40-yard field goal barefoot, he knew his days were numbered as the old kicker.

"As the previous holder of that job, it became apparent to me right away that my career was over," Doherty said. "I wasn't going to step in anybody's way. I'm glad for him. We should have somebody that age down here kicking the ball. It was fun while it lasted. But I'm taking on a new role and it's taking up all of my energies."

"I still kick," he added. "You never know. There may be an away game or something that this guy can't go to and I'll go."

In the punting department, Thomas, the quarterback, is in another class by himself. His high, accurate kicks will help Quincy win the battle of field position if the offense gets into a rut and it needs to rely on the defense.

"Kulesza is a place kicker of some renown," McPhee said. "He's really good. Our punter is Mike Thomas, who kicks the hell out of the ball. So our special teams should be better than last year."

Overall, Quincy thinks it has improved its team from last season. A number of talented players have been brought in and with the core of last year's team returning, Quincy feels it now has enough firepower to burn deep into the playoffs.

"We're very hopeful," Doherty said. "The numbers are there. Last year we had 20-25 kids show up and practice, and the rest would show up at the games. It showed in the games. We're getting 40-45 this year."

"I just think we're a better football team than we were last year," McPhee added. "We've just improved overall. We have depth all over, which is important in this league. I think we'll be fine."

Golf Tournament To Benefit Research Of Meningitis

The fourth annual Brendan Bubencik Memorial Golf Tournament to benefit the research of meningitis at Children's Hospital in Boston will be held Sunday, August 5 at the Easton Country Club.

In 1997, Brendan Bubencik died from bacterial meningitis, an inflammation of the tissues which cover the brain and spinal cord, at just four months and 25 days old.

Bubencik, who lived in Foxboro, has a large extended family, including his aunt and grandparents, who live in Quincy.

Cost for individual golf is $100, a foursome is $400 and a hole sponsor is $75.

All donations can be made to Brendan Bubencik Research Trust and sent to: The Bubencik's at Eagle Stainless, 10 Discovery Way, Franklin, MA 02038.

The tournament has raised over $40,000 in Brendan's name to date.

RELIGION

Quincy Point Congregational

Sunday is Joyful Noise Sunday at the Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

Rev. Ann Suzedel, pastor, will lead the service with special music by Lutfullah Bulent Guneralp, Tenor soloist and Peter Johnston, gospel pianist.

Guneralp is originally from Istanbul, Turkey, and has studied voice at The Boston Conservatory of Music, and the Longy School of Music in the Opera Performance Program.

Johnston has been actively involved in youth ministries and music ministries on the local church, conference and national settings of the United Church of Christ.

He is the former director of Youth and Worship Arts at the Congregational Church of Topfield, Mass.

The celebration will feature hand-clapping, footstomping old time gospel songs.

A one-room church school is in session during the summer, and worship is followed by punch and light refreshments served in the social hall.

The service begins at 10 a.m.

Bethany Congregational

The Rev. Arthur Bowler, interim minister, will be conducting the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center.

His sermon is entitled, "If Only I Could Touch Him." He will also have a moment with the children before they go to their One Room Church School.

Greeters will be Barbara MacFarlane and Elaine Caliri.

Scripture reader will be William Cosgrove.

Soloist will be Shirley Pyne accompanied by Thomas Boyer, organist.

Childcare is available during the worship hour for infants and toddlers.

Following the worship service, Pam Bonfiglioli will be hosting the Fellowship Hour.

Light refreshments will be available.

United Methodist

The Rev. Carol Stine will conduct the 10 a.m. Holy Communion Worship Service Sunday at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

Florence Hunter will serve as the lector.

Parishioners and visitors will be greeted by Linada Conant and John O'Connor and James Doyle will be the ushers.

The Pastor will give the Young People's message. Following the service, Laurie Campbell, Susan Little and Margaret Buckley will be the hosts at the Fellowship Hour.

Food Fest, Auction To Benefit Father Bill's Place Aug. 1

The 7th annual Food Fest & Auction to benefit Father Bill's Place will be held Wednesday, Aug. 1 from 6 to 10 p.m. at the Summer House, Marina Bay, Quincy.

Scott Wahle, WBZ Channel 4 Morning News anchor, will serve as honorary chairperson. Wahle and his family are residents of the South Shore.

Proceeds from this year's event will help support Father Bill's Place in its mission to assist people who are in need of a home. At Father Bill's Place, the need for emergency beds is at an all-time high, according to shelter director John Yazwinski.

"Most nights the shelter is at overflow capacity, with the largest group being that of young adults ranging in age from their teens to mid-twenties. Your support of this event will assist Father Bill's Place to help these young adults with shelter, substance abuse counseling, mental health services, housing search and housing supportive services. With your help," Yazwinski said, "We can end homelessness one person at a time."

The annual Food Fest & Auction will highlight the culinary creations of restaurants and chefs on the South Shore, and offer rare sports memorabilia and unique gift items for auction.

More than 1,000 people are expected to participate in this event.

Admission is $75. To order tickets or to donate an auction item, call Linda at 617-770-3314.

Houghs Neck Congregational

Rev. Alicia Corea will preach the sermon "We Are Called To A Very Special Faith" at the 9:30 a.m. worship service Sunday at Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave.

The church is air conditioned.

All are welcome.

Vacation Bible School At Wollaston Baptist

Vacation Bible School will be held at The First Baptist Church of Wollaston, 81 Prospect Ave., Quincy, Monday, Aug. 13 through Friday, Aug. 17 from 9 a.m. to noon for children ages 4-12.

The school will feature activities, crafts, snacks, songs, games and fun. For more information, call the church office at (617) 472-0824.

Register before Aug. 8. Cost is $4 per child (family limit of $10), plus a daily offering that will be used for a mission project.

Robert J. Seamans, 72

Founder Of Sports Publishing Co.

A funeral Mass for Robert J. Seamans, 72, a lifelong Quincy resident, founder of a sports publishing company, was celebrated Tuesday at St. Mary's Church.

He died June 30 at Quincy Medical Center after a brief battle with cancer.

Mr. Seamans, an accomplished baseball player in his youth, began running in his early 30s and qualified for each Boston Marathon since 1968. After a career in advertising, he created Seamans Communications with his son, Eric, and began publishing The New England Hockey Journal and The New England Ski Journal.

His last project was starting a bilingual newspaper for Greater Boston's Chinese residents, a collaboration between his company and Betty Yau, host of the Boston Chinese Radio Show. The first issue of the Metro Chinese Times is scheduled to be circulated in August.

Mr. Seamans began his career in advertising and founded Seamans Advertising in Boston. He later served as the director of advertising for South Boston Savings Bank. He started Seamans Communications with his son when that bank was purchased by BankBoston.

He was a graduate of Quincy High School and Fisher Business School.

He served in the Marines during World War II and the Korean War. During his service days, he played for the El Toro Marines in San Di-

John F. Carey, 62

Receiving Dept. Employee

A funeral Mass for John F. Carey, 62, of Weymouth, formerly of Squantum, who worked in the receiving department of area stores, was celebrated June 28 at Star of the Sea Church.

He died June 24 at South Shore Hospital.

Mr. Carey worked in the receiving department at Woolworth's in Braintree, Somerville Lumber in Hanover and Wal-Mart in Abington and Weymouth.

Born in Boston, he lived in Squantum for 15 years before moving to Weymouth four years ago.

He graduated from North Quincy High School in 1957.

He is survived by a son, Michael Carey of Hanson; two daughters, Carole Wassmouth of Pembroke and Michelle "Mac" Carey of Hull; his mother, Alice (Wherty) Tucker of Weymouth; a brother, George Carey of Middleboro; two sisters, Alice Quinn of Squantum and Maureen Demers of Bath, Maine; one grandchild; and his former wife, Connie Mission Carey Rapoza.

Burial was in St. Joseph's Cemetery, West Roxbury.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Some funeral homes regard the people they serve as clients. A few funeral homes regard the people they serve as customers. We believe such identification is a misnomer. Speaking for ourselves, we serve no clients, no customers. The people we serve are classed as friends - and without exception - in ALL our services, we treat them as friends.

Our friends are the most important people we know. They depend on us for service and we depend on them for friendship. Our friends are an important part of our organization. They are never outsiders. Our friends are never a statistic; they are flesh-and-blood human beings with feelings and emotions like our own. Our friends are never a number; they are individuals with individual names. They depend on us to supply their needs in critical hours and do our best to satisfy them. Our friends deserve and receive the most courteous and attentive treatment we can give them - day or night - regardless of time. We appreciate the privilege of friendship and we at the Deware Funeral Home dedicate ourselves and services to deserve that privilege... These are not mere words. Our many friends know this is an established fact...

The activities proposed are categorically excluded under HUD regulations at 24 CFR Part 58 from National Environmental Policy Act requirements. An Environmental Review Record that documents the environmental determinations for these projects are on file at the Department of Planning and Community Development, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA 02169 where the record is available for review and may be examined or copied weekdays 9:00 AM to 4:00 PM.

PUBLIC COMMENTS:

Any individual, group, or agency may submit written comments on the ERR to the Department of Planning and Community Development, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA 02169. All comments received by July 7, 2001 will be considered by the City of Quincy prior to authorizing submission of a request for release of funds.

RELEASE OF FUNDS

The City of Quincy certifies to HUD that Mayor James A. Sheets in his capacity as Mayor consents to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to the environmental review process and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. HUD's approval of the certification satisfies its responsibilities under NEPA and related laws and authorities, and allows the City of Quincy to use Program funds.

OBJECTIONS TO RELEASE OF FUNDS

HUD will accept objections to its release of funds and the City of Quincy's certification for a period of fifteen days following the anticipated submission date or its actual receipt of the request (whichever is later) only if they are on one of the following bases: (a) the certification was not executed by the Certifying Officer of the City of Quincy; (b) the City of Quincy has omitted a step or failed to make a decision or finding required by HUD regulations at 24 CFR Part 58; (c) the grant recipient has committed funds or incurred costs not authorized by 24 CFR Part 58 before approval of a release of funds by HUD State; or (d) another Federal agency acting pursuant to 40 CFR Part 1504 has submitted a written finding that the project is unsatisfactory from the standpoint of environmental quality. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedures (24 CFR Part 58) and shall be addressed to HUD grant administration office at Address of that office. Potential objectors should contact HUD to verify the actual last day of the objection period.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Lyme Disease: Precautions Prevent A Complex Illness

You're achy and tired and you're running a slight fever. What you think is a case of summer flu might be Lyme disease.

Each year approximately 12,500 cases of this tick-borne disease are reported in the U.S., most of them in rural or suburban sections of the northeastern and north central regions of the country.

In Massachusetts, Lyme disease is most commonly found in an area running around the Boston metropolitan area, from the North Shore to Cape Cod and the Islands, and in most western counties of the state. However, the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta identifies nearly all of Massachusetts as a high-risk area.

While Lyme disease is rarely fatal, it can cause severe arthritic and neurological problems if not diagnosed and treated in its early stages.

According to Leonard Marcus, V.M.D., M.D., a member of the Environmental and Occupational Health Committee of the Massachusetts Medical Society, the disease usually manifests itself through one or more of the following symptoms:

- Fatigue.
- Chills and fever.
- Headaches.
- Joint pain.
- A characteristic skin rash.

The rash is frequently the indicator that a person has been infected with the bacterium that causes Lyme disease. It usually appears as a circular patch that erupts at the site of the bite of an infected tick three days to a month after the bite. However, in some cases the rash never occurs and the disease isn't detected until the victim suffers bouts of arthritis that typically affect the knee joints, or neurological disorders that might include numbness, pain, partial paralysis of facial muscles or meningitis.

The bacteria that cause the disease are normally carried by the deer tick. These creatures are much smaller than the dog ticks more commonly found on pets — in their early stages they are about the size of a pinhead.

The disease is usually spread to humans during the spring and summer. Humans pick up the ticks by brushing against leaves and underbrush. The bacteria are passed along through the tick bite. Dr. Marcus points out, however, that being bitten by a deer tick does not necessarily mean that a person will contract Lyme disease. "Because the tick is a slow feeder, it would have to remain attached to your body for more than 24 hours for the bacteria to be transmitted to your blood stream," he notes.

Here are a few simple precautions that Dr. Marcus recommends to limit the risk of a bite from an infected tick:

- Treat your clothing with a solution of permethrin (usually available through camping equipment catalogues).
- Wear light-colored clothing (to spot the dark-colored ticks more easily).
- Tuck your pant legs into your socks or boots and tape the area where pant and sock meet to prevent ticks from crawling under your clothing.

- Wear a hat and long-sleeved shirt.
- Spray insect repellent containing DEET on clothes and exposed skin (except the face and hands). Be sure to use the recommended concentrations of DEET.
- Avoid contact with grass and foliage.
- Closely inspect yourself, children and pets for ticks after being outdoors.

• Remove any ticks completely from skin by pulling them straight out, preferably with tweezers or other devices especially made for that purpose.

Early diagnosis is important for successful treatment, which is usually done through orally administered antibiotics.

People who enjoy outdoor recreation or work during the spring and summer months don't need to curtail their activities because of the threat of Lyme disease, Dr. Marcus believes. However, he does suggest that people "take appropriate measures to prevent exposure, and always seek medical advice if you suffer from any of the symptoms."

Protecting Nature's Pharmacy

In today's technologically advanced world, medicine still relies on a vast number of drugs that are developed from nature. More than half of the leading brand names of drugs prescribed in the U.S. contain at least one major active compound derived from animal or plant sources, according to Dr. Francesca Grifo (Biodiversity and Human Health, 1997).

These compounds are sometimes found in remote and fragile environments. Unfortunately these environments are being increasingly threatened.

Environments At Risk

According to the World Resources Institute, nearly 42 million acres of rain forests are cleared each year for development or lumbering. That's more than six times the size of Massachusetts.

"This [destruction of natural habitats] is not just an issue for the Amazon rain forest," said George P. Santos, M.D., of the Massachusetts Medical Center. "We're talking about right here at home too."

For example, the anti-cancer drug taxol is derived from a fungus that grows on the bark of the Pacific yew, a tree that grows in the forests of the Pacific Northwest. After the Pacific yew was discovered to be a source of taxol, it was nearly entirely destroyed.

Fortunately, an alternate biological source was found in Montana in another species of yew.

Peaceful Coexistence

Dr. Santos says there are ways to harvest these naturally occurring substances without creating economic hardship for those who rely on the forest for their livelihood.

"I'm not advocating that the lumber industry stop logging," he said. "We need to find alternatives, such as growing these substances in safe environments."

"We can't look only to the laboratory for discovery of substances to treat disease. We have to look to nature as well. We have to search for these substances, find them and protect them."

Various species of foxglove, for example, which grow naturally in the wild in some places in Europe, have been found to contain the sources of two important heart medications. These treatment agents cannot be manufactured in laboratories at reasonable cost, according to Dr. Santos. Instead, the plants are cultivated in South Carolina to help ensure a constant and adequate supply of essential medications. Similarly, other plants that have medicinal value can be cultivated to ensure a sufficient and constant supply.

Working Together

Protection seems to be the key to biodiversity, that is, the variety of all living things. Thomas E. Lovejoy of the Smithsonian Institute in Washington predicts "given present trends, the planet is likely to be ravaged biologically with the loss of one-quarter to one-half of all species within a century."

Is there a solution to this threat? Some scientists suggest protection of "hot spots" — areas with an abundance of diverse plant and animal life. Conservation International has identified 25 hot spots, most of them in the tropics. Many are under the most intense pressure for development.

For Dr. Santos, the solution includes raising the public consciousness about the value of protecting the world's natural resources for medical advancement. "We have to work with the environment, health care and scientific communities to educate the public to the threat we're facing," he said.

You can help protect children who may not have the choice to leave a smoky room or be able to tell you they are not feeling well.

They are at risk for the following:

- Children of mothers who smoke are twice as likely to develop asthma.
- Exposure to tobacco smoke worsens symptoms of asthma in 200,000 to 1,000,000 children.
- Secondhand smoke increases the risk for ear infections and reduced lung function.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Someone who doesn't know you're really a loving Lamb might need reassurance after watching you let off steam over a vexing situation. Smooth things out as soon as you can.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Rely on your Taurean ability to help you make sense out of a spate of confusion that seems to be exploding around you. Take it slow and easy as you work things out.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Some information comes your way that could cause you to reconsider a decision you were about to make. A trusted friend offers some much-needed counsel. Accept it.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Feeling unappreciated? Maybe you need to stop trying so hard to please others, and focus on pleasing yourself for once. Start by planning that trip you've been thinking about.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You're doing just fine handling that pesky challenge you were asked to take on. Expect to see it all nicely settled before too long. Meanwhile, spend more time with loved ones.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You can be the best friend anyone could ever hope to have. But how about being your own best friend? Indulge in something really special and tell yourself, "I'm worth it."

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Aspects favor less distraction and more action. In other words, stop looking everywhere for reasons not to move forward with your plans. Instead, just do it.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your sense of adventure prompts you to explore a potentially rewarding, but also possibly risky, situation. Go ahead, but be ready to get out safely if necessary.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A change you've been hoping for is about to happen. But be aware that it might not be quite what you expected. Some adjusting might be needed.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A wave of mixed emotions sweeps over the sensitive Sea Goat as he or she faces up to decisions that might be difficult to make or are eagerly anticipated.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your ability to look at challenges as potential to be explored will help you find exciting opportunities in the recent changes that have come into your life.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You've got a good start on making things work for you despite the obstacles placed in your way. Your continuing efforts will soon produce some welcome results.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a gift for adapting to changing circumstances, which helps you get through difficult situations. Have you considered running for political office?

Local Agencies Receive United Way Funding

Quincy-based organizations The South Shore YMCA, DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended), Bay State Community Services, and Cerebral Palsy of Massachusetts will receive assistance from United Way of Massachusetts Bay after its board members recently approved $37.6 million in funding for nearly 200 non-profit agencies in 80 greater Boston communities.

Additionally, there are agencies funded by United Way of Massachusetts Bay which serve the city through branch offices or sites within the community, including: American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay, Big Brother Association of Greater Boston, Big Sister Association of Greater Boston, Combined Jewish Philanthropies, Family Service of Greater Boston, Salvation Army, and South Shore Day Care Services.

Of the $37.6 million in annual allocations, 48 percent will be invested in agencies that support young people, in keeping with the United Way's commitment to more than 180,000 donors to invest contributions strategically in the best-run human service agencies.

"We are sharpening our investment plan to better reflect our philosophy of prevention," said Marian Heard, president and chief executive officer of the United Way of Massachusetts Bay. "Although $37 million sounds like a large investment, it's just a fraction of what's needed to help everybody in the community.

The $37.6 million will support a broad mix of services. The breakdown of the investments is as follows:

- 48 percent to programs that primarily provide services for children and youth ages 0-18.

- 16 percent to agencies supporting the hungry and homeless.

- 10 percent to programs helping families to become self-sufficient through job training, home ownership, or English as Second Language Programs.

- Nine percent to programs caring for the elderly by providing adult day care, senior center activities, and in-home services.

- Seven percent to agencies offering domestic abuse prevention services, shelter, and skills to help victims of abuse become self-sufficient.

- Four percent to programs serving people with disabilities.

- Four percent to people with cancer and for cancer prevention programs.

- Two percent to people with HIV/AIDS and for awareness and prevention tends to testify at the ABCC appeal hearing or have his remarks read into the record.

"I certainly support the position against the beer and wine license," said Sheets, who cited possible problems with traffic, parking, and the various programs housed on Long Island as well as vandalism and the longstanding issue of underage drinking at Squaw Rock.

State Rep. and former Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, who lobbied against a similar license request in 1999 which was voted down by a vote of 5 to 0, has also expressed opposition to the license as has state Senator Michael Morrissey, Council President Paul Harold, and Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton.

On April 17, the License Board voted 3-2 to grant a beer and wine license to Shanahan of Tedeschi's Food Mart. There were petitions both for and against at the meeting but proponents of the license argued successfully that the closing of the nearby Dollar Saver Package Store, combined with population increases at Marina Bay, had created a need for the service which didn't exist during the 1999 vote.

Voting in favor of the beer and wine license were Shea, Inspectional Services Director Walter White, and Fire Chief Thomas Gorman.

Voting against were Acting Police Chief Terence Kelly and Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue.

Shea, who explained that a petition signed by 10 or more residents made possible the appeal hearing, also said he will attend the hearing to defend the decision made by License Board.

"We acted correctly," said Shea. "This was a proper application properly filed and a hearing was held. The commission voted in favor."

But Stamos, whose husband James is also a member of the "No-Need" Committee, said the committee's name pretty much summed up its stance on the issue.

"Squantum doesn't have a library, a drug store, or a pumping gas station," said Stamos. "It doesn't have a stoplight or nightly or weekend bus service. So why do we need alcohol?"

However, according to Newton's letter to Galvin, the councillor has yet to receive a response.

The June 29 letter to Galvin states:

"In my capacity as the Ward Six City Councillor in Quincy, I have twice written to Commissioner Amorello of the Massachusetts Highway Department seeking copies of all Massachusetts Highway correspondence pertaining to the proposed relocation of the USS Salem from Quincy Point/Fore River to Marina Bay/Squantum ... under the Freedom of Information Act, I am entitled to request this data ... since I have not heard a word from the Massachusetts Highway Department, the purpose of this letter is to ask you to intervene and make the Department comply with my request."

The Salem has been the subject of controversy since preliminary plans were announced last year to move the museum/ship from its berth in Quincy Point near the Fore River Shipyard to the MDC's Squantum Point Park off Marina Bay.

As the proposal has moved forward through the local, state, and federal approval process, proponents of the move, led by Salem Executive Director Joanne Condon Walsh, have argued that the move is necessary, economically feasible, and would not affect the highly prized sightlines of Marina Bay residents.

Opponents, led by many Marina Bay residents and Newton, have countered that a ship of that size is not the right fit for Marina Bay and want more specifics as to how much it would cost to move the ship and where the necessary funds would come from.

The MHD's Cope emphasized an earlier position of his department that "construction of the Fore River Bridge is completely separate from the USS Salem" and that the ship does not have to be moved to complete construction of the bridge.

Cope added that the $200,000 in mitigation funds given the USS Salem via Middlesex Corporation, the contractor in charge of the Fore River Bridge project, was sufficient and that the MHD would provide no further funds to the ship.

A LIKELY EMISSION
If you've ever wondered why buses and trucks do not have to conform to the emission standards of your family vehicle, wonder no more. Over the next five years, new regulations will translate into cleaner heavy truck engines. Specifically, these engines will be limited to just 5% of their current emission levels by 2006. The new regulations cut allowable smog-forming emissions by about 40%, followed by an additional 90% in two phases. In anticipation of tighter emission controls, manufacturers have been developing a new generation of engines that feature precision injection, electronic controls and catalytic converters. Because the latter are contaminated by high sulfur levels in fuel, the new regulations also create low-sulfur standards.

For most of your car's maintenance needs, including its emission control system, rely on our ASE Certified technicians at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. # Just The Way Abigail Wanted It

John Adams Birthplace Has Original Look

The birthplace of John Adams, second president of the United States, looks like it did when he and his parents, Deacon John and Susanna lived there.

It took on that "as it was" look after a painstaking six-year reconstruction project in the 1980s.

Visitors to the John Adams Birthplace, which peers over the shoulder of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace on Franklin St., South Quincy, can now see more completely how the house looked.

The house is well-furnished and looks like it did when John and Abigail lived in it.

The final renovation touches were to the room where Deacon John Adams made shoes.

The rooms are furnished from the period of Deacon John and his wife and probably reflected her taste. They are furnished, not elaborately, but sufficiently to have a lived-in look.

The birthplace was probably built in the late 17th or early 18th Century for less than $1,000 in the pounds of the day and the clapboards were hand-hewn from trees that grew in its fields.

The pine clapboards of the John Adams Birthplace are unpainted and the U.S. National Park Service, which restored the house, insists that based on research the house will remain that way, despite the fact that John Adams was known to have preferred it white.

For more than 80 years they were the little red farmhouses at the foot of Penn's Hill. But research turned up the fact that Abigail Adams, the wife of the second president, wanted them "stone" and white in color.

Since what Abigail wanted, Abigail usually got, in the summer of 1980, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace was repainted to Abigail's taste, the "stone" color determined to be a sort of off-white, mixed especially for the occasion from a late 18th Century formula.

The John Adams Birthplace was painted white so that both houses would look as they did in 1807, the year the last Adams lived in them, but later research indicated it was unpainted.

The birthplaces, parts of which date back to the 17th Century, were taken over by the National Park Service on May 1, 1979 after years of semi-neglect due to lack of restoration and maintenance funds.

The John Quincy Adams Birthplace reopened in 1982 for the first time in three years after undergoing a $175,000 rehabilitation faithful to the lives of the prominent family that lived there.

If you close your eyes and give your imagination full rein you can see them now as they were more than 200 years ago.

There is Abigail Adams in the new pink gingham dress. There is the curly-haired infant, Thomas Boylston Adams, bouncing on his father's knee. And there is John Adams, home from the Continental Congress in Philadelphia for the first time in a year, sitting at the table and drinking a cup of tea.

The setting, right down to the pewter plates and candlesticks, is reproduced faithfully in the corner room of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace.

The furnishings of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace are precise reproductions of those that were in the house when the second president lived there. The originals are at the Old House, the Adams National Historic Site, from which they cannot be removed under the ownership agreement with the Adams family.

The most interesting room in the John Quincy Adams Birthplace is John Adams' old law office, in which the elder Adams, James Bowdoin and Samuel Adams drafted the Massachusetts State Constitution, on which the U.S. Constitution was modeled.

The law office is furnished pretty much as John Adams had it.

There is the hutch table on which he wrote the State Constitution; the bookcase filled with books that probably were there in John Adams' day, judging by an inventory of his law library; his old writing desk and two chairs that were copied from those in his second law office in Boston.

Pastels of Abigail and John, originally done in Salem, were photographically reproduced by photographer George Dow and now hang in Abigail's sitting room. The originals are in the possession of the Massachusetts Historical Society.

Abigail's old kitchen cabinet was dis-covered serving as a bookcase in the Old House.

The cabinet was reproduced and installed in the kitchen of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace along with copies of the blue china that John purchased when he was emissary to Holland.

First Father - Son Presidents Born Here

It was the North Precinct of Braintree then, a sprawling tract of woods and farmlands on the gently rolling hills some 10 miles south of the Boston Stone along the winding Coast Road to Plymouth.

Something less than 1,500 people lived in the North, Middle and South Precincts of Braintree in the year 1735 and two of them were Deacon John Adams, 44, farmer and cordwainer, and his wife, Susanna, 26.

Their home was a weathered gray farmhouse with a high peaked roof and attached lean-to kitchen set on seven acres of farmland at roughly Milepost 11 of the Coast Road, just where it turned up the wooded slopes of Penn's Hill toward the Monaquot River ford.

He was a pillar of his rural community. Mr. Adams was a deacon in the First Parish Church, a lieutenant in the Braintree militia and a town constable with a forceful personality and tact that enabled him to collect taxes from his neighbors.

He was a hard-working farmer whose cider was acknowledged best in town, he worked in leather during the winter months, and he had an eye on an adjoining piece of farmland. 9 1/2 acres owned by the Billings brothers, complete with a farmhouse similar to his own.

Susanna Adams was a Boylston of Brookline, socially a cut above her husband, band, and perhaps there were moments in the simple house at the foot of Penn's Hill when she thought of the home of her uncle, the noted Dr. Zabiel Boylston of Brookline, whose furniture came all the way from London.

Their first child, a son who was named John for his father, was born in the southeast bedroom of the farmhouse on Oct. 19, 1735. (Old Style). He would become the second president of the United States.

Deacon John purchased the house next door for 500 pounds in 1744 and it was ready 20 years later when young John moved in with his brand new bride, the former Abigail Smith, the preacher's sparkling daughter from the next town of Weymouth.

Their second child, a son who was named John Quincy Adams after his great-grandfather, Col. John Quincy, was born there on July 11, 1767. He would become the sixth president of the United States.

Until George W. Bush was sworn in as the 43rd president in 2001, John Adams and John Quincy Adams were the only father and son combination to achieve that office. George H. W. Bush was the 41st. The Harrisons, William Henry and Benjamin, were grandfather and grandson.

The precise age of the two cottages at 133 and 141 Franklin St. at the foot of Penn's Hill is not known.

When the John Adams Birthplace was restored by the Daughters of the Revolution in 1897, a brick bearing the date 1661 was discovered under the southeast corner, and the house was known to have been occupied by one Joseph Penniman in that year.

And a man named Samuel Belcher was living in the John Quincy Adams Birthplace as early as 1663, when it was little more than a one-room shack with fireplace. It was built to its present size in 1716, as evidenced by a date brick found in the new fireplace.

According to Henry Adams, grandson of President John Quincy Adams, no member of the family lived in the cottages after 1818, although ownership remained in the Adams family until 1940.

Both houses were restored by the Adams Realty Trust, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace in 1896 at a cost of $1,650 and the John Adams Birthplace a year later at an expense of $515.49.

They were presented to the city of Quincy in 1940 and supervised by the Quincy Historical Society until they were turned over to the U.S. National Park Service in 1979.

A UNIQUE HERITAGE

As the "City of Presidents" Quincy enjoys a unique heritage and identification among all the cities in the United States. Our country's early struggle for freedom and independence began here with the writings and advocacy of John Hancock, John Adams and his wife, Abigail. The Adams legacy is preserved here for all to see at the birthplaces of John Adams and John Quincy Adams, the "Old House," the First Parish Church and the Adams Academy (now the home of the Quincy Historical Society).

Situated between Boston and Plymouth, Quincy is strategically located and a "must see" for visiting family and friends, tourists and students of history of all ages, both young and old.

Since its founding, our municipal leaders have always strived to protect our colonial past while allowing for a balanced growth. Our shoreline, playgrounds and natural beauty spots in the Blue Hills makes Quincy an attractive place to live, to work and raise a family.

It's always with a source of pride that when asked, where do you live, our citizens reply "Quin-zee."

'The Old House'

Summer White House And Home Of 2 Presidents

Josiah Quincy, the one who built railroads around New England and founded the cooperative bank movement in Massachusetts, was in his boyhood a frequent visitor to the mansion where John Adams, the second president of the United States, lived in retirement.

Later, he wrote with wry amusement about Sunday dinner with the aging patriarch of the Adams clan and his wife, Abigail, a dinner that inevitably began with a thick pudding made from boiled corn meal.

"...it being thought desirable to take the edge off one's hunger before reaching the joint," wrote Quincy.

"Indeed, it was considered wise to stimulate the young to fill themselves with pudding, by the assurance that the boy who managed to eat the most of it should be helped most abundantly to the meat, which was to follow.

"It need not be said that neither the winner nor his competitors found much room for meat at the close of their contest; and so the domestic economy of the arrangement was very apparent."

Quincy, as a young Harvard law student, stopped by several times a week in summer to talk and read to the former President. He found the visits delightful. Indeed, the Adams of the cold and austere public mien was never more relaxed than he was at his country home in Quincy.

The original house, a small part of the present building, was built probably in 1731 by Major Leonard Vassall, a wealthy West Indian sugar planter who lived in Cambridge and apparently used it for a summer place.

His daughter, Mrs. Anna Borland, who was a Loyalist during the Revolution, abandoned the house to leave with the British forces when they evacuated Boston in 1776. For a while it was used as a haven for rebel refugees fleeing the war zones.

Mrs. Borland returned to reclaim the house after the Revolution and John Adams, then in Europe as the first American ambassador to London, purchased it for 600 pounds through the good offices of the Cotton Tufts of Weymouth, his wife Abigail's cousin.

The Adamses were about to return to the United States after seven years abroad and Abigail was concerned that John's books and papers and the furnishings they had acquired in Europe would not fit into their old farmhouse at the foot of Penn's Hill where they lived before.

The deal was closed on Sept. 26, 1787, and the deed is still on file in the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds in which the Adams purchase is specified as a house, barn and other buildings on seven acres of land with some 76 acres more scattered around the North Precinct of Braintree.

There are indications that Abigail was first disappointed with her purchase. It was a lot smaller than she remembered it.

"In height and breadth it feels like a wren's house," she wrote to her daughter, Abigail, the wife of Col. William S. Smith, "Let Col. Smith come without heels to his shoes or he will not be able to walk upright."

Abigail and John Adams moved into the house, which they named "Peacefield," after his retirement from the presidency in 1801 and lived there until they died.

It was from the "Old House," as the family called it, that John Adams carried on his long and increasingly warm correspondence with his old rival, Thomas Jefferson of Virginia, who had succeeded him in the presidency. In retirement, they became firm friends as they outlasted their contemporaries.

"Thomas Jefferson lives," whispered John Adams as he lay dying in the Old House. He was wrong. Jefferson, in far away Monticello, Va., had preceded him in death by a few hours on the same day.

It was July 4, 1826, the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

The Old House which served as summer White House for two presidents, was home to four generations of the Adams family, the last, Brooks Adams, dying in February, 1927. It was taken over by the U.S. National Park Service in 1946 to become the Adams Mansion National Historic Site.

TOMBS OF PRESIDENTS John and John Quincy Adams and their wives, Abigail and Louisa in First Parish Church.

United First Parish Church, 'Church Of The Presidents' Where 2 Presidents, Their Wives Are Entombed

In 1949, when the present First Parish Church building, the Old Stone Temple, was 121 years old, it was ruled officially that the church is older than the city itself and the town before it.

It was then that the late historian William Churchill Edwards was called upon to resolve a minor dispute that involved the rounding of the corners of the church lot in downtown Quincy.

"Almost the first subject to which the minds of the early settlers of our country were turned after they landed here was the formation of a church," said Edwards.

The first church in these parts was established as a branch of the Church of Boston in 1636. It became a church in its own right in 1639. The Mount Wollaston section of Boston was incorporated as the town of Braintree on May 23, 1640. Ergo, the church came first!

Quincy's first house of worship, the branch of the Church of Boston, was called the "Chapel of Ease," and if it was neglected by early historians it was because its first pastor, the Rev. John Wheelwright, his sister-in-law, Anne Hutchinson, and others were banished from the Massachusetts Bay Colony for heresy.

The new church, the one that lasted, was gathered by covenant on Sept. 26, 1639, and it was holding services in its third meeting house in 1732 when its pastor was the Rev. John Hancock, father of the bold first signer of the Declaration of Independence. Son John also was a member.

The affairs of the church and the town of Quincy were one and the same until 1824 when church and state were separated in Massachusetts and the Congregational Society was established to handle parochial matters.

The old Hancock meeting house was still standing, although a little run down, on the south lawn of the present church lot in 1822 when former President John Adams deeded the interest from certain of his lands and granite from his pastures to build a stone temple.

It was completed in Greek revival style at a cost of $30,488.56—which was some $3,000 less than architect Alexander Parrish's estimate and dedicated Nov. 12, 1828, with John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States holding Pew No. 1.

Even before the church was dedicated, the mortal remains of his benefactors, John and Abigail Adams, were transferred to tombs in the crypt of the church and, in 1852, the bodies of John Quincy Adams and his wife, Louisa, joined them.

It is the only church in the United States in which two Presidents are buried. The only other church in which a President is buried is the Episcopal Cathedral in Washington, D.C., where President Woodrow Wilson is entombed.

An active Unitarian Universalist Church, it is open to the public for tours daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, Sunday from 12 noon to 5 p.m., mid-April to mid-November. Admission is $2; under 16 are admitted free. For further information, call 773-0062 or the church office at 773-1290.

Why We Pronounce It 'Quin-zee'

Why do we pronounce Quincy "Quin-zee" when just about everyone else in the country refers to it as "Quin-see?"

There are 19 other Quincys in the U.S., but they pronounce it "Quin-see."

Can they be right and we be wrong?

Not according to Quincy's late city historian, William C. Edwards, who never budged an inch whenever the argument ever came up. And it still comes up.

The reason we pronounce it "Quin-zee" is very simple.

"That's the way the Quincy family pronounced it," he used to explain.

"The original Quincy family which settled here at Mount Wollaston pronounced it 'Quin-zee,' including Col. John Quincy after whom Quincy, Mass.—the first Quincy—was named in 1792."

Colonel Quincy was the great grandfather of sixth President John Quincy Adams.

Apparently, all 19 other Quincys in the U.S. were named after John Quincy Adams.

And, apparently the early settlers of those communities thought John Quincy pronounced it John "Quin-see."

Anyway, that is how Edwards explained it.

Seems like a sound argument.

Quincy Was Almost Hancock

If some of the early settlers had their way, you would be living in the city of Hancock today instead of the city of Quincy.

Quincy, like George Washington, was born on Feb. 22.

On Feb. 22, 1792, the General Court of Massachusetts passed an act incorporating the North Precinct of Old Braintree as the separate town of Quincy.

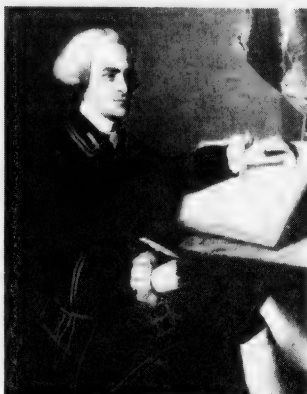

But, just before that, quite a few of the residents wanted the new town named after native-son John Hancock instead of Boston-born Colonel John Quincy.

Colonel Quincy, who had represented Old Braintree in the General Court, was the great-grandfather of President John Quincy Adams.

Many people today think Quincy was named after the sixth President but the honor actually goes to his great-grandfather.

John Hancock, who was born in the North Precinct, was governor of Massachusetts when the General Court passed the act incorporating the new town as Quincy. He signed the act the following day.

But at the first town meeting of the new town in May, a petition was presented to change the name from Quincy to Hancock in honor of the patriot and first signer of the Declaration of Independence. The move was finally defeated after a stormy verbal battle.

JOHN HANCOCK

Opponents argued that Hancock was still alive and that the honor should go to a distinguished-but-deceased-person.

Colonel Quincy met those requirements. He was both distinguished and deceased.

He had represented Old Braintree in the General Court from 1717 to 1741, 12 of those years as Speaker of the House. He died in 1767 at age 77, two days after John Quincy Adams was born.

Quincy became a city June 11, 1888.

But a lot of people will go right on thinking Quincy was named after John Quincy Adams.

First Wife, Mother Of Two Presidents

Abigail Adams: A Woman Ahead Of Her Time

Until January in the year 2001, Abigail Adams enjoyed a unique place in history as the only woman to be the wife of one president and the mother of another.

Abigail's husband, John, was the second president from 1797 to 1801 and her son, John Quincy, the sixth from 1825 to 1829.

And her grandson, Charles Francis Adams, ran unsuccessfully for vice president on the Free Soil ticket in 1848.

An early advocate of women's rights, the former Abigail Smith wrote to her husband, John, who was in Philadelphia helping the Founding Fathers hammer out a Constitution for the new republic:

"In the new code of laws which I suppose it will be necessary for you to make, I desire you would remember the ladies and be more generous and favorable to them your ancestors.

ABIGAIL ADAMS

"Do not put such unlimited power into the hands of the husbands. Remember, all men would be tyrants if they could."

Sadly, unlike Barbara Bush, Abigail Adams did not live to see her son become president. She died in her 74th year, Oct. 28, 1818, seven years before he entered the White House.

Although she is traditionally remembered as the wife of one president and the mother of another, Abigail was more than that.

She was a remarkable woman in her own right and one ahead of her time.

Born in neighboring Weymouth Nov. 11, 1744, the daughter of the Rev. William Smith, a Congregational minister, and his wife, Elizabeth Quincy Smith, she had no formal schooling.

But through tutoring by her father and mother and reading, she became a well-known writer of letters that have served to chronicle American history.

She was a brave and resourceful woman, too. She was often left alone for long periods of time to care for her children and run the farm at the foot of Penn's Hill while her husband was away in the service of their fledgling country.

Early in their marriage, he was in France trying to develop strong ties with that country and she sailed to meet him in Paris. They had not seen one another in five years.

John and Abigail Adams were the first president and first lady to occupy the White House. When Adams took office, succeeding George Washington on March 4, 1797, Philadelphia was the nation's capital. John and Abigail moved into the White House in November, 1800. It was called the President's Palace at the time.

No fancy airs about her. She won a special spot in White House folklore by hanging her laundry in the East Room. She was just being practical. Many of the rooms had not been finished when they moved in and the East Room was one of the warmer ones, better for drying wet clothing.

John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, the man who succeeded him as president, were close friends who worked together to produce the precious Declaration of Independence. But they had a falling out and became political enemies.

When Jefferson defeated Adams in his bid for reelection to a second term, Adams was so bitter that he refused to stay in Washington for Jefferson's inauguration in 1801 and came home to Quincy.

Abigail became a peacemaker through letters to Jefferson and, thanks to her efforts, the two former presidents reconciled in their later years.

Both succumbed July 4, 1826, the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, Jefferson a few hours before Adams.

John and Abigail were married 54 years and it was a happy reunion despite frequent and long separations in the early years.

Abigail was the woman behind two men — a husband and son — who encouraged and helped them in their distinguished service to their country on their way to the Presidency.

She and her husband, son and daughter-in-law, Louisa Catherine, are entombed in the crypt in the United First Parish Church.

A bronze statue depicting Abigail at about age 32 and John Quincy at age 10 with her hand on his shoulder in a motherly touch, was erected in 1997 just a few feet away.

The very spot from which she now looks out onto Quincy Square is where she walked when the area was an open field.

A Mother's Advice

Abigail Adams had this motherly advice for her son, John Quincy Adams, the future sixth president, in a letter written to him when he was 10 years old and in Europe with his father, John Adams, who was on a diplomatic mission:

"Improve your understanding for acquiring usefull (sic) knowledge and virtue, such as will render you an ornament to society, an Honour to your Country, and a Blessing to Your parents.

Your affectionate Mother
AA"

ABIGAIL ADAMS and her son, John Quincy Adams -- the future sixth President of the United States -- look out over Quincy Square from beside historic First Parish Church. The handsome bronze statue depicts here at about age 32 and him as a 10-year-old boy. It was commissioned by the Quincy Partnership and created by noted sculptor Lloyd Lillie.

At Dorothy Quincy Homestead

John Hancock's Declaration Of Love

An aura of romance surrounds the stately old house that is set back in the trees from the corner of Hancock Street and Butler Road, on the banks of Furnace Brook.

There is the wallpaper with its blue cupids and pink flowers that was imported from France for the wedding of Dorothy Quincy, the vivacious daughter of the house, to Quincy-born John Hancock, a patriot on the run with a price on his head.

There are the words "You I Love and You alone," addressed by Hancock to his beloved Dorothy and scratched on a window pane with his diamond ring just before he fled to Lexington on the eve of the Revolution.

And there are the secret chambers and passageways, used, it was said, to hide fugitive patriots during the Revolution and, at an earlier date, even certain Englishmen fleeing a charge of regicide in the death of King Charles I.

Parts of the house were built in 1685 by Col. Edmund Quincy, the second of the name, on land that was granted to an earlier Edmund in 1638. The major part was built in 1706 by Edmund the third. (There were six Edmunds in all, four in a direct line; two nephews.)

The house was the social center of old Braintree during the regime of the fourth

Edmund, largely because he sired five beautiful daughters around whom swirled a whole future generation of judges, generals and merchant kings.

The undisputed belle of the household was Dorothy, the coquettish youngest of the eight Quincy children, whose troth was soon plighted to John Hancock, the wealthy young businessman from Boston who was already becoming known as a leader of the rebels.

Tradition has it that they were to have been married in the north parlor of the Quincy homestead with its French cupid wallpaper when Revolution intervened and John had to flee with the British regulars on his heels.

Eventually, they were wed Aug. 28, 1775, at the home of Thaddeus Burr, uncle of Aaron Burr (later Vice President of the United States) in Fairfield, Conn.

After the Revolution and the death of Edmund the fourth in 1788 the old house passed from the Quincy family. The Hancocks wanted nothing to do with it. Their only son, John George Washington Hancock, was killed in a skating accident at age 9 while on a visit in 1787.

The house was acquired in 1904 by the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames, who restored it with vintage furniture, utensils and clothing, and gave it

Thomas Crane Public Library A Romanesque Architectural Beauty

He came to Quincy as a boy of 7, grew to young manhood on a farm in Quincy Point, learned the granite-cutters' trade, and left at the age of 26 to win fame and fortune in stone in New York City.

That was the last Quincy heard of Thomas Crane for half a century until one February day in 1880, five years after his death, when his son, Albert, appeared with $20,000 with which to build a memorial — preferably a library — to his father.

"My father always retained a strong feeling for the town of Quincy," was his only explanation.

Albert Crane himself chose the man to design the building, Henry Hobson Richardson, grandson of the English scientist Dr. Joseph Priestly and the foremost architect of the day.

His reputation was so formidable that he was able to tell Crane, "I cannot guarantee that the building, when completed, shall conform to (your) ideas of beauty and taste," and still get the job.

Richardson's Romanesque building, which now houses the reference section of the library, was dedicated on May 30, 1882, with the principal oration delivered by Charles Francis Adams, Jr., chairman of the Board of Trustees.

It was Adams who gave the library its name. Albert Crane wanted it to be "The Quincy Free Public Library," Adams insisted on "The Thomas Crane Public Library."

"Who's giving the building?" asked Albert Crane.

"You are, but you wouldn't have if it hadn't been for me," said Adams, who was used to having his way around Quincy, and that was that.

President John Adams' modest collection of books was housed in the library until 1893, when it was discovered that in 11 years only two persons, one of them Charles Francis Adams, Jr., had asked to see them. They were then transferred to the Boston Public Library.

At the start, Richardson's magnificent building was all but hidden behind a grain store, a hotel, an office building and four homes that lined Washington St.

Albert Crane, however, was a persistent man and, by the time he died in 1917, he had purchased and torn down all the buildings, leaving a broad expanse of open space to enhance the library.

But before the lawn could be seeded, World War I intervened and, in a burst of patriotism — "Food will win the war," they said — the area was planted with potatoes. The experiment failed.

"There wasn't a potato in the lot that was anywhere near as large as a golf ball," said Mayor Joseph L. Whiton. The harvest was donated to the poor farm.

Albert Crane also put up $64,000 to build the Spear St. wing of the library in 1907-08 and the Crane family gave yet another $164,000 for the free standing addition, built in 1938.

A new $18 million addition that almost doubled the size of the existing library was completed in the spring of 2001 with money from the Crane endowment used to purchase the property and the rest paid for with a city bond issue.

The Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., is open to the public, free of charge, Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Friday and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. It is closed on Saturdays and Sundays during July and August.

DOMED CEILING of the United First Parish Church, cut with classic Greek lines, emphasizes the size and beauty of the church. The dome and the crypt of Presidents John Adams and Quincy Quincy Adams and their wives combine to make the "Church of Presidents" one of the most awe inspiring sights in Quincy.

GENERAL DOUGLAS MacARTHUR visited historic United First Parish Church July 25, 1951, after his recall by President Harry Truman. Shown on the steps of the church with him are Mayor Thomas Burgin and Mrs. MacArthur. While stopping by the Adams family pew in the church, MacArthur said: "I am certain that John Quincy Adams must have prayed in this pew for divine guidance before he wrote the Monroe Doctrine."

Captain Who?

The original settlement of Quincy was made as a trading post in 1625 by an all male company led by a Captain Wollaston, who was so obscure that his first name has been lost to history.

A few years ago, the historian Hobart Holley, after exhaustive research, concluded that his first name was probably Richard — but still, nobody knows for sure.

Adams Academy On Site Of John Hancock's Birthplace

By modern standards, the boarding house at the corner of Hancock and Depot Sts. had all the aspects of a genteel prison.

Residents were forbidden to leave between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m. They could not enter or leave at any time except by the hall door. They were banned from pool halls and bars. Smoking materials also were forbidden to them.

In exchange for good behavior, plus tuition ranging from $75 to $150 a year, they were given the best prep school education of the day, for they were students at Adams Academy, which flourished from 1872 to 1907 in Quincy.

The academy was a gift of John Adams, the second President of the United States, who always had his checkbook ready to fill the spiritual and educational needs of the citizens of his beloved Quincy.

The trust fund, nourished by "rents, profits and emoluments" from certain Adams-owned properties, was set up in the Adams will of 1822, but it was not until 1869 that the fund was deemed large enough to start construction.

The location was specified by Adams himself as the corner of Adams and Hancock Streets., site of the birthplace of his childhood friend, John Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence.

The doors opened to the first students, 24 of them, on Sept. 4, 1872. Five years later, the academy reached a peak enrollment of 154 with an international student body—25 from Quincy, four from Washington, D.C., 125 from 14 states, two from England and one from Chile.

It had one of the earliest prep school football teams, too, recording a tie with the Resolutes of Boston on Oct. 21, 1876, a scant seven years after Princeton and Rutgers played the first college game. It whipped Andover three times from 1877-79.

The admissions catalogue specified that applicants be "well prepared in the usual studies of good grammar school" and warned that "no pupils are desired to give them a collegiate education."

The best known headmaster was Dr. William Everett, once acclaimed as one of the seven smartest men in the world. He ran the academy with a firm hand from

ADAMS ACADEMY, now home of the Quincy Historical Society.

1878 to 1893 and again from 1897 to 1907. From 1893 to 1897, he was a U.S. congressman from Lynn.

Dr. Everett, an amiable if sometimes waspish eccentric, was widely known as the man who hated Abraham Lincoln. He had reason. His father was Edward Everett, whose masterful oration at Gettysburg was over-shadowed by Lincoln's notes scribbled on the back of an envelope.

It was Dr. Everett, who signaled the passing of Adams Academy—and many other 19th Century classical prep schools—at graduation exercises in 1907 when he said that "unless someone comes forward and planks down $50,000, the academy will be closed."

Nobody did. On June 22, 1907, the Adams Academy officially closed its doors.

John Quincy Adams: The Old Flame Still Burned

The old man's bitterness glowed from every word as he penned them in his diary on June 17, 1843, the day the Bunker Hill Monument was dedicated.

"What a name in the annals of mankind is Bunker Hill! What a day was the 17th of June, 1775! And what a burlesque upon them both is an oration upon them by Daniel Webster!"

The old man despised Webster as a turncoat to his own heritage, one whose compromises had sold out to slavery.

"The ideal associations thundering cannon, which I heard, and the smoke of burning Charlestown, which I saw, on that awful day .. How could I have witnessed all this at once, without an unbecoming burst of indignation.

"Daniel Webster is a heartless traitor to the cause of freedom; John Tyler [the

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS

President] is a slave-monger. What have these to do with the Quincy granite pyramid on the brow of Bunker Hill?

"I stayed home .. "

The old flame still burned in John Quincy Adams at 75.

Abigail Adams Cairn

The Smoke Could Be Seen Over Bunker Hill

Abigail Adams was awakened at dawn in the farmhouse at the foot of Penn's Hill by the sound of far-off guns. All through the sweltering morning of June 17, 1775, as she hustled about with the chores, the dull boom of cannon intruded on her consciousness.

Riders on the Coast Road to Plymouth, stopping at the farmhouse for a drink of water, told her of a great battle underway on Breed's Hill in Charlestown.

One of them brought word that Dr. Joseph Warren had been killed in the fighting and little Abby, age 10, burst into tears, and John Quincy, nearly 8, felt bewildered and sad, for Dr. Warren was the Adams family doctor in Boston.

In the afternoon, Abigail could stand it no longer. Taking Abby and John Quincy by the hand, she walked up the Coast Road to the top of Penn's Hill and climbed up on the rocks for a better view.

The panorama of the Bay, a shimmering blue in the sunshine, spread out before them, the tiny houses on the three hills of Boston and, beyond, the black smoke rising in billows.

"Good God," exclaimed Abigail, "they are burning Charlestown!"

The scene etched itself forever in John Quincy's memory.

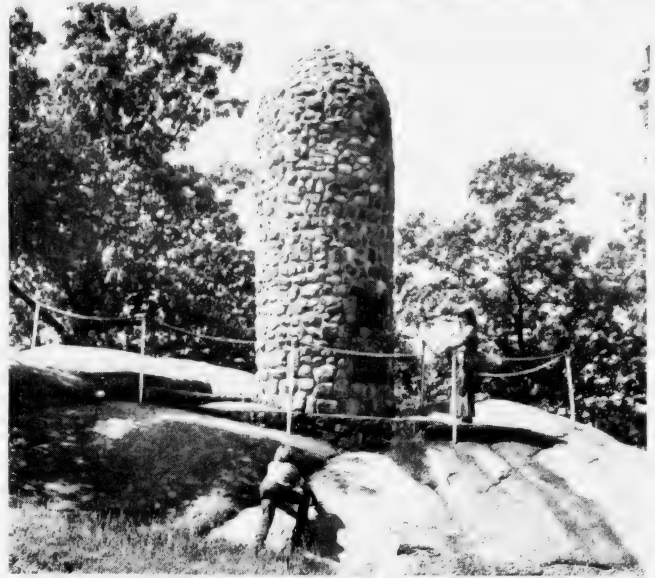

The early days of the Revolution were times of turmoil in Old Braintree and its North Precinct, which was later called Quincy.

Abigail's husband, John, was away most of the time at the Continental Congress in Philadelphia, leaving 31-year-old Abigail to manage the farm and look to the needs of four small children: Abigail, John Quincy, Charles, 5, and Thomas Boylston, 3.

There were days of alarm as the British, penned up in Boston by the brand new Continental Army, foraged up and down the coast for supplies. Refugees from occupied Boston and the inner towns of Dorchester and Roxbury sometimes slept in the kitchen and in the fields.

As the wife of a member of Congress, Abigail was a center of attention. The house on the Coast Road was a favorite stopping place for travelers to Plymouth. Politicians up from Philadelphia made it a point to stop by for a visit with John Adams' wife.

Abigail was invited to visit Gen. George Washington's headquarters at Winter Hill. The aristocratic Washington was suspect among New Englanders. He was a Virginian; he was an Anglican; and, it was said, he held slaves. But John Adams liked him and Abigail was soon charmed.

One day, young John Quincy came home to find his Uncle Elihu melting down Abigail's pewter spoons in the kitchen to make bullet molds. He looked at his mother and she looked back at him and something indefinable passed between them.

"Do you wonder," wrote the sixth President of the United States some 68 years later, "that a boy of 7 who witnessed this scene should be a patriot."

In 1896, where the old Coast Road (now Franklin Street) meets Viden Road atop Penn's Hill, a stone cairn was built to mark the spot where Abigail and young John Quincy watched the Battle of Bunker Hill. It is open to the public and free of charge.

Hancock Cemetery

Patriots, Early Settlers, Intrigue Buried Here

Henry, the first Adams in Quincy, is buried there. So is the Rev. John Hancock, father of the first signer of the Declaration of Independence. And Colonel John Quincy, for whom the city is named.

But of all the 800 graves in the Hancock Cemetery, the Old Burying Ground of Colonial Quincy, most intriguing is one marked by a tombstone bearing this cryptic epitaph:

"Erected to the memory of John R. Grieve: Died Nov. 12, 1850, age 22 years, and Hannah Banks, his wife, died Nov. 12, 1850, age 15 years. Both of Zanesville, Ohio. Deluded by the writings of A.J. Davis."

The mystery of John and Hannah has never been fully solved.

They came to Quincy in 1850, not as man and wife, but as male cousins. John Green and George Sands. They obtained work in a shoe factory but rarely left their lodgings on Elm St., spending long hours reading books on spiritualism.

Co-Workers thought that George Sands looked frail, almost effeminate. It was widely suspected that "he" was a girl. A scheme was devised to test the theory.

One day at lunch one of the shoe workers tossed George an apple. A man would catch it by closing his legs; a woman by spreading her skirt. Guess what "George"

Humiliated, John and Hannah never went back to the factory. Nor did they ever return to the house on Elm St. Their frozen bodies were found next spring by rabbit hunters on Penn's Hill, locked in a loving embrace.

Several months later, the father of John Grieve arrived from Ohio to bury the young couple. It was he who directed the words to be chiselled on the headstone. He explained no further.

A.J. Davis was never identified for sure. But Andrew Jackson Davis, a spiritualist, hypnotist and faith healer, was then practicing in Boston.

Among the belongings found in the Elm. St. lodgings were these words, written by 15-year-old Hannah Banks:

"To the oppressed and downtrodden, to the suffering and afflicted, I would cry out...Death is only an event, only a circumstance in the eternal life experience of the human soul. Death is simply a birth into a new and perfect state of existence."

Not far from the grave of John and Hannah is a tomb bearing words that cry out of an earlier injustice:

"Three precious friends under this tombstone lie

"Patterns to aged, youth and infancy.

"A great mother, her learned son, with child.

"The first and least went free. He was exiled.

"In love to Christ, this country, and dear friends.

"He left his own, cross'd seas and for amends

"Was here extoll'd, and envy'd all in a breath.

"His noble consort leaves, is drawn to death.

"Stranger changes may befall us ere we die.

"Blest they who will arrive eternity.

"God grant some names, O thou New England's friend.

"Don't sooner fade than thine, if times don't mend."

The tomb with its hidden message contains the family of the Rev. Leonard Hoar, third president of Harvard College, a man too liberal for his times.

He was forced by the General Court of the Massachusetts Bay Colony to resign at the instigation of religious opponents and jealous colleagues for permitting Harvard to "languish and decay." Eight months later, in November 1675, he was dead at 45.

In 1975, the same General Court, now of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, righted the 300-year-old wrong done to the Rev. Mr. Hoar by "proclaiming and confirming his innocence of any misdeeds while president of Harvard College."

The cemetery, on Hancock St., Quincy Sq., next to City Hall, is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

City Hall Seat Of Government For 157 Years

Daniel and Hannah French deeded the land to the town of Quincy for $1,000 with the stipulation that it "shall not be used for any other purpose than as a place for a Town House and for the said Inhabitants."

And, with a few minor transgressions of that vow, the solid structure of Quincy granite on Quincy Square has been just that for the past 157 years, the nerve center of government for the town and then the city.

It was the great hall on the second floor that the popular John Quincy Adams II, grandson of a President of the United States, held forth as town moderator for many years and, with his brother, Charles Francis Adams Jr., gave informal direction to town affairs.

One of the earliest ordinances passed by the first City Council on March 8, 1889 was the adoption of the City Seal emblazoned with the four most significant dates in Quincy's history:

1625, for the first settlement on Mount Wollaston; 1640, for its separation from Boston as the town of Braintree; 1792, for its separation from Braintree as the town of Quincy; and 1888, for its incorporation as a city.

CITY HALL

Designed by the architect Solomon Willard — who received $280 for drawing up the plans and superintending construction for five months — the City Hall was completed and occupied for the first time on Nov. 1, 1844.

It cost exactly $19,115.93 to build, including 88 cents to John Briesler for lead to seal the chimney.

In 1979, when a three and a half story reflective glass addition was built behind the old City Hall, the cost was $1.9 million.

John Adams 'Father' U.S., State Constitution Both Born Here

Quincy, birthplace of John Adams, John Quincy Adams and John Hancock, also has claim to the birth of the U.S. Constitution.

The seed for this precious document was planted here.

The U.S. Constitution was modeled after the Massachusetts Constitution which was written by John Adams, Samuel Adams and James Bowdoin in Adams' law office of the John Quincy Adams birthplace in Quincy.

There is every reason to believe that John Adams did not want to go the Massachusetts Constitution Convention in Cambridge in 1779.

He had arrived home only seven days before on the French frigate La Sensible after nearly 18 months in Paris helping to negotiate a commercial and military alliance with France. He was in such a rush to get home that he apparently landed the day before La Sensible reached Boston by rowing ashore from Nantasket Roads.

He missed his wife, Abigail, terribly, and she him.

"One was angry, another was full of Greif, and the third with Melancholy, so that I burnt them all," he wrote to her from Passy on Dec. 18, 1778, listing his complaints with her most recent letters. "If you write me in this style I shall leave front of writing intirely, it kills me.

"Am I not wretched Enough, in this Banishment, without this? What Course shall I take to convince you that my Heart is warm? I beg you would never more write to me in such a strain for it really makes me unhappy."

"How lonely are my days?" she wrote on a Sunday evening, Dec. 27. "How solitary are my Nights? How insupportable the Idea that 3000 leagues, and the vast ocean now divide us—but divide only our persons for the Heart of my Friend is in the Bosom of his partner."

Somewhere on the vast ocean the two letters passed each other.

Paris and the dissolute court of Louis XVI held small appeal to the Puritan in John Adams, even when his closest everyday companions were Dr. Benjamin Franklin, still with an eye for the ladies at age 73, and the swashbuckling Capt. John Paul Jones, half patriot, half pirate, who had just taken command of the leaky old East Indian man he had renamed Bon Homme Richard.

The American colonies, newly reborn as the United States of America, were going through the most dismal period of the War for Independence. Inflation was rampant: butcher's meat, a dollar to eight shillings a pound; flour, fifty dollars a hundredweight. The news from the fighting front was of death, privation and horror.

Like many Braintree wives whose husbands were away at war, Abigail Adams was forced into the unaccustomed role of head of the household, a function she filled with determination.

"I cannot avoid sometimes repining that the gifts of fortune were not bestowed upon us, that I might have enjoyed the happiness of spending my days with my partner," she wrote, "but as it is, I think it my duty to attend with frugality and economy to our own private affairs; and if I cannot add to our little substance, yet see to it that it is not diminished."

She abstained from drinking black market tea, allowing herself one tiny complaint: "I should like a little green (tea), but they say there is none to be had here. I only wish it for a medicine, as a relief to a nervous pain in my head to which I am sometimes subject."

John Adams attended the opening session of the Constitutional Convention in Cambridge on Wednesday, June 1, 1779. On Saturday, he was named to a committee of 30 to prepare the declaration of rights and the constitution. On Monday, the committee delegated the task to a subcommittee of three. John and Samuel Adams; and James Bowdoin.

Thus it was that John Adams wound

The patient, hard-working John Adams, of course, did most of the work.

"I was by the Convention put upon the Committee—by the Committee upon the subcommittee—and by the subcommittee appointed a sub subcommittee—so that I had the honor to be principal Engineer," he wrote to his friend, Edmund Jennings. Payroll records indicate that he was paid 90 pounds for his work.

The so-called "Adams draft" of the Massachusetts Constitution was accepted by the Convention with a few alterations but by that time John Adams was long gone back to Europe, this time to help negotiate a treaty of peace with Britain and serve as America's first minister to London. He did not see the farm at the foot of Penn's Hill again for another eight years.

But he was immensely heartened by these words from the pen of his ever-loving Abigail, written on Oct. 15, 1780:

"Our Massachusetts Constitution is read with admission in New York and pronounced by the Royal Governor as the best republican form he ever saw."

Josiah Quincy House

Lookout For Spying On British Ships

Abigail Adams stood with her great-uncle, Col. Josiah Quincy, in a window of his mansion overlooking Wollaston Beach and watched the tall masts of 170 ships stand slowly out to sea. It was March 17, 1776. The British were evacuating Boston.

But even in triumph there was tragedy.

Aboard the departing ships were more than 1,000 Loyalists, Americans who had chosen King above country, and one of them was Abigail's cousin, Samuel Quincy, the Colonel's only remaining son, an avowed Tory.

"I take a long farewell," his sister, Hannah, wrote to him for one last time. "Let it not be published that a brother of such brothers fled from his country. Can you expect to walk uprightly now? Can you take fire in your bosom and not be burned?"

Two of Col. Josiah Quincy's sons had died young. Now he had no more.

But there was no time for regrets. The work of revolution had begun. The second floor of the house at what is now 20 Muirhead St., Wollaston, was a lookout from which the 66-year-old Colonel spied on British ship movements for his friend, Gen. George Washington.

A few months before, Col. Quincy watched the Royal Governor, Gen. Thomas Gage depart and he scratched on a pane of window glass the reminder: "Oct.

10, 1775. General Gage sailed for England with a fair wind."

This time he remained in the window for three days as the British tall ships moved restlessly about the Harbor as if reluctant to leave. Finally, on March 20, the last of them passed through the roadstead and out to sea.

The mansion in Wollaston reached full social flower under the aegis of the Colonel's grandson, the third Josiah, the "Great Mayor" of Boston, president of Harvard and Congressman, who called it "Tranquillia" and used it as his summer home.

It was there that the Marquis de Lafayette visited one Sunday afternoon after dinner with his friend, ex-President John Adams at the Adams Mansion. He carried flowers from the Adams garden for Mrs. Eliza Susan Quincy and her five attractive daughters.

The house was built in 1770 by the old Colonel himself, the first in a line of six Josiahs. It was said that, while most families passed their line from sire to son, the Quincys went from 'Siah to 'Siah.

But, while there were six Josiahs and innumerable Edmunds, the city was named for yet another member of the prolific family — Col. John Quincy, the great-grandfather of John Quincy Adams, sixth president of the United States.

John Adams 'Father' U.S., State Constitution Both Born Here

Quincy, birthplace of John Adams. John Quincy Adams and John Hancock, also has claim to the birth of the U.S. Constitution.

The seed for this precious document was planted here.

The U.S. Constitution was modeled after the Massachusetts Constitution which was written by John Adams, Samuel Adams and James Bowdoin in Adams' law office of the John Quincy Adams birthplace in Quincy.

There is every reason to believe that John Adams did not want to go the Massachusetts Constitution Convention in Cambridge in 1779.

He had arrived home only seven days before on the French frigate La Sensible after nearly 18 months in Paris helping to negotiate a commercial and military alliance with France. He was in such a rush to get home that he apparently landed the day before La Sensible reached Boston by rowing ashore from Nantasket Roads.

He missed his wife, Abigail, terribly, and she him.

"One was angry, another was full of Greif, and the third with Melancholy, so that I burnt them all," he wrote to her from Passy on Dec. 18, 1778, listing his complaints with her most recent letters. "If you write me in this style I shall leave of writing intirely, it kills me.

"Am I not wretched Enough, in this Banishment, without this? What Course shall I take to convince you that my Heart is warm? I beg you would never more write to me in such a strain for it really makes me unhappy."

"How lonely are my days?" she wrote on a Sunday evening, Dec. 27. "How solitary are my Nights? How insupportable the Idea that 3000 leagues, and the vast ocean now divide us—but divide only our persons for the Heart of my Friend is in the Bosom of his partner."

Somewhere on the vast ocean the two letters passed each other.

Paris and the dissolute court of Louis XVI held small appeal to the Puritan in John Adams, even when his closest everyday companions were Dr. Benjamin Franklin, still with an eye for the ladies at age 73, and the swashbuckling Capt. John Paul Jones, half patriot, half pirate, who had just taken command of the leaky old East Indiaman he had renamed Bon Homme Richard.

The American colonies, newly reborn as the United States of America, were going through the most dismal period of the War for Independence. Inflation was rampant: butcher's meat, a dollar to eight shillings a pound; flour, fifty dollars a hundredweight. The news from the fighting front was of death, privation and horror.

Like many Braintree wives whose husbands were away at war, Abigail Adams was forced into the unaccustomed role of head of the household, a function she filled with determination.

"I cannot avoid sometimes repining that the gifts of fortune were not bestowed upon us, that I might have enjoyed the happiness of spending my days with my partner," she wrote, "but as it is, I think it my duty to attend with frugality and economy to our own private affairs; and if I cannot add to our little substance, yet see to it that it is not diminished."

She abstained from drinking black market tea, allowing herself one tiny complaint: "I should like a little green (tea), but they say there is none to be had here. I only wish it for a medicine, as a relief to a nervous pain in my head to which I am sometimes subject."

John Adams attended the opening session of the Constitutional Convention in Cambridge on Wednesday, June 1, 1779. On Saturday, he was named to a committee of 30 to prepare the declaration of rights and the constitution. On Monday, the committee delegated the task to a subcommittee of three, John and Samuel Adams; and James Bowdoin.

Thus it was that John Adams wound

The patient, hard-working John Adams, of course, did most of the work.

"I was by the Convention put upon the Committee—by the Committee upon the subcommittee—and by the subcommittee appointed a sub subcommittee—so that I had the honor to be principal Engineer," he wrote to his friend, Edmund Jennings. Payroll records indicate that he was paid 90 pounds for his work.

The so-called "Adams draft" of the Massachusetts Constitution was accepted by the Convention with a few alterations but by that time John Adams was long gone back to Europe, this time to help negotiate a treaty of peace with Britain and serve as America's first minister to London. He did not see the farm at the foot of Penn's Hill again for another eight years.

But he was immensely heartened by these words from the pen of his ever-loving Abigail, written on Oct. 15, 1780:

"Our Massachusetts Constitution is read with admission in New York and pronounced by the Royal Governor as the best republican form he ever saw."

Lookout For Spying On British Ships

Abigail Adams stood with her great-uncle, Col. Josiah Quincy, in a window of his mansion overlooking Wollaston Beach and watched the tall masts of 170 ships stand slowly out to sea. It was March 17, 1776. The British were evacuating Boston.

But even in triumph there was tragedy.

Aboard the departing ships were more than 1,000 Loyalists, Americans who had chosen King above country, and one of them was Abigail's cousin, Samuel Quincy, the Colonel's only remaining son, an avowed Tory.

"I take a long farewell," his sister, Hannah, wrote to him for one last time. "Let it not be published that a brother of such brothers fled from his country. Can you expect to walk uprightly now? Can you take fire in your bosom and not be burned?"

Two of Col. Josiah Quincy's sons had died young. Now he had no more.

But there was no time for regrets. The work of revolution had begun. The second floor of the house at what is now 20 Muirhead St., Wollaston, was a lookout from which the 66-year-old Colonel spied on British ship movements for his friend, Gen. George Washington.

A few months before, Col. Quincy watched the Royal Governor, Gen. Thomas Gage depart and he scratched on a pane of window glass the reminder: "Oct.

This time he remained in the window for three days as the British tall ships moved restlessly about the Harbor as if reluctant to leave. Finally, on March 20, the last of them passed through the roadstead and out to sea.

The mansion in Wollaston reached full social flower under the aegis of the Colonel's grandson, the third Josiah, the "Great Mayor" of Boston, president of Harvard and Congressman, who called it "Tranquilla" and used it as his summer home.

DUNKIN' DONUTS

& the Carvalho Family

Proud to be a part of Quincy's History

The first Dunkin' Donuts shop, which opened on the Southern Artery in Quincy in 1950, established the successful business concept Dunkin' Donuts continues to follow: to make and sell the freshest, most delicious coffee and donuts, served quickly and courteously in modern, well merchandised shops.

Over the years, the product line has been expanded to include fresh baked goods, a wider selection of beverages and croissant sandwiches that build the breakfast and lunch trade. New distribution concepts also have been introduced to enable the company to penetrate markets more efficiently and effectively. As a result, Dunkin' Donuts is the largest coffee and donut chain in the world.

THE GRANITE RAILWAY

The Granite Railway First Commercial Railroad In U.S.

It was the darndest looking contraption that many among the distinguished gathering had ever seen.

Each of the three wagons had four wheels, six and one half feet in diameter, surmounted by a smaller gear wheel which was used to raise and lower the cargo platform that was slung low between the wheels.

It rode on foot-high wooden rails, topped by iron plate, which rested on stone sleepers or cross ties, placed eight feet apart and firmly supported on crushed granite to a depth beyond the frost line.

On Saturday, Oct. 7, 1826, the wagons were laden with 16 tons of the finest Quincy granite and the opening day guests were properly amazed when a single horse moved the whole thing with ease more than three miles to a special wharf on the Neponset River.

The granite blocks, a particularly hard and weather-resistant stone capable of taking a brilliant polish, were en route to Charlestown, where they were building a monument to the Battle of Bunker Hill.

The Granite Railway, the first such commercial venture in the United States, was built specifically to transport stone for the Bunker Hill Monument.

That it became successful, and a model for others around the country, is a tribute to three vastly dissimilar men, the engineer Gridley Bryant, the architect Solomon Willard and the financier, Colonel Thomas Handasyd Perkins.

Bryant was 27 at the time but already an engineer of note. He invented the eight wheeled railroad car and, when a fellow named Ross Winans of Baltimore sued to establish a patent on it, Bryant was able to prove his claim to the satisfaction of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Willard, then 43, was a great bear of a man, gentle, obliging, industrious. Frivolity, it was said, was alien to him and he was never known to run. He could be crotchety, too. He was a carpenter turned wood-carver, turned stone-carver and, finally architect.

Perkins was the autocratic, 52-year-old merchant king of Boston who was said to have been offered the post of Secretary of the Navy by President Washington and turned it down with the observation that he owned more ships than the Navy.

It was Perkins who lobbied the Railway's charter through a puzzled and obstinate State Legislature, which had never been called upon to incorporate a commercial railroad before. It was Perkins who financed it, too, largely with his own money.

Even in its early days, the Granite Railway was a tourist attraction of some magnitude.

Daniel Webster, who used to stop off for a pick-me-up in Quincy en route from Boston and Washington to his home in Marshfield, viewed it and decided that it would never succeed because of the frost that would form on the rails in the winter.

The President of the United States, a local boy named John Quincy Adams, visited in August, 1827, got caught in a thunderstorm and took shelter in a shed where Willard's stone-cutters were hacking away at monument granite.

A group of visitors were riding up the Railway's incline in an empty car on July 25, 1832, when the chain broke and catapulted them over a 40-foot cliff. One was killed in what may have been the first railroad fatality in the United States.

The Granite Railway Co. survived until 1870, some 27 years after the Bunker Hill Monument was finished, when most of its track was taken over by the Old Colony Railroad, which in turn became a division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford.

Today much of the roadbed, over which freight moved commercially on rails for the first time in America, is buried under the macadam of the Southeast Expressway.

The incline of the old Railway has been restored and is located at the dead end of Mullin Ave. in West Quincy. It is open to the public year around, 24 hours a day. There is no admission charge.

Moswetuset Hummock

'Birthplace Of Massachusetts'

The Indians saw it as a hill (wetuset) shaped like an arrow head (mos) so they called it "Moswetuset" and when English tongues got through mangling the word it came out "Massachusetts," which became the name of the bay and then the state.

The little wooded hillock near the junction of East Squantum Street and Quincy Shore Drive was once the seat of the sachem Chickatabot, who comes down through the pages of Quincy history as a rather pathetic figure.

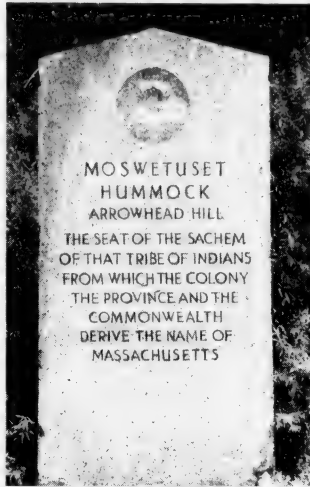

He was the chief of the Moswetuset Indians, a once great tribe that occupied the coast north of Plymouth.

A few years before, under the great sachem Nanepashemet, the Moswetuset had been able to field some 3,000 warriors for a war with a neighboring tribe. Nanepashemet was killed.

Then came the plague.

In two years the mighty Moswetuset were all but wiped out. No more than 60 of them were left to till their fields on the banks of the Neponset River. Sachem Chickatabot fled his home on the hill in Wollaston and took refuge on Moswetuset Hummock.

That was the situation in 1621 when Capt. Myles Standish landed from a shallop with an exploring party of Plymouth Pilgrims that included the Indian guide Squanto (or Tsquantum), whose name was given to the peninsula that stuck out in the bay. They called it Squantum.

The tragic Chickatabot died not long after the Pilgrims' visit and he was succeeded as sachem by his son, Josiah Wampatuck, a boy who knew a good deal when he saw one.

Wampatuck sold what was left of his virtually deserted tribal lands to a group of whites for 12 pounds, 10 shillings. The lands included most of what is today the city of Quincy and the towns of Braintree, Randolph and Holbrook.

City Named For Him But: Col. John Quincy Something Of A Mystery Man

Few men have served the public good longer or as well as Col. John Quincy.

He was Speaker of the Massachusetts House, a governor's councillor, a selectman and perennial moderator of the town meeting in Old Braintree, commander of the local militia regiment and guardian of the rights of the few Ponkapoag Indians who survived the plague.

And through his granddaughter, Abigail Adams, nee Smith, he was the grandfather-in-law of the second president of the United States and the great grandfather of the sixth.

Small wonder then, that when the North Precinct broke away from Old Braintree in 1792 they named the new town "Quincy."

Col. John Quincy is something of a mystery man, even in the city that bears his name. It is not known for sure when he came to Old Braintree. Nor is there a picture of him extant or even a physical description of him in the words that have been left to us by his contemporaries.

During celebration in Quincy in 1908, the main speaker, the Rev. Daniel Munro

COL. JOHN QUINCY tankard, part of the Colonel's bequest to the First Parish Church in Quincy in 1767, is one of the few remaining relics of the man for whom the city is named. It was purchased at auction by former City Councilor George Burke when the church decided to sell its silver to pay for repairs.

MONUMENT was placed on Col. John Quincy's grave in the Hancock Cemetery by the Quincy Historical Society in 1904. Plaque reads: 'Here was buried Col. John Quincy of Mount Wollaston 1689-1767 from whom Quincy was named.' His gravestone itself is at the lower right.

Wilson, noted that "in his day, he was one of the most trusted and influential public characters of the province; but for a hundred years or more, he has now been buried in oblivion."

"For example, I once mentioned John Quincy to a lifelong resident, a man of affairs and influence in the town. The response was: 'John Quincy? John Quincy? I never heard of him before!' Another in the group then exclaimed: 'You mean John Quincy Adams, don't you?'"

John Quincy was born in Boston. His father, Daniel, died when he was a year old and his widowed mother, Anna, married the Rev. Moses Fiske, minister of the First Parish Church in Braintree.

He graduated from Harvard in 1708, obtained a master's degree in 1711 and inherited, through his mother, a good-sized farm in Mount Wollaston and lived there for the rest of his life.

John Quincy's rise in public life was meteoric.

He married Elizabeth Norton, the daughter of a Hingham minister, in 1715 and was named justice of the peace the same year, moderator of the town meeting a year later and began 22 years of service in the House a year after that. He was Speaker of the House for 12 years, starting in 1729.

In 1741, he was manipulated out of his posts as commander of the Suffolk militia regiment by a wealthy Boston lawyer named Joseph Gooch, who is described by some as an "opportunist," and by others as an "unsavory demagogue."

Gooch tried and failed to launch a legal and political career in Boston so he renounced his old home town and retreated to Old Braintree where he rented a house, joined the church — he pledged to build a new steeple — and set about ingratiating himself to the populace in order to advance his political and military career.

"It was at this time," wrote President John Adams himself, "the corrupt practice of treating, as they called it, at training and at elections was introduced, which so long prevailed in the town of Braintree."

In other words, beer and cider, supplied by Gooch, flowed freely on the training field and, in the taverns, he was always around to buy a round in the name of good fellowship. The strategy prevailed and Quincy was dismissed as militia commander.

His banishment was short-lived, however.

"Application was made to all the captains, lieutenants and ensigns . . . to see if they would accept commissions under Colonel Gooch," wrote Adams.

"The then present officers . . . rejected the proposition with scorn. My father was among them. He was offered a captain's commission. He spurned the offer with disdain; would serve in the militia under no colonel but Quincy."

All of which demoralized the people of Braintree and they turned Gooch out at the first opportunity, "which so enraged him that he swore he would no longer live in Braintree, renounced the church, refused to build their steeple, built himself a house on Milton Hill, and there passed the remainder of his days."

Quincy's reputation was such that he was named by the legislature to be trustee of the funds of the Ponkapoag Indians, survivors of a devastating plague. He held the post for 20 years at the insistence of the Indians themselves.

He befriended the Indians and they visited his Mount Wollaston estate frequently to be entertained with beer and cider. Indians camped near his home during fishing season, sometimes remaining for weeks.

He quit as trustee of the Ponkapoags, who lived in what is now Stoughton, because, as his report stated, "several of the Indians who survive are aged and infirm and so unable to come to your Memorialist for supplies as formerly, by reason of their distance from him."

Whenever there was a civic job to be done, it was the practice of the people of Old Braintree to appoint Col. John Quincy to do it. Thus it was that he was called on to chair the committee that first recommended the North Precinct become a separate town. That was in 1728.

It took 64 years but finally it was done and, when it was, they named it for John Quincy.

QUINCY RECYCLING PROGRAM PAYS OFF

Quincy's recycling program and leaf composting programs are great for several reasons. First of all, recycling and composting preserve precious natural resources.

Second, several recyclable items and yardwaste are now banned by state law from Massachusetts landfills and incinerators.

Third, every ton we recycle or compost saves the city $53.00. That's how much the city pays Browning-Ferris Industries (BFI) per ton for trash disposal.

Fourth, leaves now picked up by the DPW during weekly curbside collections are composted and used for community improvements.

In between the curbside yardwaste collections, residents are able to drop off grass clippings, leaves, branches or shrubs to the DPW back yard Monday through Saturday from 7am to 3pm. Proof of residency is required (driver's license).

Fifth, Quincy's contract with BFI contains an $8 per ton credit for all paper collected. An average savings of $50,000 annually is realized by taxpayers, as the credit is deducted right off the BFI bill on a monthly basis. Also, the DPW participates in a grant program that pays $10 per ton for every ton of recycling documented, resulting in revenue each year for the City to reinvest in recycling or environmental projects in the community and through our schools. When you divert recyclable items and yardwaste from the solid waste stream, you save $53 per ton in disposal fees for every ton diverted.

To take advantage of all these benefits, Quincy residents are strongly encouraged to participate in the city's recycling program and yardwaste program. Please do what you can for the environment and to save Quincy a great amount of money. For more information about the Quincy recycling program, please call the 24-hour Recycling Hotline 770-BINS.

A Third Generation Continues Our Traditions.

Quincy has changed a great deal since Sweeney Funeral Home was established in 1917. But, it's nice to know some things will never change. Like the observance of traditional values and customs.

At Sweeney Funeral Homes, older residents are quick to notice the subtle reminders of yesteryear, such as the grey gloves our funeral director still wears. Like the characteristic top hat and tails that our founder, Dennis Sweeney, wore over 30 years ago, they reflect our Tradition. One that has been built on a dignified and instinctive concern for the city's bereaved families for three generations.

Today, our founder's grand-nephew, Dennis S. Sweeney has continued the family's philosophy of maintaining a beautiful, home-like atmosphere.

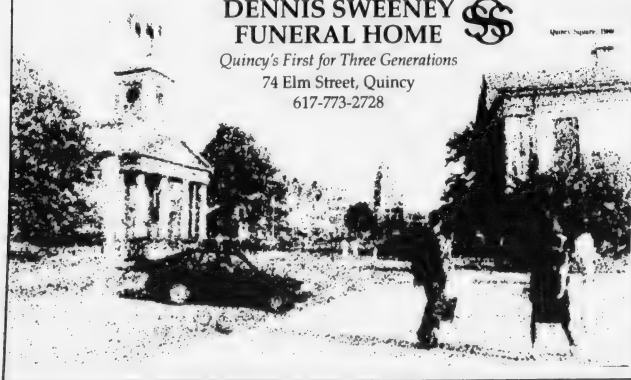

And like his namesake, who started pre-arrangements in the 1940s, Dennis believes in helping residents to plan for the future. Pre-planning means that this financial decision is not left for a family to decide while they are attempting to cope with a major personal loss. It's a difficult time, a time when family members are least able to make the wisest choice.

Sweeney Funeral Homes has been helping South Shore residents with difficult decisions for over 70 years. Call Dennis Sweeney at (617) 773-2728 for a free consultation. There's no time like the present.

First Iron Works

Steel Industry Born Here In 1644

It failed after nine years of effort and since failure was anathema in a growing America, perhaps that is why the site and even the memory of the first commercial iron blast furnace in the United States was lost for so long.

It flourished, if that is the word, from 1644 to 1653 on the banks of the Mount Wollaston River in a section of Old Braintree called "the Woods." It left its name on the river, now Furnace Brook in West Quincy.

Iron was an important commodity in Colonial Massachusetts, particularly for nails and pots and pans. Unfortunately, iron utensils had to be imported from England, a costly process for the pennywise colonists.

With this in mind, John Winthrop Jr., son of the governor of the Massachusetts Bay Colony (Did someone cry nepotism?), went to London and formed the "Company of Undertakers for the Ironworks in New England." He, of course, became the local agent.

The Company gave Winthrop a thousand pounds of capital and a work crew of indentured servants, many of whom ran away when they heard they were going to the wilds of America. Jail was better than that!

When, after a search from Maine to Plymouth, he decided to locate in Quincy, Winthrop was also granted 3,000 acres of land, with subsidiary land rights elsewhere in the colony, and a 21-year monopoly.

The operation was deemed of such importance that the iron workers were given exemption from militia duty, this at a time when war was imminent with the Narragansett Indians and with Ninigret, the sachem of the Niantics.

The first iron was turned out in 1644, but young Winthrop was fired the next year to be succeeded by Richard Leader. It is interesting to note that one of America's earliest magnates toiled for a salary of 100 pounds a year.

The ore from which iron was blasted on the banks of Furnace Brook came from the swamps and bogs. It was not a high quality product. Water power from a dam thrown across the brook was inadequate. Quincy iron ore proved to be more expensive than the imported kind.

The Company of Undertakers appealed for fresh money in 1646 and apparently there were enough investors ready to send good money after bad because the furnace was still in operation in 1650 when the Scotch Prisoners arrived.

The Scots were rugged Highlanders, soldiers in the army of the future King Charles II, who were captured in the Battle of Dunbar. They suffered the fate common to most 17th Century prisoners of war.

Cromwell shipped 272 of them to New England, cheap labor in an effort to make Quincy's iron works a paying proposition. It didn't work. The Company of Undertakers went bankrupt in 1653 and "the Woods" went back to the bear and the deer.

Meanwhile, with the same Richard Leader as agent, construction began on a second iron works in Saugus on the North Shore of Boston in 1646. When it was completed in 1650 it was recognized as the first integrated iron industry in America.

The remains of the John Winthrop Jr. Blast Furnace are located in Hall Cemetery on Crescent Street, West Quincy. The site is open free to the public.

A Third Generation Continues Our Traditions.

Quincy has changed a great deal since Sweeney Funeral Home was established in 1917. But, it's nice to know some things will never change. Like the observance of traditional values and customs.

At Sweeney Funeral Homes, older residents are quick to notice the subtle reminders of yesteryear, such as the grey gloves our funeral director still wears. Like the characteristic top hat and tails that our founder, Dennis Sweeney, wore over 30 years ago, they reflect our Tradition. One that has been built on a dignified and instinctive concern for the city's bereaved families for three generations.

Today, our founder's grand-nephew, Dennis S. Sweeney has continued the family's philosophy of maintaining a beautiful, home-like atmosphere.

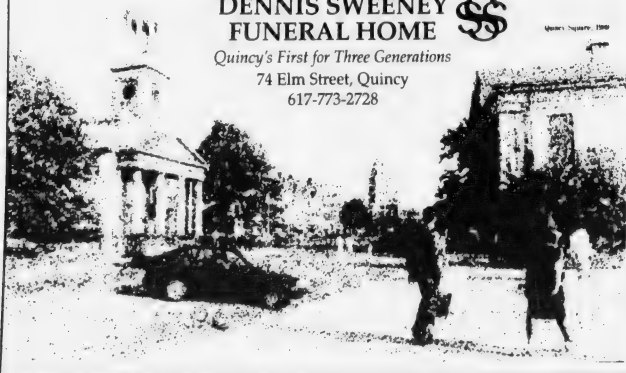

And like his namesake, who started pre-arrangements in the 1940s, Dennis believes in helping residents to plan for the future. Pre-planning means that this financial decision is not left for a family to decide while they are attempting to cope with a major personal loss. It's a difficult time, a time when family members are least able to make the wisest choice.

Sweeney Funeral Homes has been helping South Shore residents with difficult decisions for over 70 years. Call Dennis Sweeney at (617) 773-2728 for a free consultation. There's no time like the present.

Until Myles Standish Broke It Up Thomas Morton Had Merry Time At Merrymount

It was a strange tableau that took place that May day in 1627 on the hill overlooking Boston Bay in a land where the godly Pilgrims ruled.

There were the English adventurers (don't ever call them colonists) from across the sea and the local Indians, or what was left of them after a visit from the plague, curious to witness this strange white man's way.

Together they stripped an 80-foot pine tree of its bark, hauled it to the top of the hill, attached a rack of buck's horns to its peak and raised it on the hill which was called Ma-Re-Mount (hill by the sea) or more commonly Merrymount.

Then they broke out the beer and cider and, Englishman and Indian together, they danced around their Maypole in a hedonistic ritual that was guaranteed to leave the Pilgrims, 40 miles away in Plymouth, aghast.

"Drinke and be merry, merry, merry boyes," wrote their leader. "Let all your delight be in hymen's joyes . . . Uncover thy head, and feare no harme, for here's good liquor to keep it warm."

"Lasses in beaver coats come away. Ye shall be welcome to us night and day."

The leader was the infamous Morton of Merrymount.

Thomas Morton of Clifford's Inn, Gent., as he signed himself, first arrived in the area that became known as Old Braintree and later Quincy in 1622 as secretary to Andrew Weston, founder of the Wessagusset colony in nearby Weymouth.

The Wessagusset colony did not survive but Morton, a lawyer and sportsman as well as a merrymaker, could not forget the clear streams that teemed with fish and the forests that abounded with game in the new land.

He was back again in 1625 as a minor partner in a trading venture led by a Captain Wollaston, a man so obscure that his first name has been lost to 325 years of history, although modern research has indicated it was probably Richard.

Captain Wollaston was so disappointed by the lack of business opportunity in New England that he packed up his partners and most of their indentured servants and left for greener fields in Virginia, leaving a Lieutenant Fitcher in charge.

Morton stayed behind, too, and it wasn't long before Fitcher was ousted and Morton, a man who was described by the Pilgrim's Governor William Bradford as a man with "more craft than honesty," became The Man, and immediately proclaimed himself "Lord of Misrule."

In the words of Governor Bradford, he maintained "a school of atheism," his people spent their time "quaffing and drinking — in great excess, and they were 'inviting Indian women for their consorts, dancing and frisking together — and worst practices.'"

And, worst of all, Morton and his men were trading guns and rum to the Indians in exchange for pelts and were training the natives in the use of firearms so they could hunt for more pelts, a move that frightened the wits out of the Pilgrims.

Thus it was that in the spring of 1628, Captain Myles Standish — whom Morton derided as "Captain Shrimpe" — and an army of eight men were dispatched to Merrymount to solve the problem once and for all. It turned out to be an easy task.

Morton knew they were coming and prepared to resist. But the night-long preparations soon turned into a party and, when Standish and his soldiers arrived at dawn, the defenders of Merrymount were too drunk to resist and surrendered without firing a shot.

Morton was arrested and taken to Plymouth where Standish wanted him hanged. But gentler heads prevailed and he was put aboard a ship for England, an action that so enraged the captain that he had to be restrained.

Back in London, Morton was charged with disturbing the safety of the Plymouth colony but the charges were dropped when he presented himself to the Crown as a good Anglican who was persecuted by those dissenters from Plymouth.

The trading post at Merrymount was allowed to remain but, in 1629, a sterner opponent arrived on the scene in John Endicott and the Puritans, who established the Massachusetts Bay Colony in Boston, a scant 10 miles from the hill beside the bay.

Endicott ordered Morton's Maypole cut down, which it was, and the name of his trading post changed from Merrymount to Mount Dagon after the Biblical sea god of the Philistines, which it wasn't.

Morton's brief episode of saturnalia is recalled today in a section of Quincy and a park called Merrymount.

Anne Hutchinson, Husband Spent Summers, Weekends Here

In a day when the shortest of journeys was measured in hours, the North Precinct of Old Braintree, now Quincy, was regarded by many Bostonians as a place of refuge from the cares of the big town.

Such a pair was William Hutchinson and his wife, Anne, who made their home in an aristocratic section of Boston and spent weekends and summers in their country estate in Mount Wollaston.

Anne Hutchinson was not your prototype colonial wife.

She held weekly meetings in her Boston home, at which she openly criticized the sermons delivered on the previous Sunday by Boston's ministers, notably the Rev. John Wilson of her church.

Her theology was more personal, more liberal than the fire and brimstone preached by the establishment ministers, who were caught up in the strict Calvinism of the day.

Soon her "congregation" included more than 80 women and men started coming, too, a development that alarmed the established churchmen of the colony.

A contemporary described her unflatteringly as "a woman of haughty and fierce carriage, of a nimble wit and active spirit, a very voluble tongue, more bold than a man . . ."

As her criticisms became sharper and she began walking out on sermons with which she disagreed, it was clear that something had to be done and done quickly.

Anne was brought to trial before the General Court of Massachusetts and convicted of heresy, a woman "not fit for our society," The Rev. Wilson pronounced her "delivered up to Satan."

After a farewell visit to her summer home in Mount Wollaston, she and her children were banished from the Massachusetts Bay Colony to Rhode Island and later to Pennsylvania, where she was slain by Indians.

Quincy's Granite Was Famed The World Over

They're just holes in the ground now, attractive and perilous nuisances that, over the years, have filled with water and lured swimmers to their dooms, unaware of the dangers that lie in the cool green depths.

But there was a time, more than 100 years ago, when the Quincy granite quarries swarmed with workmen hacking out stone that was sought as prime building material around the world.

Like Topsy, the granite industry in Quincy "just grewed."

The earliest settlers used the surface boulders found on the North and South Commons to build the foundations of their homes and the fences that separated them from their neighbors.

At the industry's height in the late 1800s, there were more than 30 operating quarries and in one of them, Jonathan Swingle's quarry, men dug for granite at a depth of 345 feet below the surface.

The first known use of Quincy granite as a building material was the town's second meeting house in 1666, a scant 41 years after the first settlement at Mount Wollaston.

The stone building served a dual purposes. Sometimes it was a church where the community worshipped; other times it served as a fort in case of an Indian attack.

Quarrying in general was in its infancy, an inexact science in those days.

The process of cutting a rock to size was simple — build a fire around it, then drop an iron ball or cold water on the rock, which would break at approximately the desired spot.

Later, the quarrymen used wooden wedges which expanded when wet to split the stone, then sledges and hammers introduced by German immigrants, finally iron wedges.

These were the methods used to obtain granite to build King's Chapel in Boston (1753), the State Prison in Charlestown (1815), the Dedham jail (1817) and St. Paul's Church in Boston (1820).

That was the situation when Solomon Willard decided to commemorate the Battle of Bunker Hill (actually Breed's Hill) by building a monument out of Quincy granite.

J.S. SWINGLE'S QUARRY,
W. QUINCY, MASS.

SWINGLE'S QUARRY in West Quincy, which eventually reached a depth of 345 feet below ground, was one of more than 30 in operation at the height of the Quincy granite boom some 100 years ago.

(From the Collection of Tom Galvin)

The problem was that no one had ever built with such large pieces of stone before and no one knew how to quarry it or work it or transport it to the building location.

Willard, who quit his job as an architect and moved to Quincy to direct quarrying operations for the Bunker Hill Monument, had to devise new methods for obtaining and working the stone.

The new method of transportation, devised by Gridley Bryant, involved the construction of the first commercial railroad in the United States to carry stone from the quarry to the Neponset River.

Willard's inventions and new methods inaugurated what is known as "the Stone Age" of American architecture and the Quincy granite industry flourished along with it.

Quincy granite, known for its durability and its ability to take a high polish, was shipped all over the world under the trade names "Quincy Light," "Quincy Dark," and "Quincy Extra Dark."

The demise of the granite industry started after World War I when lighter and more malleable building materials were developed with which to construct stronger and less costly buildings.

The last operating quarry, Swingle's, went out of business in 1963.

Neighbors Had A Nickname Duchess Of Windsor A Former Resident

No, the Duchess of Windsor was not a Quincy girl but she lived here for a time long before King Edward VIII gave up the British throne "for the woman I love."

She lived in Wollaston in 1917 while she was married to her first husband, a young lieutenant stationed at a Naval air school in Squantum, which later became the Squantum Naval Air Station.

The Massachusetts Naval Militia maintained a training field in what is now the Marina Bay area which was taken over by the First Naval District as a school to train young aviators to fly the new-fangled airplanes.

Assigned as head of the school was Lt. Earle W. Spencer.

He was married to the former Wallis Warfield, the Baltimore belle who later, as a twice-divorced woman, became the Duchess of Windsor when she wed the king who abdicated his throne for her love.

The match touched off a crisis in English royalty. Some thought the king should be allowed to marry her and keep his title as long as she did not become queen. But stronger opposition prevailed and he stepped down.

They were married on June 3, 1937, While living in Quincy, Mr. and Mrs.

DUCHESS OF WINDSOR

Spencer resided in a second floor apartment on Davis Street in Wollaston.

Legend has it that her neighbors in 1917 thought she was somewhat stuck up and snobbish.

In fact, they nicknamed her "the Duchess."

USS SALEM

Centerpiece Of U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum

USS Salem: Newest Tourist Attraction

The heavy cruiser USS Salem, ordered during World War II but built after hostilities had ceased at Bethlehem's Fore River Shipyard, is Quincy's newest attraction for visitors and residents alike.

Launched in 1947 and commissioned two years later, she became the flagship of the U. S. Navy's Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean during the Cold War years in the 1950s.

At more 700 feet in length and carrying the heaviest automatic main battery guns in any warship of any navy, she was a bulwark of democracy in the Mediterranean and the Caribbean Seas.

Although she never faced enemy action, Salem earned the praise of the king and queen of Greece for its work as the first ship on the scene after an earthquake ravaged the Greek islands.

And she was on hand at the Suez Canal when fighting broke out between Israel and Egypt to assure the safe passage of American and other ships through the canal.

She carried a crew of more than 1,600 men and moved at a cruising speed of 35 knots. She was on active duty for 10 years from commissioning May 14, 1949 to decommissioning Jan. 30, 1959.

Today, visitors can tour the Main Deck, Number 3 Turret, the Admiral's and Captain's Bridges, and other sources of interest.

Guided tours by today's uniformed crew will take guests through the Second Deck where they can see how the Salem's crew lived and worked.

Of special note are the barber shop, where visitors can actually get a haircut when the barber is on duty and the machine shops where the actual work is done to restore the ship.

Real sailors will want to see the CIC (Combat Information Center), the nerve center of the ship and her berthing compartments, where sailors and Marines lived their lives.

A well-stocked Museum Shop is on board in the ship's store where souvenirs and gifts as well as actual artifacts can be purchased.

The museum's archives are open for research and viewing its extensive collection of armaments, uniforms, and memorabilia.

The USS Salem and its Naval Shipbuilding Museum are located at the Fore River Shipyard in Quincy Point. (Access is the same as the Harbor Express boat). Hours of operation (escorted and self-guided tours): Summer: Open daily May through September, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Winter: Saturday and Sunday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission is $6 for adults, $2 for senior citizens and children 4-12 years old. Children under age 4 are admitted free of charge. Active military adults with ID cards are also admitted free. Flat-heeled shoes or sneakers are recommended. Parking is free. The museum features a military archive, model shop and exhibits on the USS Salem, the USS St. Paul, the USS Newport News and the USS Quincy, with an exhibit on the USS Boston due this summer.

Clipper Ships From Quincy

Some of the finest specimens of the famed clipper ships, sailing vessels that carried cargoes to a from China at high speeds, were launched and fitted in Quincy.

The last was the "Red Cloud," launched Nov. 24, 1977, from the shipyard of Deacon George Thomas at Granite Wharf in Quincy Point where Twin Rivers Technology is located today.

World War II Naval Heroes Nimitz, Burke Had Local Connection

Long before they became famous as Naval heroes of World War II, Chester Nimitz and Arleigh Burke were briefly residents of Quincy.

Fleet Admiral Nimitz, who directed U.S. Naval operations against the Japanese in the Pacific, even married a Quincy girl while waiting for a submarine to which he had been assigned to be outfitted at the Fore River Shipyard in 1913.

Burke, nicknamed '31 knot Burke' as the Navy's most celebrated destroyer squadron commander, lived in Squantum while his 1,500-ton destroyer USS Craven was being outfitted in the 1930s.

Nimitz and Catherine Vance Freeman were wed April 9, 1913 at her family's home at 40 Grand View Ave., Wollaston. Her father, Richard, was a former city council president.

Rev. Carl G. Horst, minister of the Wollaston Unitarian Church on Winthrop Avenue, performed the ceremony. The bride was 21 and the groom 28 on the day he later recalled as "the happiest day of my life."

CHESTER NIMITZ

He was aboard the USS Missouri with General Douglas MacArthur as a signer for the United States in the Japanese surrender ceremonies in Tokyo Bay Sept. 1, 1945.

He died in February, 1966, after suffering a stroke just before his 81st birthday. His wife, Catherine, was at his bedside.

Burke was an inspector at a naval gun factory in Washington when World War II broke out. He quickly applied for sea duty but his request was not granted until 1943, when he was sent to command destroyers in the Solomons.

He earned the nickname "31 Knot Burke" from Admiral William "Bull" Halsey for his exploits in the Solomons as commander of Squadron 23, a pack of eight destroyers whose high-speed torpedo attacks devastated Japanese warships.

"Stand aside! Stand aside! I'm coming through at 31 knots," Burke radioed to darkened American troop transports as he began his attacks.

In 22 engagements in four months, Burke's squadron was credited with sinking one cruiser, nine destroyers, one submarine and nine smaller vessels as well as downing some 30 Japanese airplanes.

Burke was named Chief of Naval Operations over 92 more senior officers by President Eisenhower in 1955 and was offered a fourth two-year term by President Kennedy in 1961 but chose to retire instead. He died in 1996 at the age of 94.

Germantown Glass Works

The Germantown section of Quincy was named for the German workers who were imported to work in a glass factory founded by Joseph Crelius in 1750 and operated by Joseph Palmer.

The glass works was struck by lightning and destroyed five years later after turning out light green, dark green and black bottles as well as the window glass for King's Chapel in Boston.

Only two complete bottles made of Quincy glass are known to survive in the possession of the Quincy Historical Society.

'First Ladies Of The Skies' Amelia Earhart, Harriet Quimby Had Quincy Ties

Abigail Adams is not Quincy's only "First Lady." The city has claim to two "first ladies" of the skies, Amelia Earhart and Harriet Quimby.

Earhart, then country's most famous aviatrix who disappeared in the Pacific on an around-the-world flight in 1937, learned to fly at Dennison Airport in North Quincy in the 1920s.

Quimby, although not as well-known, actually was the first woman to earn a pilot's license. She flew out of the Harvard Aviation Field on East Squantum Street and died in a tragic Aeromeet crash.

Earhart, though a resident of Medford at the time, was one of five financial backers of the Dennison Airport established on a nine-acre marshland tract at Quincy Shore Drive and East Squantum Street.

The Beechwood Community Life Center is now located on part of the site across from historic Moswetuset Hummock where the Moswetuset Indians settled and from which the name Massachusetts is derived.

Earhart was one of the passengers on the first official flight from the airport Sept. 3, 1927. She must have liked it because a short while later she started taking flying lessons at Dennison.

She later bought a Fokker monoplane from Commander Richard E. Byrd, who would become the famed North Pole explorer. She tested the plane at Dennison and flew it across the Atlantic Ocean, the first woman to accomplish the feat.

Byrd was stationed at the Squantum

Naval Air Station which adjoined Dennison Airport in what is now the Marina Bay area of Squantum.

Quincy's first Aeromeet was, held in 1910, marked the beginning of New England's aviation history. The 1910 meet coincided with the country's first air show held in California. Other Quincy meets followed in 1911 and 1912.

Harriet Quimby, the first woman to fly the English Channel in 1911, came to Squantum to compete in the third Aeromeet in 1912.

On July 1, she took off from the Harvard Aviation Field for a 27-mile demonstration flight out to Boston Light. As her Bleriot turned around the Light and headed back, the plane nosed down and plummeted into Dorchester Bay.

As the horrified crowd of 5,000 watched, Quimby's passenger, William Willard, manager of the Aeromeet, fell from the plane into the mudflats. Harriet followed. The plane nosed over on impact. It was undamaged. Both Quimby and Willard died.

Fifteen years later, in 1927, the Dennison Airport, Quincy's first and only commercial airport was founded with two 1,800-foot landing strips. It had a brief life span of 14 years on marshland leased from the U.S. government by Harold T. Dennison, a Quincy architect.

The airport's stucco hangar and office building became a landmark until it closed in 1941. It is now the site of the Aviation History Info Center at Beechwood on the Bay.

HARRIET QUIMBY

AMELIA EARHART

In an era when most women were not employed or career-oriented, Earhart and Quimby were unique.

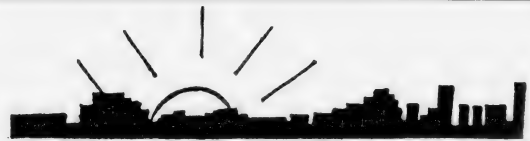

Both were educated, employed and self-sufficient with multiple community, career and public roles. Neither were suffragettes or active feminists, but both were gifted, courageous and tireless women — promoting and demonstrating equal rights for women. Both were published journalists and photographers. Both met untimely and tragic deaths.

The historical significance of the Squantum site has prompted study, information gathering, research and collections of early aviation photographs and artifacts. Quincy's Aviation History Info Center evolved from three years of community meetings and help from aviation history buffs, journalists, historians and interested folks from the community.

BEAUTIFUL VIEW of Boston's skyline is from Squaw Rock area of Squantum. At right is the Myles Standish Cairn erected in 1895 to commemorate his visit here Sept. 30, 1621—the first recorded visit of white men to this locality. He was guided across the baby by Tisquantum or Squanto who became the early settlers' friend and benefactor. Squantum was named after him.

STONE LIBRARY, the oldest Presidential library in the nation, is located on the property of the Adams National Historic Site "Old House" at 135 Adams St. Charles Francis Adams had it built in 1870 to posthumously honor the wish of his father, John Quincy Adams, who died in 1848. The building holds about 13,000 volumes that belonged to John Adams, John Quincy Adams and other family members.

Adams' Crucial Nominations

John Adams, the farmer's son from Old Braintree, not only had a hand in writing the U. S. Constitution, but he made two nominations to posts that proved to be critical to the future of the new republic.

As a member of the Continental Congress, he eschewed intercolonial rivalries and nominated George Washington, a Virginia planter, as commander in chief of the Continental army.

As president, he nominated John Marshall as chief justice of the Supreme Court, where he served 34 years and established the basic principle that the court can invalidate an act of Congress.

The Quincy Presidential Trail

The Adams Birthplaces are an important stop on the newly designated Quincy Presidential Trail, a 10.5 mile route that takes the visitor through the 17th and 18th Century locales associated with the lives of the Adams family.

Historic sites along the trail include the Adams Mansion, Dorothy Quincy Homestead, Adams Academy, First Parish Church, Adams Crypt, City Hall, Hancock Cemetery, the Adams Birthplaces, Abigail Adams Cairn, First Commercial Railroad, First Ironworks, Col. Josiah Quincy House and Moswetuset Hummock, most of which are described in this supplement.

The Quincy Presidential Trail is a National Recreation Trail, the seventh in the state of Massachusetts and the 625th in the nation.

John Adams And Sons

Politics, war, and sons were on John Adams' mind in a letter written to his wife, Abigail Adams, in 1780:

"I must study politics and war, that my sons may have liberty to study mathematics and philosophy.

"My sons ought to study mathematics and philosophy, geography, natural history and naval architecture, navigation, commerce and agriculture, in order to give their sons a right to study painting, poetry, music, architecture, statuary, tapestry and porcelain."

Quincy Adams Yacht Club

The Fore River Shipyard was not the only shipbuilding facility in Quincy that helped to win World War II.

There was also the Quincy Adams Yacht Yard on the Town River in Germantown, which turned from building private yachts when war broke out to constructing wooden-hulled submarine chasers.

At one time, the yacht yard was turning out SC-boats at a rate of two a month to help destroy the German U-boat menace and win the Battle of the North Atlantic and preserve the supply line to Britain.

The Yard won the coveted Navy "E" for excellence six times.

Battleship Survived Pearl Harbor Story Of Quincy-Built USS Nevada Says It All

The story of the battleship USS Nevada says it all.

Launched in 1914 at the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation's Quincy yard and commissioned in 1916, Nevada survived the Dec. 7, 1941, attack on Pearl Harbor, the only battleship able to get underway while Japanese bombs were raining down.

She was on hand to support the D-Day landings in Normandy and the invasions of Iwo Jima and Okinawa in the Pacific. She withstood two atomic bomb blasts at Bikini Atoll, shells from the 16-inch guns of the battleship Iowa and repeated attacks by Navy dive bombers before torpedoes finally sent her to the bottom.

She was, in a phrase, Quincy-built at the Fore River Shipyard, which meant quality to the U.S. Navy in World War II.

In the three years that commenced with Dec. 7, 1941, the Bethlehem Steel Company's Quincy Yard built a total of 227 ships of all types and sizes for the Navy and, on Jan. 15, 1943, peak employment at the Yard was 32,000 men and women, the size of a small city, working around the clock. The yearly gross payroll was $110 million.

The Yard built an aircraft carrier in 14 months and 15 days, a heavy cruiser in 20 months and 15 days and a light cruiser in 16 months and 15 days. Three ships, the light cruiser USS Pensacola and two LSTs, were delivered on the same day, June 8, 1944. The Hingham Annex built a destroyer, HMS Reynolds, from keel-laying to launch in 24 1/2 working days.

This in response to Admiral Ernest J. King's plea in the summer of 1941 — "You build 'em and we'll fight 'em!"

Actually, Quincy's famed Fore River Shipyard got its start two miles up river in East Braintree when Thomas A. Watson, the subject of Alexander Graham Bell's first telephone message, "Mr. Watson. Come here. I want you," started a small machine shop in 1884.

Watson took on a partner, Frank O. Wellington, and the little shop became the Fore River Engine Company. Then they started building torpedo boat destroyers for the U.S. government. When they landed a contract to build the 3,100-ton cruiser Des Moines, it was apparent the East Braintree yard was too small.

In 1900, the operation was moved down river to Quincy and, within a year, the Fore River Ship and Engine Company was able to accept contracts to build the 15,000-ton battleships Rhode Island and Jew Jersey. The Quincy Yard was on its way to becoming what was called "The World's Greatest Shipyard in World War II."

The Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation bought the company in 1904 and, in turn, that corporation was swallowed up by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation in 1913. Bethlehem was the owner during the great years of World War II.

The Yard later was sold to General Dynamics and went out of business in the 1980s — gone but not forgotten.

Over 78,000 Visitors So Far, McCullough Book Credited City Seeing A Record Pace Tourism Season

By TOM HENSHAW

These are exciting times for the keepers of the long-ignored Adams' family flame.

"You should be here to experience it," said Marianne Peak, the superintendent of the Adams National Historical Park. "As of the Fourth of July, we've had 78,154 visitors. We had about 85,000 all last year."

The excitement has collateral effects on Quincy, too.

"I've seen more tourists than ever," said Joanne Dondero, proprietor of Abigail's Crossing, a gift shop across Temple Street from historic United First Parish Church. "All of us can benefit from more business."

And all because of a book, a popular biography of Quincy's own John Adams, the second president of the United States, by the historian David McCullough.

"People find the book mesmerizing," said Dondero, whose shop has the book on sale. "They have to come and see for themselves."

"The McCullough book has pushed John Adams to the forefront nationally for the first time," said Peak. "Stallers who have been here a long time say the past weekend was the busiest they can remember."

Meanwhile, a bill to create a memorial to John Adams and his family in Washington passed the House of Representatives after an hour of laudatory debate less than two weeks after its committee hearing.

"That's lightning speed by Congressional standards," said Steve Schwadron, an aide to Congressman William Delahunt, who is one of the backers of the bill that is now awaiting Senate passage.

After the legislation gets through Congress and is signed into law by President Bush its momentum is expected to slow as the controversial elements of site and design selection and cost are debated.

In Quincy, the National Park Service maintains a trolley that makes the rounds of the Visitors' Center, the Adams Birthplaces and the Mansion every half hour. It has been overwhelmed, said Peak.

"The trolley has a capacity of 30 people," she said. "The other day we had 55 people on it. There wasn't even time for a lunch break. We had to make changes so we wouldn't have to turn people away."

"Fortunately, we got a grant from the Department of Transportation so that we can have three trolleys in service next year."

"We're very limited in staff, funding and services. We couldn't even get a tour participant inside the house for our Fourth of July ceremonies."

"I can look down from my office right now and see 20 people peering in the window and wondering where to go."

One place might be Craig's Cafe, 1354 Hancock St., where owner Craig

Speeding Cars Raise Fears On Sea Avenue

By CRAIG SALTERS

If Kerry McCarthy could talk to some of the drivers who pass by her family's residence on Sea Avenue on Great Hill in Houghs Neck, her message would be a simple one: please slow down.

"There's no reason people should be going down this street at 50 miles per hour," said McCarthy, who along with her mother Jayne Callahan requested more police presence on the steep road leading to the former Nut Island Treatment Plant, now home to walking paths and a much-used fishing pier. "Children should be able to go outside their own homes and play."

McCarthy said she has been discussing the problem of speeding cars with neighbors since recent "near misses" involving her own children, 11 year old Shauna and 23 month old Nicole, and that the problem has worsened in the summer months as the park has become a site for underage drinking.

McCarthy, who noted neighbors have effectively dissuaded her from the practicality of closing an old gate at the site, said she had no problem with the park itself, which is state property managed by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority

Board Says 'Yes' And 'No' On Extra Alcohol Hours

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Two Marina Bay establishments, Captain Fishbones and The Chantey asked the License Board Tuesday for an extension of premises to serve alcohol outside, but only one was successful.

Although Atty. Steve Colman asked for a full extension of their all alcoholic license to close at 1 a.m., Captain Fishbones was allowed to extend their hours until midnight on a motion by Fire Chief Thomas Gorman. However, when the Chantey asked for an extension from 10 p.m. to 11 p.m., no motion was made so no action was taken.

Abutters to the Chantey spoke of the noise and the proximity to the residents in the area being from 80 to 100 feet from the residents, while Fishbones is more than 1000 feet from the residents. Also of motorcycle revving their motors for ten minutes at a time, when a resident complained about their noise.

Atty. Dennis Harrington, representing The Chantey, said there had been no problems with the 30-day trial that the License Board gave the establishment on June 11.

In addressing the opposition from residents, who

Cities Administration Accomplishments Sheets To Open Campaign HQ Saturday

The grand opening of Mayor James Sheets' campaign headquarters, located at 1514 Hancock St., will take place Saturday from 10 a.m. until noon.

In a campaign letter dated June 27, Sheets highlighted the opening of his headquarters, which is located next to Pacini's Restaurant. He also touched upon both the accomplishments and unfinished business of his administration.

The letter, which was also accompanied by a bumper sticker, asked for support as Sheets makes his bid for an unprecedented seventh term as mayor of Quincy.

Sheets said the letter was mailed to roughly 2,000 to 3,000 people and was generated from a mailing list of those who have shown support for Sheets in the past.

In addition to announcing the Saturday opening of campaign headquarters, the letter also touted several accomplishments of the Sheets administration, including: the improvement and expansion of the city's park system; the improving health of Quincy Bay; the growth of tourism coupled with the recent opening of the 464 room Marriott Hotel; the expansion of the Community Policing program; the reduction of class sizes at the elementary and middle school levels of the Quincy public schools; and increased development at both the Crown Colony and State Street office complexes.

Commenting on the letter Tuesday, Sheets explained further that, first and foremost, he took pride in quality of life issues, specifically mentioning new soccer fields on Quarry St., the six new athletic fields to be constructed at Quarry Hills, the improving water quality of Wollaston Beach, and the reduction in city crime rates.

The June 27 letter, however, also stated: "Much still remains to be done. Our agenda is unfinished."

Specifically, Sheets told The Sun Tuesday, he was referring to: the building of a new Quincy High School and the conversion of the old QHS into Central Middle School, as well as other schoolwide repairs such as replacing the windows at Snug Harbor Elementary School; the $20 million proposed ramps at Crown Colony, which Sheets said were essential to further development of the office park; increased tourism efforts to take advantage of a new national awareness of the city; and increased economic development and job creation.

"We must continue to move forward as a full service community," said Sheets.

The mailing was paid for by the Committee to Re-Elect James Sheets.

BRIANNA ROY AND Nicholas Venturo had a good time at the Ward 2 Civic Association July 4th celebration at Fore River Field.

Stresses Commitment, Vision Toward Future

Phelan Proposes Academic Changes For City's Schools

Math and literacy intervention, mentoring for students and newly hired teachers, and a systematic plan for the upgrading and maintenance of computers and state-of-the-art technology are among the changes mayoral candidate William J. Phelan proposes for the Quincy public schools.

"The Quincy school system is about to embark on a new beginning," said Phelan.

"With the selection of a new superintendent, the hiring of 35 new teachers this year, the expected retirement of 60 experienced teachers next year, the construction of a new high school, and the renovation and restructuring of two middle schools, the Quincy school system is at a crossroads."

"We must seize the moment with a commitment and a vision toward the future." Highlights of Phelan's proposal include:

- Establishing a new teacher mentoring program;
- Providing increased professional development opportunities for teachers and staff;

- Providing early intervention with math and literacy programs;

- Offering more middle

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On July 13, 1793, Jean Paul Marat, one of the most outspoken leaders of the French Revolution, is stabbed to death in his bath by Charlotte Corday, a Royalist sympathizer. He died almost immediately, and Corday waited calmly for the police to come and arrest her. She was guillotined four days later.

• On July 12, 1862, President Abraham Lincoln signs into law a measure calling for the awarding of a U.S. Army medal of honor. Since its creation, almost 3,400 men and one woman have received the Medal of Honor for heroic actions in U.S. military conflict.

• On July 14, 1881, on a ranch near old Fort Sumner, N.M., the infamous Western outlaw known as "Billy the Kid" is shot to death by Pat Garrett, the sheriff of Lincoln County. "Billy the Kid" was 21 years old.

• On July 11, 1979, parts of Skylab, America's first space station, come crashing down on Australia and into the Indian Ocean five years after the last manned Skylab mission ended. No one was recorded injured.

Looking At Council At-Large History

This will be the first preliminary election for city councillor at-large in 20 years.

And, for this year's eight candidates you might say there is some good news -- and some bad. Depending on how they look at past elections.

Frank McCauley, who is one of those candidates but is also recognized as the city's political historian, has come up with some interesting facts and figures covering 40 years. Have a look:

Of the 21 city elections from 1959 to 1999, only nine of them had preliminary (primary) contests for councillor at-large. Twelve did not.

The good news: Whoever finishes in the fourth spot in this year's preliminary should take heart.

In the six of those preliminaries, the fourth place finisher went on to win one of the three seats in the final election.

In four of the six, however, it happened to be the same man: John Quinn.

He went from fourth to third place winner in 1959 and 1963, to first in 1967 and to second in 1977.

George McDonald shot up from fourth in the 1969 preliminary to first in the final.

And in 1975, Paul Harold jumped from fourth in the preliminary to a second place win in the final.

So, not finishing in the top three spots in the preliminary doesn't mean it's all over.

Now, the bad news. From 1959 to 1999, 52 councillor at-large incumbents were candidates for re-election. Only four of them were defeated. That's a 92.3 winning percentage for them.

The first place finisher in the preliminary has never lost in the final election.

But the second place preliminary winner has been a loser twice in the final election. Both times it was Joseph Brett who fell to fourth place in 1959 and fifth in 1977.

The only four of the 52 council at-large incumbents to lose bids for re-election were Brett (1959), Carl Anderson (1963), David McIntosh (1965) and John Quinn in 1981, the last year there was a council at-large preliminary election.

Quinn, who had served 24 years as councillor at-large -- the longest in the city's history -- lost his bid for another term to Patricia Toland, only the third woman to be elected to the council. She edged him by 382 votes.

Quinn placed fifth in that year's preliminary but the comeback magic wasn't there for him that year.

This year's at-large field has two incumbents -- Tim Cahill and McCauley -- and six other contenders: Joseph Finn, John Keenan, Jimmy Liang, Brian McNamee, Anthony Siciliano and Denis Tardo.

With an open seat (Paul Harold's) to shoot for, incumbency may not be as great a factor as in past elections.

But maybe finishing fourth in the preliminary run-off could be.

MCCAULEY

QUINCY'S FATHER BILL has retired. But he hasn't retired.

Fr. William McCarthy has retired from St. John's Church where he was former pastor and had been serving part-time. But now he will be living on the Cape and assisting at Our Lady's Parish in Centerville.

It means he will no longer be at St. John's for daily Masses, weddings, baptisms and funerals.

But he will be making trips back to Quincy to assist at Father Bill's Place, the shelter for the homeless named in his honor. And on those days, he will stay overnight at St. John's Rectory.

He asked Fr. Peter Quinn, who succeeded him as pastor, not to have a farewell party for him.

But present and past parishioners, and friends will have a chance to wish him well April 7. That's when he will celebrate the 50th anniversary of his ordination at St. John's.

MCCARTHY

THE SIX CANDIDATES for the Ward 3 city council seat Pat McDermott is vacating won't have to worry about Ron Iacobucci getting into the race.

Iacobucci filed nomination papers for school committee this week. There had been speculation he might switch to the Ward 3 field.

YOU'RE A YOUNG old-timer if you remember when Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa used to walk through City Hall turning off lights in offices or rooms if no one was in them.

Della Chiesa, who served 12 years as mayor in the 1950s and 1960s (four under Plan E, eight under Plan A) was a fiscal conservative much like Frank McCauley. Tight with a buck--municipal or his own.

DELLA CHIESA

A BACKYARD COOKOUT fundraiser for Joe Finn, candidate for city councillor at-large, is set for tonight (Thursday) 6 to 9 p.m. at the home of Chris and Sue McCarthy, 119 Crabtree Rd., Squantum. Suggested donation, $50.

TOM TEHAN probably won't risk losing them on a slice or a hook but he now has what must be the fanciest golf balls at the Furnace Brook Golf Club.

Friends helped him celebrate his 65th birthday at a party at Marina Bay the other day. One of them, old pal Joe Fasci, came all the way from Granbury, Tex., where he now lives, to take part.

When they rolled out the birthday gifts, Joe had a few specials: Among them, three golf balls. One inscribed with George W. Bush's name and Texas star. Another with "The White House Golf Team." And the third, "Found in the bushes on the White House lawn." Fasci also gave him golf towels with Bush's autograph.

And topped it off with a passbook to Texas notarized by Fasci's daughter, Rev. Kathryn Fasci who also lives in Germany.

Tom and Joe go back some 43 years when they worked together at the Fore River shipyard and then had their own company, Ultrasonic Test Engineering, testing ship tanks and piping as well as nuclear power plants. They phased the company out in 1982.

They've remained close friends and get together for the Fore River "old timers" annual dinner.

Tom's a young looking 65. Must be all that golfing. (You should take it up, Joe.)

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1920's POSTCARD is entitled high tide at Wollaston Beach. The grocery store on the right was on the corner of Beach Street and the Boulevard. It later was Elsie's Cafe, and is now gone. The boardwalk to the Wollaston Yacht Club is on the left. The mouth of Sachem Brook is at the granite culvert. The brook's source is at the peat bogs in Montclair and at the time of this picture the brook was open from Hancock Street to here. Now it is enclosed, and a concrete outflow pipe extends a few hundred feet into the bay. The large house in the center was known as the Wollaston Inn.

Create A New Environment For Quincy High School

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am writing this letter not to criticize anybody's and everybody's effort to finalize a decision on the new Quincy High School. I am writing because I don't want to have said, "Why didn't I express my thoughts?" or hear people say to me, "You should have relayed your feelings."

During my almost 40 years in public education (one year in Boston, 10 years in Scituate High School and 28 years as Social Health Coordinator in Quincy), I experienced a great deal of exposure as to why children learn and what prevents students from advancing academically and socially.

If we achieve the model curriculum, the finest teachers and administrators, and the model for school construction, this will not guarantee successful students.

There are negative factors we cannot control. Barren families, physical and mental sickness and lack of alternative programs are just a few.

However, we do have control over the environment and the location of the school.

The present Quincy High School, housing approximately 1,300 students, was built many years ago (I think 100 years), and the area around the high school has changed.

I observed during my 28 years chasing delinquent students, strangers in the buildings (there are 41 egresses in the present school), doing drug investigations, breaking up gang-related fights, etc., that if only we could move this school someplace else.

The location of the existing Quincy High School is:

- Within 1,000 feet from the MBTA (I measured it).

- Located just over 1,000 feet from the central business district.

- The previous Coddington Elementary is now Quincy College.

- A very busy YMCA across the street.

- Treatment/Rehabilitation programs for adults within walking distance. (I discovered many addicts shooting up behind the Voc.)

- A very busy and beautiful library across the street.

I am not suggesting any of these facilities cause problems and I'm not recommending they move. I'm suggesting we create a new school with a different environment. The new area I would recommend is Pageant Field where the Park Department is presently located.

The new location would provide:

- A beautiful ocean view.

- A single entrance improving the safety/security for both students and faculty.

- Walking distance to the baseball and football practice fields (Coddington).

- An entirely new environment.

In addition, I would further recommend the Park Department take over the Quincy Vocational/Technical School.

Finally, I would recommend the school be designed not just for 1,400 students but with potential for expansion. I cannot predict, and history has shown us we really don't know what the school population will be in the year 2020.

I still think children are our precious item on this earth.

Delay Sought On Squantum Zoning

By PAUL HAROLD

Residents of Atlantic petitioned the Planning Board for a delay in the proposed rezoning of the Squantum Naval Air Station from Industry A and B to Industry A-1. Atty. Joseph McDonough, spokesman for the group, said there was insufficient notice given regarding the zoning change. He said residents needed more time to consider the ramifications of such a change.

Planning Board Chairman Walter Schmitz said re-zoning from Industry A and B to Industry A-1 would prevent the construction of any residential units at the naval site.

CHANGE IN QUARRY DUMPS

DPW Commissioner Charles Herbert announced that due to a smoldering fire at Ballou's Quarry, the city would use Fallon's Quarry across the street for dumping on a temporary basis.

Following the construction of a rubbish chute at Hitchcock's Quarry, all city rubbish would be disposed there and the Ballou and Fallon quarries would be closed and covered with fill.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED FOR OBSERVER CORPS

The Quincy branch of the Ground Observer Corps noted their third anniversary this week with a call for more volunteers. They were an offshoot of the aircraft warning system that operated during World War II.

The group operated out of the cupola at Quincy City Hospital, working eight hours a day, seven days a week. Walter Brown, head of the group, said observers were needed 24 hours a day, requiring a full compliment of 250 volunteers. Currently he said volunteers were coming from as far away as Melrose and Revere.

QUINCY-ISMS

Red Sox General Manager Joe Cronin made it official this week: Sept. 11 would be the day set aside to honor all-star Dick Donovan of Quincy. It would coincide with the last game against the White Sox for the season. Coordinating the event were city business and sports leaders including North Quincy pharmacist Jack Silverstein, NQHS baseball Coach Hal Forest, Frank Mullen, Wollaston Junior Legion Coach George McCall, and Frank Foy. . . Rep. William Jenness, City Manager Donald Blatt and QBRW President George Hodges were among the judges for the marine parade sponsored by the Race Week Committee. . . Rev. Alfred Minyard was installed as the new pastor for both the West Quincy Methodist Church and St. Paul's Methodist Church. . . George Denneen, Jr. of West Squantum St. was awarded the L. Grossman, Inc. scholarship. A graduate of NQHS, he was studying at Colby College. . . A son was born at Quincy City Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Murphy of Florence St. . . Joseph Harold of Riverside Ave. was elected secretary for the DAV state convention in Boston. Delegates from the Cavanagh chapter included George Tull, and Gerard White. . . Patsy Mariani, who worked 34 years at the Fore River shipyard, traveled to his birthplace, Torre de Passeri in Italy. . . A Wollaston man was arraigned at Quincy District Court for having lottery tickets in his possession. He was arrested at a Wollaston cafe in a raid run by Detective William Spencer, James Fay, Warren Corbett and John Fitzgerald. . . Boston Consolidated Gas opened a new appliance show room in the Granite Trust building. . . Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa met with Robert Hunter, president of the Hall Cemetery Association, to discuss the city take-over of the private cemetery. Governor Christian Herter signed legislation allowing for the city take-over which would also allow for the city to acquire and restore the colonial iron works, unearthed in 1953. . . Teenage record hops were held every Friday at Houghs Neck Congregational Church from 7-9:30 p.m. Anthony Lordi was master of ceremonies and disc jockey. . . Directors for the Finnish Temperance Union's camp included Mrs. Kusti Fagerlund, Mr. and Mrs. Toivo Tuori and Charles Ahola. . . Mrs. Whilhemina Harris, superintendent of the Adams National Site, noted visitors for the month of June numbered 2,148, an increase of more than 500 over last year. . . Dr. Thomas Quinn announced the opening of his new dentist office at 270 Quincy Ave. . . Civil Service reported all 10 applicants for the position of city wire inspector had failed the exam. The vacancy was created by the retirement of Frank Lints.

James McIntyre Memorial Scholarship Recipients Announced

The James R. McIntyre Memorial Committee announces this year's winners of the scholarships presented annually in the memory of the late Quincy mayor and state senator.

They are:

Jacqueline Suprey of Quincy, a graduate of Mt. St. Joseph's Academy, Brighton, who will be attending The College of the Holy Cross with the goal of becoming an attorney; and Patrick Delval, also of Quincy, a graduate of Quincy High School, who is planning a career in government and will be attending Harvard College.

FOLK DUO AUBREY Atwater (left) and Elwood Donnelly will open the sixth season of summer concerts at the Thomas Crane Public Library Thursday, July 19.

Folk Duo Opens Concerts On the Lawn

Folk duo Aubrey Atwater and Elwood Donnelly open the sixth season of summer concerts at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center Thursday, July 19.

Concerts are held on the library's front lawn from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. for those of all ages. The concerts are funded in part by the Quincy Art Council.

Atwater and Donnelly are a nationally acclaimed folk duo that presents a concert of traditional American folk songs, Celtic ballads, a cappella pieces, hymns, dance tunes and original works. They have released several CD's and perform throughout the United States and British Isles. They strongly encourage audience participation at their concerts.

Vocalist Krisanthi Pappas and her jazz combo headline the second concert July 26 with songs from the Gershwin and Fitzgerald years as well as new tunes. On Aug. 2 Gabriella Snyder will accompany herself on the Appalachian mountain dulcimer. She favors singing traditional songs and ballads because they have intriguing stories and gorgeous tunes. The performing group Odaiko New England concludes the summer series Thursday, Aug. 9 with an exhilarating performance of Japanese drumming, taiko. The drummers not only create a powerful sound but also move in unison among the drums.

Concertgoers are welcome to bring lawn chairs, beach blankets and picnics. In case of inclement weather the concerts will be held in the library atrium.

'Java Jive' Concert On USS Salem Sunday

The USS Salem Sunday Summer Concert Series continues July 15 from 2 to 4 p.m. aboard the Salem located at the Fore River Shipyard, Quincy Point.

Featured will be "Java Jive," the world's smallest big band, a popular musical group. Admission is $6 per adult and $4 for a child or senior. There is seating under the "tent" for the first 100 people who attend. Refreshments are available and a tour of the United States Naval Shipbuilding Museum (the USS Salem) is included in the admission price.

Each Sunday through Sept. 2 there will be a different group providing entertainment for all ages. For more information call the USS Salem at 617-479-7900.

Storyteller Series Continues At Crane Main Library

The 15th annual Summer Storyteller Series at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Square will continue Tuesday, July 17, featuring storyteller Debbie O'Carroll.

The programs take place in the library's large meeting room at 7 p.m. and are for families with children ages 5 and older. The series is sponsored by the Quincy Arts Lottery with a grant from the Massachusetts Cultural Council.

O'Carroll will present "Tales From A Small World," a theatrical storytelling performance that includes many props, dance, magic tricks and audience participation.

O'Carroll introduces a tap dancing donkey from Ireland, a sheepish ghost from Australia and other characters from Ghana and Japan.

The series will continue with storytellers Sharon Kennedy July 24, Len Cabral July 31, George Caccio Aug. 7 and concludes with Karen Blickman and Tony Toledo Aug. 14.

Also at 7 p.m. on Tuesdays, a Pajama Time Story-hour with Dottie Moynihan will be offered for younger siblings accompanied by an adult and families with children under the age of 5. These programs will take place in the Story Room at the Main Library Children's Room. On July 17, the Rainbow Fish and other deep sea creatures will be featured. Subsequent weeks will feature other story book favorites such as barnyard tales July 24, teddy bear tales July 31, stories of Marc Brown's Arthur Aug. 7 and will conclude with some of Mrs. Moynihan's favorites Aug. 14.

On Wednesday, July 18 at 10:30 a.m., the musical duo of David and Jenny Heitler-Klevans as "Two of A Kind" will present a sing-a-long concert on the front lawn of the Main Library. This is a family concert for children of all ages and their parents and caregivers.

In addition, the library is offering many ongoing programs this summer. There is no registration required for any summer programs. Simple drop-in craft programs will be held at a different branch each day. Drop-in storytimes for different ages will be offered beginning with a storytime for 2-3 year olds, accompanied by an adult, on Thursdays during July at 10:30. The program will take place in the Story Room at the Main Library.

Art Association Offers Children's Art Camp

The Quincy Art Association is offering a special children's art camp, "Explore the Arts," in two week-long segments this month.

The camp for youngsters

8-12 will run from Monday, July 9 to Friday, July 13, and the camp for youngsters 5-8 will run from Monday, July 16 to Friday, July 20.

Both children and adult's classes in clay will run from Monday, July 16 to Monday, Aug. 6.

For further information or to sign up, call the Quincy Art Association at 617-770-2482.

Beechwood Cruise Set For Aug. 8

The Beechwood Community Life Center will host a three-hour Harbor Cruise Wednesday, August 8 at 7 p.m. to benefit the city's "Older Elders," reports Helen Irvin, president of the Beechwood Board of Directors.

"Quincy has a growing senior population, as we all know," said Irvin, adding that city estimates identify 27 percent of the city's population as over 60 years of age with an increasing percentage being "older elders," defined as 75 years of age or older.

Tickets for the cruise are $35 each or $50 per couple and are available at Beechwood and other locations throughout the city. For more information, call (617) 471-5712.

"Older Elders" often have special needs or a combination of needs, said Sharon Beals, executive director of Beechwood Community Life Center, adding that mobility, vision, hearing, and limiting health problems can make it difficult for this group to live at home independently.

Christine Marre Member Of Collegiate Scholars Society

Christine Marre of Quincy has accepted membership in the National Society of Collegiate Scholars and will be honored during a campus ceremony this fall at Northeastern University.

The National Society of Collegiate Scholars (NSCS) is a highly selective, national, non-profit honors organization. Founded in 1994, NSCS recognizes first and second year undergraduate students who excel academically. The society was established on the principle that with scholarship comes a responsibility to develop leadership and a duty to perform service.

Other programs include Project SAFE (Smoke Alarms For Elders), the Alzheimer's Association, and other related services and support groups for stroke, Alzheimer's, and Multiple Sclerosis which all serve seniors "at risk."

"Request for services for 'at risk seniors' have doubled in recent years at the city's Multipurpose Center," said Beals. Other than some CDBG (Community Development Block Grant) revenue, community fundraising is essential to the expansion of these city-wide services, she said.

Michelle Freeman Graduates From Regis

associate of science degree in nursing.

For 20 years, Beals said, Beechwood has provided special services for seniors "at risk." For instance, the Elder Home Repair Program -- designed to perform minor home repairs -- enables seniors to remain independent and in their own homes for as long as possible. "Installation of grab bars, railings, and minor repairs often make a critical difference as to whether a senior can remain in his/her own home," said Beals.

Awards Presented At Mayor's Boy Scout Breakfast

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS was thanked by the Boston Minuteman Council of the Boy Scouts of America for his support of local scouting programs at The Mayor's Annual Boy Scout Breakfast held recently aboard the USS Salem. As a token of thanks, summer campships will be awarded to boy scouts in the mayor's name. Scouts present to thank the mayor in person were, from left, Thomas Barbieri, Sean Farrell, and Andrew Barbieri.

DANIEL KEATING, executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets and chairman of The Mayor's Annual Boy Scout Breakfast, shakes the hand of scout Sean Farrell after receiving a token of thanks from the scouts for his efforts.

EDWARD KANE, president of Eatwell, Inc., operator of many establishments including Waterworks at Marina Bay, accepts a token of thanks from scout Thomas Barbieri at The Mayor's Annual Boy Scout Breakfast. Kane, a breakfast committee member, provided the food for the event.

MICHAEL CONDON (left), a volunteer aboard the USS Salem, accepts the Boston Minuteman Council's Outstanding Service Award from Jay Garee, director of Special Programs for the BMC. "Scouting is alive and well in Quincy and all over New England," said Condon, whose mother, Joanne Condon-Walsh, serves as the museum/ship's executive director.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

GONE BUT NOT FORGOTTEN

With the exception of third molars ("wisdom teeth"), all lost teeth should be replaced as soon as possible. Aside from leaving unsightly gaps, missing teeth obviously have an adverse affect on the ability to chew. Just as importantly, missing teeth tend to throw the bite off balance, which leads to malocclusion ("bad bite"). This increases the likelihood of damage occurring to the remaining teeth. Malocclusion also increases the prospect of gum disease and may be a contributing factor to temporomandibular joint (TMJ) syndrome. Beyond these effects, there is the serious potential for misalignments of remaining teeth due to lack of support and restraint from missing teeth. These are all good reasons to see the dentist immediately after losing a tooth.

Your teeth work together like a finely tuned machine, and losing even one tooth could be the start of serious problems if it isn't replaced promptly. We emphasize preventive, functional and cosmetic dental care for all ages. Dentistry is an investment in one of the most important things you possess - your health. Teeth are meant to last for a lifetime. They will take care of you, if you take care of them. We invite you to call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. Our office is located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

P.S. When teeth fail to meet resistance from corresponding teeth in the other jaw, they may over-erupt (meaning they grow out too far.)

License Board Briefs

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

•Granted a request from Fiesta Shows, Seabrook, NH for a permit to conduct the 11th annual "Quincy City Festival" at Boston Scientific parking lot at Marina Bay July 18-22. It's a fund raiser for the USS Salem Naval Ship Museum. Alternate plans if not at Marina Bay will be at the Boston Harbor parking lot at the shipyard.

•Granted a common victualer license to Todd Bornstein and Zak Papazian, doing business as West Coast Cafe, 1659 Hancock St.

•Granted Fr. Bill's Place permission for their 7th annual benefit Food Fest at the Summer House at Marina Bay Aug. 1. Dinner will be from 6 to 8 p.m. and then an auction from 8 to 10 p.m. will be held. Rev. William McCarthy told the board that samples from area restaurants will be provided. It will benefit.

•Granted a common victualer/all alcoholic cabaret and juke box license to Larry Norton, post commander of the Cyril P. Morrisette Post, 81-83 Liberty St. Norton said the post would be open by late September.

•Postponed a hearing regarding the non renewal of the Garage/Repair & Storage License held by Speedee Oil Change & Tune Up, 366 Centre St. until Aug. 7.

(MWRA).

"They've turned the area into a gorgeous walking path," McCarthy said. "My whole neighborhood uses it. It's just a beautiful park, but cars are just going way too fast up this hill."

Jonathan Yeo, director of Communications for the MWRA, said the MWRA has received "a lot of positive reaction" for its efforts to increase public access to the area, something he said was "highly desired" by the Nut Island Citizens Advisory Committee, a group comprised of neighborhood residents whose chairman is Jack Walsh.

Yeo said incidents of speeding, drinking, and vandalism were clearly police issues, but he invited McCarthy and all other concerned residents to attend the next CAC meeting July 19 at 7 p.m. at the Nut Island Community Meeting Room. "We're willing to work with all of those involved," Yeo said.

Ward 1 Councillor Gregory Hanley explained that Sea Avenue essentially provides the only entrance and exit to Nut Island, which is artificially connected to the city. Hanley said he has sent a letter to Acting Chief William Falco requesting more police patrols in the area.

"The situation exists but we're working with the proper authorities to address it," Hanley said.

Quincy Police Lieutenant John Dougan of the Chief's Office said Quincy police are in charge of Sea Ave. itself and have "concurrent jurisdiction" with the Massachusetts State Police on Nut Island, which is state property.

Although state troopers would be the officers in charge of an incident at Nut Island and handle the paperwork, Lt. Dougan emphasized that both forces have the authority to respond to any situation and that there was no gap in coverage on the road or island.

Lt. John Banik, station commander of the State Police's Old Colony Barracks in South Boston, said that, like Lt. Dougan, he had received no complaints on the area, but he urged residents to report any activity by calling (617) 740-7710.

"Everybody's welcome to use that park but we're not going to tolerate any drinking or vandalism," said Lt. Banik. He called illegal public drinking an "age old problem" but said police presence had already been stepped up since the start of the summer.

Lt. Banik also emphasized that concurrent jurisdiction was not a problem, saying that Quincy officers had been invited to a "zero-tolerance" sweep of the area a little more than a week ago.

Thomas Cheney, an Island Ave. resident and member of the Nut Island CAC, agreed that traffic was an issue but said closing the gate or restricting access was not a solution.

"We're comfortable with it open," said Cheney, who added the CAC is currently involved with an MWRA project to construct a tunnel carrying sewage from Weymouth through Nut Island to the Long Island Treatment Plant and, eventually, the ocean. "The committee feels it should be open to everyone, just like Castle Island."

Cheney noted how pleased he was with the improvements to the area since its days as a treatment plant, especially the much used fishing pier constructed roughly five years ago through the advocacy of his son, former Council President Michael Cheney.

"There are an awful lot of speeders up on Island Avenue," said Cheney, "and I'd love to see some speed bumps there, but it's impractical."

DPW Commissioner David Colton, who said it was the first time the issue had been brought to his attention, offered that speed humps, not bumps, "might be a good solution."

Speed bumps, said Colton, were not allowed on public roads because of their potential to cause accidents. Speed humps, however, were more gradual but effectively slowed down drivers.

Board Delays Live Radio Broadcast Plans

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Although giving permission to several area businesses for an extension of their premises during the sidewalk festival by the License Board, a decision on a request by Stephen Blumberg, owner of Stephen Leigh Jewelers was delayed until a review on Friday.

Blumberg requested to have a live broadcast from Radio Station WROR July 20 from 5:30 to 9 a.m. with 150 chairs and about seven or eight tables under four tents in front of the jewelry store on 1415 Hancock St.

He said a free breakfast will be provided by Stop & Shop Commissary, with an omelet station and bagels from Wanna Bagel and dessert from X & O Restaurant.

Walter White, director of inspection services questioned the parking of the radio's vans on a lane on Granite Street and called the set up "extremely dangerous". He suggested moving the tents to in front of the Stop & Shop Plaza.

Commenting that he wanted to have "another look" at the schematics, White said a better plan would have to be initiated before he would vote.

Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue said that the Red Line should be an option for transportation to the event, rather than individual cars.

Chairman Joseph Shea said he would call a meeting with City Engineer, Jack Gillon, members of the police department and inspection services will meet and review the request on Friday with Blumberg.

The board granted permission to Club 58, Parking Way, Pat Flanagan's, 79 Parkway, and Granite Rail Tavern, 29 Cottage for an extension of premises.

Neighborhood Coffee Hour For Gutro July 18

"Neighbors for Gutro," a group of neighbors living in Ward 5, Precinct 2, will sponsor a neighborhood coffee hour for Doug Gutro, candidate for Ward 5 City Council, on Wednesday, July 18 at 7 p.m. at the Wollaston Day Care Center, 47 Weston Ave., Wollaston.

The event will allow residents who live in Ward 5, Precinct 2 the opportunity to meet with Gutro, discuss neighborhood issues, and learn about his candidacy for Ward 5 City Council.

Neighbors Marcia Bailey and Shirley Jean Black, the principal sponsors of the event, are delivering invitations to neighbors on the following streets: Cushing St., Chapman St., Chester St., Linden St., Woodbine St., Greenwood Ave., Berlin St., Wayland St., and Weston Ave. The neighborhood is bounded by Hancock St., Beale St., Linden St., and Weston Ave.

The coffee hour is open to other residents of Ward 5, Precinct 2.

Finn Receives Endorsement From Norfolk Labor Council

The Norfolk County Labor Council of the AFL-CIO has endorsed the candidacy of Joe Finn for city councillor at-large.

The IBEW 103 and the Local Division 589 of the Boston Carmen's Union had already endorsed Finn.

"I am honored and pleased to receive these endorsements," Finn said. "I am pleased because these organizations represent the interests of all working families in Quincy."

FOOT NOTES

by Joel Chariton, D.P.M.

Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Surgery
Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Orthopedics

ATHLETES & FOOT PAIN

Sports medicine experts have noticed that increasing numbers of athletes are ignoring foot pain, labeling it as a normal part of training or competing. This is a problematic trend, as neglecting foot symptoms can lead to more serious injuries that may sideline an athlete for weeks or months. Some examples of such injuries include stress fractures, muscle strains, tenonitis and subtle fractures that occur with some ankle sprains. While mild pain or discomfort is normal with physical exertion, foot pain that lasts for more than a few days and is accompanied by redness, warmth or swelling should be evaluated by a podiatrist. Wearing properly fitted shoes designed for a particular sport is also advised to help prevent foot problems.

When your sport has your feet hurting, get the advice and treatment from a podiatrist, a professional foot care specialist. Whatever is causing pain in your every step, we're here to help. Call us for comprehensive foot care for serious athletes and weekend warriors at 781-986-3668. If you are new to this area and don't yet have a podiatrist, we'd like to take on the responsibility of your family's foot care at 999 North Main Street in the MEDICAL OFFICE BUILDING. I am affiliated with the Brockton, Milton, Good Samaritan and Carney Hospitals as well as the Quincy Medical Center.

P.S. When exercising, always build up to the next level gradually, so you will be properly condition for the increased intensity.

Thinking About Leaving Quincy? Think Again

Call it stubborn loyalty, but this is where I grew up. I know the stores, the streets and the people like the back of my hand. It's where I raised my family. ## Coughlin Supports Legislative Housing Proposal

Ward 3 City Council candidate Kevin Coughlin has expressed his support for a legislative package aimed at addressing the issue of a lack of affordable housing.

"As a parent of three children, it is disheartening to consider that as our children come of age and have families of their own, they aren't able to afford to live in the city they love and are so much a part of. More pointedly, any of us who have any familiarity with this issue, professionally or otherwise, understand that we are losing Quincy families on a regular basis," Coughlin said.

"It was, therefore, encouraging to converse with the Speaker's office with respect to a comprehensive proposal which, in part, will give cities and towns more tools to effectively entice the development of affordable housing. Local and legislative leaders need to push for passage and encourage Acting Governor Swift to increase the state's financial commitment in this area from the current 71 million dollars," he said.

One section of the legislation would authorize municipalities to grant real estate exemptions (as a percentage of the new after improvement assessed value of the property) for specified terms up to 20 years, to those who would develop or redevelop downtown properties for residential or mixed use within designated "urban center housing zones." As part of the development of residential housing, 25 percent of such housing would be affordable to those occupants at or below 80 percent of the area median income.

"Utilization of this type of development inducement may be considered as part of a revitalization of downtown Quincy and successful passage of the legislative package will serve to enhance the city's myriad of efforts to keep Quincy families here," Coughlin said.

Arts In The Parks Featuring Rex Trailer Begins July 17

Mayor James Sheets announces that the seventh annual Quincy Arts in the Parks program will begin Tuesday, July 17.

The Art in the Parks program will travel to six different neighborhood park locations throughout July and the beginning of August.

This year's featured entertainer will be nationally-recognized Rex Trailer. Trailer's "Boomtown Revisited" family oriented show has entertained audiences for generations, with special acts.

The 2001 summer schedule for Arts in the Parks will be:

Tuesday, July 17, Bradford Street Playground, South Quincy.

Thursday, July 19, Bishop Field, Holbrook Road, Montclair.

Tuesday, July 24, O'Rourke Field, Quarry Street, West Quincy.

Thursday, July 26, Beechwood Knoll School, Fenno Street, Wollaston.

Tuesday, July 31, Wendall Moses Playground, Squantum School.

Thursday, Aug. 2, LaBrecque Field, Sea Street, Houghs Neck.

All shows begin at 6:30 p.m. There is no admission charge.

"The Arts in the Park program allows us to bring cultural activity to our neighborhood parks throughout the city. These shows will allow families an enjoyable night of entertainment in our beautiful park system," said Sheets. The Quincy Park and Recreation Departments will sponsor the shows. Ice cream and cold drinks will be distributed free to children attending the shows.

Board Says 'Yes' And 'No' On Extra Alcohol Hours

claimed theirs was a residential area, Harrington said there is "no residential area at Marina Bay, it's an industrial area with a mixed use."

Acting Police Chief William Falco said no solution would be acceptable to all parties, and it was hard to separate the two eateries. When Chairman Joseph Shea asked for a motion, and there was silence he said there would be "no more discussion on the serving of alcohol later than 10 p.m. at The Chantey."

Gorman said he would have no problem with The Chantey closing at 11 p.m. if a wall was constructed to serve as a sound barrier.

Opposing residents asked why a door on The Chantey hadn't replaced the sliding door which they said was noisy. Harrington said the sliding door had been newly installed with a price of about $5,000 to $6,000, and that the construction of a new opening would require more time than was given. Plus he said a report from an architect would have to be considered.

Atty. Steve Colman, representing Captain Fishbones said the paging system of calling persons from a gazebo where patrons wait to be seated wasn't working and requested to place a speaker under the gazebo. Gorman asked if a hand pager which lights up when your turn comes to dine, would be a better way to notify patrons of their tables. Colman said that would run into several thousand dollars, as opposed to a couple of hundred dollars for a speaker. No action was taken on the speaker, but another request for a silent television set in the gazebo was given approval.

Further discussions of the two restaurants will take place at the Sept. 4 meeting when both will appear for a review.

Cain Receives Second Union Endorsement

Ward 3 City Councillor candidate John Cain announces he has received the endorsement of the Boston Carmen's Union Local 589 of the Amalgamated Transit Union, AFL/CIO-CLC.

The AFL/CIO, International Association of Machinist and Aerospace Workers Local Lodge 264 recently endorsed Cain, he reported.

"I'm encouraged by the strong support and confidence the union membership has in my commitment to represent the rights of working men and women, living in Ward 3, in Quincy and in Massachusetts," Cain said.

DRIVING FORCES

It is not uncommon among two-vehicle families to lavish a higher level of maintenance upon the vehicle that gets the most use. The fact is, however, that cars that are driven infrequently or for short distances can require the same maintenance, or more, than everyday vehicles. Engine oil, which can become contaminated from short trips, still needs to be replaced every three to four months, regardless of how little the vehicle is driven. Engine coolant can become weak and acidic after becoming exposed to air and other elements. This acid content can cause a radiator in a seldom-used car to fail, or the heater core may leak. It may contribute to the failure of cylinder head gaskets.

Even if you only drive your car infrequently it still needs to be maintained regularly. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO should be your full service auto care center for most every system in your car. If you need us to look at any system in your car or truck, our ASE Certified service technicians have the skills to handle it. We also use the AllData CD-ROM based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. You'll find us located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Hours: Mon-Fri 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm. We're "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: Because gasoline attracts moisture, consider a fuel stabilizer or gas line antifreeze to avoid moisture and rust buildup if you only fill your gas tank once a month.

QCAP Homebuyer's Workshop July 21, 28

Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP) will hold a free First Time Homebuyer's Workshop on Saturdays, July 21 and 28, from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. at QCAP's main office, 1509 Hancock St.

Attendance at both workshops is mandatory to qualify for the many different mortgage options and downpayment assistance available through QCAP, Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs, and other financing options.

Agenda includes presentations from Realtors, attorneys, home inspectors, lenders, and other homeownership professionals. Among the topics are: locating a property within budget, making an offer, and determining the best mortgage program for one's needs.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited. Participants must attend both classes for a certificate of completion.

QCAP is an MHFA, CHAPA, and HUD-approved First Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency.

To register, or for more information, call Sandra Brennan at (617) 479-8181, ext. 119.

Neighborhood Housing Services Homebuyer's Workshop July 14, 21

Neighborhood Housing Services, an approved First Time Homebuying Counseling Agency, will hold an accredited and MHFA certified First Time Homebuyer's Workshop in collaboration with Continental Funding Saturday, July 14 and July 21.

The workshop will be held at East Bridgewater Town Hall, 175 Central St., East Bridgewater, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Attendance at both workshops is mandatory to receive homebuying certificate which is required by most lenders to qualify for the many different mortgage options such as the Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs, down payment and closing costs grants and other special first time homebuying financing options.

Neighborhood Housing Services is a non-profit organization dedicated to assisting first time homebuyers through the homebuying process.

The staff at NHS is unique in their approach to obtaining down payment and closing costs assistance as well as rehab grants for their clients, which are available throughout the South Shore area.

The agenda will be comprehensive and individualized. Focus will be on the many changing aspects of homebuying, including how to locate a property within budget, how to make an offer, and determining the best mortgage program based on needs.

Advanced registration is required. Space is limited.

A $10 refundable registration fee is required.

Contact Debbie Ederly at (617) 770-2227 ext. 31 for more information and to register for the workshop.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Organ Donation: Giving A Second Chance At Life

In the United States today more than 76,000 people are hoping for a chance for a new life with a donated organ.

According to the United Network for Organ Sharing, every 16 minutes a new name is added to the list of people requiring organ transplants. In the next year more than 6,000 potential recipients will die because an appropriate donor could not be located in time.

Nearly 2,700 kidney, liver, heart, lung and pancreas patients are awaiting transplants in Massachusetts. The problem that these and thousands of other patients face: demand for organs has far outdistanced supply. While the number of people waiting for donor organs has tripled since 1990, the number of donors has remained relatively constant at 4,000 to 5,000 nationally.

Richard Freeman, M.D., a transplant surgeon at the New England Medical Center and a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, credits science for making transplants more and more popular.

"In the 14 years that I've been performing these operations, I've seen literally thousands of medical advances in organ and tissue transplants," he said.

Dr. Freeman said new drugs that prevent rejection of transplanted organs and enhanced surgical procedures have driven the higher success rate.

He said there are many reasons why the number of donors hasn't kept pace with the demand for organs, but the number one reason is lack of communication.

"I've seen surveys that show as many as 70 percent of those questioned would be willing to donate their organs, corneas or other tissue after their death," he said. "However, those numbers are not being translated into actual organ donors often because people never get around to communicating their wishes to their families."

By law, all impending deaths in the United States are reported to federally designated organ procurement organizations such as the New England Organ Bank, which serves the six New England states. When the death of a patient has been declared, the bank sends a representative to discuss donation with the next of kin.

Hearing for the first time that the organs or tissues of their spouse, parent or child may be donated can be unsettling, particularly when a loved one has just passed away. For many families the opportunity to donate can be the first step in the healing process.

"In all cases the final decision on organ donation is up to the next of kin," said Sean Fitzpatrick of the New England Organ Bank. "That's why it's so important to discuss your desire to donate your organs with your family."

Potential donors do not have to register with any organization, but making your positive feelings known may expedite the approval and transplant process.

The Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles provides drivers with a simple organ donor registration process. To have the organ donor designation printed on your new license follow these steps:

- On the license renewal form check "Yes" where it asks if you'd like to become an organ donor.
- Complete an organ donor card.
- When you receive your new license in the mail, place the red "Organ Donor" sticker on your license (beginning this year the organ donor logo is imprinted on the license).

Notify your next of kin that you have identified yourself as an organ donor.

The decision to give another person a chance for a better life is an important one.

For information about donation programs, contact the New England Organ Bank at 800-446-NEOB.

Impact Quincy's 'Early Childhood Alliance'

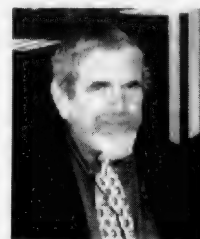

By DAVID EZICKSON

As Impact Quincy (IQ) was still in its formative stages, it was strongly relying on a grassroots support of Quincy community. One of the first alliances, working in close cooperation with IQ for almost 10 years, was an "Early Childhood Alliance." The primary goal of this group was to look for factors that have a lasting effect on the nurturing of a young child. The Early Childhood Alliance assembled a group of various specialists who reflected in their work different facets of childhood development.

This was an inclusionary model that consisted of "special needs" professionals, "Head Start" representatives, family counseling and after school care teachers. Other participating specialists were curriculum developers, representatives of different models of "nature & nurture," nutritionists, parents and members of the community. They provided different ways of solving childhood developmental problems, but also shared various ideas with each other.

Additional information was solicited from private day care offices, Quincy Public Schools, Quincy Junior College, South Shore Mental Health organizations, and from anyone else who could add new dimensions to the problem at hand. Members met on a monthly basis, sometimes in private homes, at Bay State Community Services (home of Impact Quincy), at South Shore Mental Health facilities and at other locations.

Periodic conferences were

held at North Quincy High School, which provided space for Early Childhood Alliance vendors and educational materials. Among prominent participants were Mrs. William Weld and Dr. Tom Cottle. Other well-known "Early Childhood" specialists and developmental experts frequently participated in these meetings as well. During those conferences organizers provided a warm educational and environmental climate for the attending families. Especially popular were S. Yaroschak's early childhood educational facilities located at the same school.

Prior to conferences, a lot of time was spent on preparation: making T-shirts, bookmarks and directory lists of home services available at different agencies in Quincy. Participants involved with the Early Childhood projects included: Isabella Ventri, Phyllis Fazio, Sheila De Bettercourt, Mrs. Sullivan, Alicia Colletti, Carol Neitlich, Sara Yaroschak, Mrs. Sandler and myself. The annual financial support for most of the programs came from IQ. On rare occasions and by making this fight an intricate part of your life.

The close cooperation between the Early Childhood Alliance and IQ over the years played an important role in the enhancement of developmental markers in children. In addition, an introduction of an educational component, aimed at the reduction of underage drinking into Early Childhood Alliance curriculums, is beginning to result in an emergence of positive and constructive results.

The community of Quincy is beginning to build upon its many accomplishments by developing comprehensive environmental strategies to prevent and reduce drinking of alcoholic beverages among 12-17 year olds. The advantage of combining a comprehensive early childhood education and adding to it an early start in preventive work applied to the peer, school, parent and community domains result in changes in behavior, norms and perceptions in the community as a whole.

IQ is currently the only organization in Quincy addressing community-wide substance abuse issues, but all of us, as a community, share equal responsibility for the underage drinking problem in our city.

We must honestly believe that it takes a community of ideas and support to help a child grow. Help us by actively participating in reducing underage drinking in Quincy, by implementing IQ's goals and objectives, and by making this fight an intricate part of your life.

Summer Blood Drive July 21 At Masonic Hall

The American Red Cross asks all eligible blood donors in the Quincy area to give blood Saturday, July 21 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. when the bloodmobile visits the Masonic Hall, 1170 Hancock St.

The first annual Summer Blood Drive is being sponsored by Rigby Chiropractic in cooperation with the Macedonian Lodge.

"Only five out of every 100 people give blood and the number of new donors decreased dramatically last year," said Red Cross Director Cathy Pray. "First-time donors are urgently needed to replace donors who have moved away or become ineligible to donate."

Most people can give blood through the American Red Cross. Potential donors must be at least 17 years of age, in good health, and weigh over 110 pounds.

In most cases, donors can give blood if they are on medication but should know the names of these medications.

For more information, call the American Red Cross at 1-800-448-3543.

Defeat Boston Cowboys 13-7 Granite Open Season In Playoff Form

By CHRIS POISSON

Although it was only the second meeting between the two teams, the Quincy Granite's 13-6 victory over the Boston Cowboys in the season opener last Saturday night felt like a playoff game between two longtime rivals.

Last year Boston handed Quincy a loss in its Eastern Football League debut. The Cowboys embarrassed the Granite with three big plays for touchdowns, including an 80-yard interception return late in the fourth that sealed the win.

The Granite recovered from the loss to finish the season with the same amount of wins (six) as the Cowboys and make the playoffs. In the offseason, the hostility towards each other intensified as five players from the Cowboys defected to the Granite.

So it was only fitting the two teams opened up against each other again this year. And it was only fitting the game came down to the final play of the game.

Trailing 13-6 with seven seconds left, the Cowboys stood one yard away from possibly humiliating the Granite on their home turf for the second year in a row. A touchdown and the Cowboys are an extra point away from sending the game into overtime, or a two-point conversion from an improbable comeback.

On the final play tailback Derek Edmundson fumbles the handoff, but somehow gathers control of the ball and bounces outside where there seems to be more daylight than a long summer's day.

But linebacker Ryan Craig suddenly appears in the picture and the game comes down to these two men. It's as if the scene is straight from a movie: Everything freezes, the camera zooms in on the two players and there are flashbacks to earlier parts of the game.

These flashbacks have all the makings of an upset.

For three quarters the Granite outplayed the Cowboys, but held only a 13-0 lead thanks to a turnover in the red zone, several dropped passes on third down and some untimely penalties.

Still, the venerable defense had lived up to the nickname it had given itself, the Dark Side, and it seemed inconceivable that Boston would find paydirt two times in the fourth quarter. The Dark Side held the Cowboys to five first downs and forced them to punt on all seven possessions.

Four minutes into the final stanza, however, the fireworks came — literally and figuratively. As fireworks from a neighboring town sprouted up on the horizon, the Cowboys exploded on the field with a 29-yard touchdown pass with 10:20 left on the clock.

For Quincy, the game unraveled like a loose thread on a sweater. After nearly chewing eight minutes off the clock on the ensuing possession, rookie kicker Matt Kulesza misfired on a 37-yard field goal attempt that would have clinched the game.

Instead, the Cowboys had one last chance to drive 80 yards in 3:44. And they took full advantage, converting on fourth-and-20 and fourth-and-one plays, and then completing a 42-yard bomb to Quincy's 3-yard line to set the stage for the one-on-one matchup. It's a matchup running backs and linebackers drool over.

As Edmundson nears the goal line, Craig squares up, holds his ground and his 6-foot-1, 245-pound frame hits Edmundson like a Mack truck crashing into a Beetle. The remaining seconds tick away and the Granite win Round 2 against the Cowboys.

"Derek is a good player," Craig said. "We had the middle stuffed and he almost lost the ball but he picked it

Pond Street Field Batting Cages Donated In Memory Of Joseph Conti

Although most of the Joseph Conti, Jr. Memorial Fund benefits the Massachusetts General Hospital Burn Center in Boston, the Conti family has also made donations locally.

Joseph Conti, Jr., a 1985 Quincy High School graduate, starred on the school's baseball team with current Quincy High coach Michael Draicchio and North Quincy High coach Larry Taglieri. He was later inducted into the school's Baseball Hall of Fame.

Conti went on to graduate from Massachusetts Maritime Academy in 1989. After spending six years as an officer in the Merchant Marines, he took a job as a refinery technician at Twin Rivers Technologies. On March 11, 1999, he died in a flash fire at Twin Rivers at the age of 32.

In his memory, the Conti family has made donations to the sport he loved. Last year they donated the bullpens at Adams Field and this past spring they donated batting cages to the Quincy High baseball team at Pond Street Field. Babe Ruth and Little League ballplayers have also been able to take their swings in the cages.

"Joey was a really good baseball player," said his sister, Lisa DiBona. "He just loved baseball. It was his favorite sport. Last year we donated the bullpens and this year it was the batting cages. These things are important to help keep his name alive.

And it makes you feel good to help the kids."

"I want to thank the Conti family for donating the batting cages to the Quincy baseball team," Draicchio said. "Everyone has been using the cages. It has been great. This is the first time this has ever happened. It promotes baseball in the city.

"Obviously, Joe was a very good friend of mine and it means more to me than you can imagine."

Recreation Department Begins Supervised Summer Playground Program

Recreation Director Barry Welch announces the opening of the summer playground program at 19 locations.

The department supervises playgrounds Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. during July and until Aug. 15.

Supervised activities, for Quincy residents ages 6-13, include active games and sports for individuals and teams, arts and crafts, as well as a variety of special events including field trips.

Team games are conducted in basketball and baseball for boys, midgets ages 8-9, juniors ages 10-12 and seniors ages 13-16, and girls, ages 8-12 for juniors and ages 13-16 for seniors.

Playground specialists visit playgrounds on a regular weekly schedule organizing activities in archery, tennis, and arts and crafts. Local recreation leaders on neighborhood playgrounds will have the information regarding specialists and additional schedule information.

The following playgrounds are supervised by Quincy Recreation Department staff this summer: Atlantic, Beechwood Knoll, Bradford, Chapel, Faxon Park, Fenno Street, Forbes Hill, Fore River, Kincaide, LaBrique, Mass Fields, Montclair, O'Rourke, Palmer, Perkins, Pond Street, Squantum, Welcome Young and Wollaston.

North's Bob Doyle Recognized For Good Sportsmanship

North Quincy High School softball coach Bob Doyle has been recognized for good sportsmanship by the Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association.

Through the MIAA's "The Only Way to Win" program, coaches, athletic directors, game officials or school administrators may report outstanding acts of sportsmanship for both teams and individuals.

As a result of the award, the MIAA sends recipients a congratulatory letter and certificate and notes their achievement on the MIAA web site.

Doyle finished his fourth season as North Quincy coach this past spring. His team struggled, finishing with a 2-18 overall record, but it did improve its play late in the season.

Mary Duggan Watson, an ASA umpire, nominated Doyle for an act of sportsmanship in North Quincy's 16-6 loss at Silver Lake on May 9.

"Coach Doyle's team was behind by about 10 runs the whole game," she wrote in her report. "Throughout the contest he kept instructing them in a positive and constructive manner. He was very competitive but kept in under control and always was constructive in his corrections.

"He kept his team hustling between innings. His sense of humor and care for the kids was obvious. The opposing catcher commented on what a 'nice' coach he was.

"I have umpired for 30 years. This is the first time I've felt moved to do one of these. Final score 16-6. No, Quincy had only one bad inning! Played well."

Applications Available For Jim Kane Sugarbowl Race

Applications are available at several Quincy locations for the 14th annual Jim Kane Sugarbowl 5 Miler Road Race, which will be held Thursday, July 19 at 6:30 p.m. at the Bayside Expo Center.

The locations are: Dairy Freeze, Adams Street; McGinn's Citgo, Newport Avenue and Furnace Brook Parkway; Star Market, Morrissey Blvd.; and also the Curley Rec. Center in South Boston.

USA Track and Field has officially certified the course and race officials are encouraged with the prospect of a highly competitive race for the enjoyment of all spectators and participants.

Early registrations are totaling a 15 to 20 percent increase ahead of last year's registrants. On-line registration is available at www.1street.org. Race day registration will be available starting at 4:30 p.m.

The L Street Running Club, host of the race, continues to enhance the quality of the event for both the recreational runner and competitive athletes alike. Featuring an fast, flat course and organized by a team of over 400 race knowledgeable and enthusiastic volunteers, the Sugarbowl 5 Miler is one of the top five-mile road races in New England.

An added highlight is the Runners Expo, featuring products and services, will be held prior to this year's race and is open to all registered runners and family members.

There will be satellite parking and an expanded food court.

The race benefits the many charities of the area, including Father Bill's Place, Boys and Girls Clubs, the South Boston Collaborative, programs for the homeless, the Curley Rec. Center, Christmas Baskets for the needy and more.

Committee Seeks Applications For NQHS Women's Sports Hall Of Fame

Applications are now available for the North Quincy High School Women's Sports Hall of Fame.

The committee wants to honor distinguished female athletes as well as coaches, teams and friends of women's athletics.

Eligibility is as follows:

- Female athletes will be eligible 10 years after the class of which they were a member graduates from North Quincy High.

- Teams will be eligible 10 years after the team's season has ended.

- Coaches will be eligible two years after service to the athletic program has ended.

For an application, call Brian Buckley, athletic director, at 617-984-8912, or write to the Women's Hall of Fame, c/o The Athletic Department, NQHS, 316 Hancock St., North Quincy, 02171.

Deadline for applications is Sept. 30. The ceremony will be held April 7, 2002.

Vic DiGravio, Jr. Memorial Golf Tournament Aug. 6

The second annual Vic DiGravio Jr. Memorial Golf Tournament will be held Monday, Aug. 6 at the South Shore Country Club in Hingham.

The tournament is being held in memory of Vic DiGravio who died of cancer in 1999.

Last year's tournament raised $18,000 for a scholarship fund for local students attending Bridgton Academy in North Bridgton, Maine. Over 130 golfers played in the tourney and 180 people attended the post-tournament dinner and awards ceremony.

This year's tournament will be a scramble format with a 1 p.m. shotgun start. Dinner will be served at the South Shore Country Club following the tournament at approximately 6:15 p.m.

Entry fee is $100 per person, which includes greens fees, cart, golf shirt and dinner. For those attending just the dinner the donation is $30 per person. The registration deadline is July 31.

All proceeds will fund the Vic DiGravio Jr. Memorial Scholarship at Bridgton Academy. The scholarship provides financial aid to students from Quincy, Weymouth and Marshfield who attend the school.

Vic graduated from Bridgton Academy in 1959. He grew up in Weymouth and attended Weymouth High School where he was an outstanding athlete. After marrying, Vic lived in Quincy where he owned and operated the Spotlight Tavern for over 20 years.

Entry fees and/or donations may be sent to the Vic DiGravio Jr. Memorial Golf Tournament, 89 Puritan Drive, Quincy, MA 02169.

For more information call Vic DiGravio III at 617-328-8170 or Scan Downing at 617-472-5746.

Red Cross Golf Classic At South Shore Country Club July 23

The American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay South will hold its 16th annual Golf Classic Monday, July 23 at the South Shore Country Club in Hingham with a 1 p.m. shotgun start.

Jerry Dacey of Colonial Federal Savings Bank, chairman of the Golf Classic Committee, thanked Daniel J. Flynn & Company "for helping our cause considerably by making a very generous donation of $5,000 in support of the tournament."

Committee members serving with Dacey include:

James L. Chicino, Quincy City Treasurer; Glenn Ferguson, Green Environmental; Mark Fisher, The Bank of Canton; Michael Gianoni, Output Technologies Services; Mae Harris, RETS Technical Center; Daniel G. May, Citizens Bank; Daniel J. Flynn, Daniel J. Flynn & Co.; Mary Snethen, East Boston Savings Bank; and William A. Reilly, Bjorklund & Reilly Insurance Agency.

Proceeds from the tournament will help Red Cross locally to continue helping victims of fires, storms and other disasters recover and rebuild their lives.

Entrance fee for the tournament is $125 and includes a box lunch, greens fee, cart, an old-fashioned barbecue, awards and prizes.

"If you can't play, you or your business can help by sponsoring a hole for $150 or by making a cash donation," Dacey said.

For more information call Dacey at 781-331-9574 or Jackie Gardner at the Red Cross office at 617-770-2600.

Brendan Bubencik Golf Tourney Aug. 5

The fourth annual Brendan Bubencik Memorial Golf Tournament to benefit the research of meningitis at Children's Hospital in Boston will be held Sunday, Aug. 5 at the Easton Country Club.

In 1997, Brendan Bubencik died from bacterial meningitis, an inflammation of the tissues which cover the brain and spinal cord, at just four months and 25 days old.

Bubencik, who lived in Foxboro, has a large extended family, including his aunt and grandparents, who live in Quincy.

Cost for individual golf is $100, a foursome is $400 and a hole sponsor is $75. All donations can be made to Brendan Bubencik Research Trust and sent to: The Bubencik's at Eagle Stainless, 10 Discovery Way, Franklin, MA 02038. The tourney has raised over $40,000 in Brendan's name to date.

IREM Golf Tournament Sept. 10

The Institute of Real Estate Management will hold its second annual Golf Tournament Monday, Sept. 10 at the Blue Hill Country Club in Canton, announces Larry Johnson, CPM, chapter president.

A terrace buffet lunch will be from 11:30 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. with a shotgun Florida Style start at 1:30 p.m. There will be a host of great prizes to win and cocktails and dinner to close out the day.

Registration is $195 for members and $225 for non-members. A portion of the proceeds will be donated to a charitable organization.

For more information call 617-328-7565 or fax 617-328-6966 for a registration form.

Quincy Legion Sweeps Morrisette

After beating Morrisette last Tuesday to complete the season sweep against its rivals, the Quincy American Legion baseball team dropped back-to-back games last Friday and Saturday to dampen its playoff hopes.

Quincy (6-9) needs to win this week if it still wants to have a shot at the postseason. Quincy played Braintree Monday night and Weymouth yesterday (Wednesday) and tomorrow night it hosts Cohasset at 8 p.m.

"We need to win games now," said head coach Bob Benn. "That fifth and final playoff spot is up for grabs. I know we can get there. These guys have a lot of pride and will not quit."

Last Saturday Quincy endured a tough 2-1 loss to the first-place West Roxbury team at Adams Field. Quincy took a 1-0 lead in the first, but only managed two hits the entire game as the offense was stale for the second game in a row.

West Roxbury scored a run in the sixth and seventh innings of pitcher Conrad Leger to pull out the win. Leger gave up seven hits and four walks while striking out nine in the complete-game effort.

"Conrad was throwing gas," Benn said. "He looked their hitters square in the eye and challenged them with every pitch. Awesome performance."

Last Friday Milton blanked Quincy, 2-0. Anthony Boyle, a southpaw, took the loss but both runs he gave up were unearned. He allowed just three singles and a walk and he struck out four.

"Our pitching staff is really stepping up, but our hitter are struggling a little bit," Benn said. "Mike Feetham, Anthony Boyle and Conrad Leger are just letting it fly on the mound, showing great poise and a lot of heart. We are confident that our hitting will also step it up."

In Quincy's 6-2 win over Morrisette last Tuesday, Feetham fired a four-hitter as he continues to excel on the mound. "Mike was overpowering, throwing his fastball to spots and he had great command of his curve ball," Benn said.

Center fielder Wayne Moynihan hammered two line-drive triples off Keith Doherty, his former teammate at North Quincy High, while knocking in two runs. Chris Walsh also ripped two RBI singles and played strong defensively at third base.

"Chris Walsh happens to be one of the finest baseball players in the league," Benn said.

Also adding to the offense were Ryan Murphy (2 for 4, RBI, run), Chris Lockhead (single, run) and John Lupo (run), who also came up with some clutch defensive plays.

Granite Win Opener

up and gunned it. Can't ask for a better situation than that: One-on-one at the goal line, linebacker vs. running back for the game. Fortunately, we came out on top."

"Oh my God, Ryan Craig," said head coach Ken McPhee. "He's tough. He's a player. There's no question he's the type of player that you win championships with. And if this team is going to go, it's going to go with our defense."

Indeed, the defense, except for those few anxious moments in the fourth, looked in mid-season form. The Cowboys couldn't establish a running game and had trouble throwing the ball, as Quincy's corners played skin-tight defense and the defensive line, led by Steven Jones (two sacks), had the quarterback scrambling all game.

"Defensively, I thought we played well," McPhee said. "We hung in there and did the right things."

On the offensive side, Quincy, despite the penalties, dropped passes and turnover, showed signs that it could become potent as the season progresses. The offensive line looked better than a year ago and there was evidence of a running game, with starting tailback Jackson Vetic rushing for 78 yards and fullback Mike Elder gaining 15 yards on 3 carries.

Quarterback Mike Thomas (6 for 16, 120 yards, 2 TDs) missed a couple of long balls but his timing with the receivers should only improve. When he was on target, though, he looked like he could be one of the top signal callers in the league.

Thomas hit wideout Bill MacDougall — on his first pass attempt — for a 3-yard touchdown over the middle that capped Quincy's opening 65-yard drive. Thomas put the Granite ahead 13-0 (extra point blocked) with 9:53 left in the second, connecting with wideout Diwayne Williams on a 14-yard fade into the right corner of the end zone.

"Offensively, we did some good things," McPhee said. "We made a couple of drops here, we fumbled. We could've put it out of reach with a field goal. But things will progress. Things will progress. We did some good things so I think we're going to be OK."

"It's our first game and it's a W. A W is a W. The key is we won and that's really what we needed to do. They beat us last year and we beat them this year."

The rematch is scheduled for Saturday, July 28 at 3 p.m. at Boston English High School.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) It's a good time to shop for new clothes for those important upcoming events. Remember: You're the Sheik of Chic, and you're at your best when you know you look good.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You can be sensible when you have to be and sensual when you want to be. Things are starting to happen that will make good use of both of these finely tuned Taurean traits.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Single Twins looking to double up with someone special will find Cupid most obliging. Expect him to link you with a Capricorn who has been looking for someone just like you.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A suddenly changing situation requires some quickly made adjustments. The sooner you act, the sooner you can get back to other important projects that need your attention.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Congratulations. You've done well with that pesky problem you were asked to solve. Now you can take those bows on center stage, where you can shine in all your Leonine splendor.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your ability to communicate clearly and easily with others (as befits a child of Mercury) brings a new opportunity that could lead to a major career change. LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might still have some doubts about taking a bolder approach toward achieving your goals. But be assured that moving forward is the direction to go.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) An almost-forgotten incident re-emerges, and you need to deal with it as quickly as possible. Sources of important information on the matter soon become available.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You might feel as if you can take on the world these days, but be careful not to target more commitments than you can handle. An old agreement might need reviewing.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Do something wild and wonderful this week. After all, you're part Goat—so whenever you get those capricious urges to kick up your heels, just do it.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A recent workplace decision might be questioned. Be prepared to answer all queries to everyone's satisfaction. Then go out for a fun time with loved ones.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Rework that once-rejected suggestion. Then resubmit it to someone at your workplace who is likely to be more receptive to the potential it holds. Good luck.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a highly developed sense of perception that helps you see people as they are, and not necessarily as they would like to be seen.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 9 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Lord's Planting

The Lord's Planting (Evangelical Church of the Atlantic, Quincy Foursquare Church), 65 Newbury Ave., North Quincy, invites children to participate in its "Polar Expedition" program.

"Our 'Polar Expedition' program will provide fun, memorable Bible-learning activities for kids of all ages," said Pastor Bill Donahue.

"Each day, kids will sing catchy songs, play teamwork-building games, nibble tasty treats from Igloo Eats, dig into Bible adventures, and create Cool Crafts they'll take home and play with all summer long," Donahue said.

"Polar Expedition" is an exciting way for kids to discover that Jesus' love is cool," Pastor Bill said. "Kids will join nearly a million children in North America and take part in a hands-on mission project that will reach needy children across the globe.

"We'll conclude each day with a festive Ice Station Celebration that gets everyone involved in celebrating what they've learned. Family members and friends are encouraged to join us daily for this special time at 8:30 p.m."

Polar Expedition begins Thursday, Aug. 2 and continues Thursday through Aug. 30. "Explorers" will meet at the Lord's Planting, 65 Newbury Ave., each Thursday in August from 6:30 to 8:45 p.m.

For more information, call 617-847-4444.

Covenant Congregational

Covenant Congregational Church, Granite and Whitwell Sts., will hold its annual Ice Cream Smorgasbord Sunday from 3 to 5 p.m.

Entertainment for children will be provided by Gebe Desaulniers.

Requested donation is $3.50 per person above the age of four. Money raised will be used for camperships and youth activities.

Also beginning Sunday, the church will kick off a new program, "Sunday School in the Park." This outdoor Christian education class for children of all ages will start at 9 a.m. and conclude at 9:45 a.m. It will be held every other week.

Youth Director Marvena Graham will supervise the class in the church park, located behind the building.

In case of inclement weather, the class will be moved indoors. There is no cost.

For more information, call 617-479-5728.

United Methodist

Nick Atkinson will assist as the lector.

Drucilla Madigan will be the greeter. The Pastor will give the Young People's Message.

Larry Sullivan and Bob McCulley will serve as ushers.

The Fellowship Hour will be hosted by Esther Paulsen, Margaret Troup and Frances Alair.

Chris Peter Memorial Blood Drive July 17

The Peter Family will host the 17th annual Chris Peter Memorial Blood Drive Tuesday, July 17 from 2 to 8 p.m. at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall, Quincy.

The blood drive is in memory of Chris Peter, son of Charlie and Trudy Peter of 7 Allerton St., who was killed by a drunk driver Sept. 14, 1984. He was 22 years old.

To help ease the pain of losing Chris, the Peters wanted to do something positive to remember their son. Since donating blood has been a long-standing family tradition, they felt a memorial blood drive would be a good way of honoring him as a vital and loving person.

Chris had donated 11 pints of blood before his death.

In July of 1985, the first "Chris Peter Memorial Blood Drive" was held. Almost 100 people came. Not only did they give blood, they also gave moral support to the family while they were helping many others with their donations.

In the past 16 years, the blood drive has collected more than 1600 pints of blood, averaging 105 pints a year at a time when blood donations drop to the lowest levels of the year.

"The American Red Cross does the collecting and our family does whatever we can to encourage donors and make them welcome," Charlie and Trudy said. "Trudy bakes many goodies and our adult children watch and entertain children with crafts and games while their parents donate."

For information or an appointment, call Charlie or Trudy Peter at (617) 471-9586. Walk-ins are welcome.

Bethany Congregational

The Rev. Gary Smothers, interim minister, will conduct the morning worship service on Sunday at 10 a.m. at Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center.

A guest minister, the Rev. Dr. Patrick Seymour, will preach a sermon entitled, "Picture This."

A One-Room Church School will be available for the children after the Rev. Smothers brings them his weekly message. Childcare is available for infants and toddlers.

Scripture reader will be Billy Harding, Shirley Payne and Heather Sargent will serve as greeters.

Music for the service will feature duets by Jean and Winslow Bettinson and Thomas Boyer, organist.

Betty Newton will host the Fellowship Hour which follows the worship service.

Bethany Church is handicapped accessible via a ramp on Spear St.

Houghs Neck Congregational

IN MEMORIAM

Paul P. Elias

July 19, 1993 - July 19, 2001

*I miss you more than anyone knows, as each day passes, the emptiness grows.
I laugh, I cry, I play my part.
Beneath it all, lie my broken heart.
I hide my tears when I speak your name.
The ache in my heart remains the same.
You won't come back, I know it's true.
But someday, Paul, I'll come to you.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"I can't carry a tune in a bucket," a friend once said. Some people do not hear sounds in a way to be able to reproduce them accurately. Some cannot hear at all. But we can all sing in our own ways. We can live lives that express our gratitude to God for every minute we've been given. Taking a deep breath on a beautiful evening and thanking God for life or goodness is its own song. We can also recite psalms, for psalms are the songs of Scripture. They do not require a tune to express the music of praise to God.

There is music in all of life; the tender promising song of a new baby's sighs; the powerful and ennobling music undergirding all acts of sacrifice on behalf of others. We are blessed with the music of joy, when people laugh together or clap their hands in encouragement or appreciation. Sorrowful music is also part of life; tears, the winds of conflict and the long, deep sounds of grief.

The greatest music we sing, however, is revealed in our acts of faith in love. When we bring God into the daily routines of others by assisting them, inviting them to worship or eat with us, praising them or comforting them - these are songs of inestimable effect and power. We need not wait for musical talent and perfect pitch. We have only to express our gratitude, compassion and service.

Richard Cheng Joins Asians Counseling Services At South Shore Mental Health

Richard Wai Por Cheng, LICSC, has joined the Asians Community Counseling Services at South Shore Mental Health (SSMH).

Cheng has been a practicing clinical social worker in the Greater Boston area for 15 years. Most recently, he was executive director of the Great Wall Center in Malden, which he founded. In the past, he has worked at the New Directions Counseling Center in Quincy.

Cheng graduated from

RICHARD CHENG

Simmons College School of Social Work with a master's degree in social work. His clinical experience includes counseling for problems associated with immigration, marital conflict, school and work adjustment, trauma and domestic abuse.

Asians Community Counseling provides professional counseling for Asian and Asian-American clients and their families. Services include: counseling services, psychiatric evaluations, psychological testing, addition recovery and early childhood intervention services.

Cheng will provide individual, family and consultation services on a part-time basis for Chinese clients at SSMH's offices at 460 Quincy Ave., Quincy.

Cheng, who lives in Malden, is a native of Hong Kong and speaks Cantonese. To make an appointment with him, call 617-774-6005.

Danielle Rodeck Winner In Dependable Cleaners Summer Reading Program

Danielle Rodeck of Quincy is a winner in the Dependable Cleaners "Read to Ride" summer reading incentive program.

Danielle, who recently completed the fourth grade at Lincoln-Hancock School, will receive a $250 gift certificate for a new bicycle and helmet. Additionally, her name will be announced on Radio Disney and appear on AT & T Broadband's Weather Channel crawl at regular intervals.

Danielle said she loves to read. She read Harry Potter and The Sorcerer's Stone by J.K. Rowling in order to enter the drawing.

Read to Ride is a community service project sponsored by Dependable Cleaners in conjunction with Quincy Cycle, Farina's Bicycle Center, The Patriot Ledger, and Radio Disney. The purpose of the program is to encourage children to read during the summer months.

Read to Ride provides students, ages 6-15, with an opportunity to win a bicycle each time they read a book by submitting an entry form during the months of June and July.

Dependable Cleaners will give away 25 bicycles this summer to children throughout the area.

For more information or an official entry form, visit a Dependable Cleaners or one of the participating bike shops.

City Seeing A Record Pace Tourism Season

Bilowz said the tourism crowd is increasing what had already been very strong business the past few months.

"We're seeing a few more tourists (because of the book)," said Bilowz, "but it's hard to tell exactly how many more because we see a lot of tourists at this time, anyway."

David Walsh, owner of the recently opened Pearl Oyster Bar & Grille, 1495 Hancock St., had no past figures with which to compare his restaurant's inaugural season, but said he is already looking into combining what his restaurant has to offer, such as function rooms, with the city's tourism base.

"We definitely have a local flavor," said Walsh, noting the restaurant's raw bar and traditional New England fare such as lobsters. "It would make a nice fit."

AUTHOR-HISTORIAN David McCullough's new book John Adams is credited with the influx of tourists in Quincy so far this season. It looks like it will be a record tourism year.

The bill to create an Adams Memorial in the nation's capital was filed by Congressman Tim Roemer of Indiana, with support from Delahunt and Sen. Ted Kennedy.

Delahunt, McCullough and historian Joseph Ellis, author of the book, "Founding Brothers," testified on behalf of the bill before the House Resources Subcommittee on National Parks, which eventually endorsed it.

"The Adams vision of the rule of law, that a truly independent judiciary is essential to a healthy and vibrant democracy, has been embraced by countless other nations throughout the world," said Delahunt.

"It's high time we celebrated it here at home as well."

In response to questions from subcommittee members the witnesses speculated about possible locations and designs for the memorial — ranging from the Tidal Basin to the Supreme Court.

The scope and design of the proposed memorial would ultimately be determined by the National Capital Planning Commission.

The historians speculated that Adams' low-key treatment by history was due to his frankness, independence and modesty.

"While Jefferson tells us what we want to hear," said Ellis, "Adams tells us what we need to know."

The witnesses stressed that the memorial would also pay tribute to Abigail Adams, who was described by McCullough as husband John's "one woman Cabinet."

Delahunt detailed for the subcommittee the growing demands on the Adams National Historical Park and briefed members on his parallel proposal for an Adams memorial in Boston.

"In short," he said, "there is a new wave of public interest which reflects the purpose of today's hearing."

"John Adams, John Quincy Adams and other members of the family served such a critical role in American history that there should be a public, accessible memorial to educate the hundreds of thousands who visit our nation's capital each year."

City Seeing A Record Pace Tourism Season

Billow said the tourism crowd is increasing what had already been very strong business the past few months.

"We're seeing a few more tourists (because of the book)," said Billow, "but it's hard to tell exactly how many more because we see a lot of tourists at this time, anyway."

David Walsh, owner of the recently opened Pearl Oyster Bar & Grille, 1495 Hancock St., had no past figures with which to compare his restaurant's inaugural season, but said he is already looking into combining what his restaurant has to offer, such as function rooms, with the city's tourism base.

"We definitely have a local flavor," said Walsh, noting the restaurant's raw bar and traditional New England fare such as lobsters. "It would make a nice fit."

AUTHOR-HISTORIAN David McCullough's new book John Adams is credited with the influx of tourists in Quincy so far this season. It looks like it will be a record tourism year.

The bill to create an Adams Memorial in the nation's capital was filed by Congressman Tim Roemer of Indiana, with support from Delahunt and Sen. Ted Kennedy.

Delahunt, McCullough and historian Joseph Ellis, author of the book, "Founding Brothers," testified on behalf of the bill before the House Resources Subcommittee on National Parks, which eventually endorsed it.

"The Adams vision of the rule of law, that a truly independent judiciary is essential to a healthy and vibrant democracy, has been embraced by countless other nations throughout the world," said Delahunt.

"It's high time we celebrated it here at home as well."

In response to questions from subcommittee members the witnesses speculated about possible locations and designs for the memorial — ranging from the Tidal Basin to the Supreme Court.

The scope and design of the proposed memorial would ultimately be determined by the National Capital Planning Commission.

The historians speculated that Adams' low-key treatment by history was due to his frankness, independence and modesty.

"While Jefferson tells us what we want to hear," said Ellis, "Adams tells us what we need to know."

The witnesses stressed that the memorial would also pay tribute to Abigail Adams, who was described by McCullough as husband John's "one woman Cabinet."

Delahunt detailed for the subcommittee the growing demands on the Adams National Historical Park and briefed members on his parallel proposal for an Adams memorial in Boston.

AN OVERTURNED SUV and a heavily damaged Saturn on Southern Artery near Brackett St., site of an accident Saturday morning allegedly caused by Paul Plante of Quincy, who faces charges of drunken driving and leaving the scene of an accident. Plante's car allegedly sideswiped the SUV of Kevin and Keith Hughes of Canton, who proceeded to collide with the car of Tara Kelliher of Quincy. The Hughes have been released from the hospital. As The Sun went to press Tuesday, Kelliher was still receiving care at Beth Israel Hospital. Story on Page 28.

Marina Bay Club Told To Turn Down Noise Levels

By CRAIG SALTERS

The city has told Waterworks at Marina Bay that the popular nightclub must adhere to noise levels of 75 decibels or below or else face the suspension or possible revocation of its entertainment license.

In response, Edward Kane, president of Earwell, Inc. and owner of Waterworks, said the decibel levels of the proposed agreement were "harshly low and well below what we need" but also expressed a desire to cooperate with the city on the issue.

Mayor James Sheets announced the planned agreement Tuesday following a meeting between himself and Kane. The meeting was also attended by Acting Police Chief William Falco.

Inspection Services Director Walter White, and two of the four Noise Control Officers who have been assigned to the area since May 31, the start of a noise control program initiated by the mayor as a result of discussions among business owners, residents, and management at the marina.

"I believe that this program will work and will set the standard for deciding any future noise control questions at Marina Bay," said Sheets, who said specific noise standards were based on data collected by the Noise Control Officers.

Sheets said that Kane was not pleased with the new agreement but that he expected the agreement to be signed this week so that enforcement of the new standards could begin before the weekend.

"I had to make a decision based on the data," said Sheets, who added that he did not anticipate a legal challenge to the agreement.

From Sale Of Silver Pieces

First Parish Church Invests $100,000 For Affordable Homes

The congregation of United First Parish Church, flush with a surplus from the sale of its silver, has voted to invest $100,000 at no interest for five years to help create 1,000 two-family affordable "Nehemiah" homes in the Greater Boston area.

The investment will be matched with a $200,000 investment by the Unitarian Universalist Association and become part of more than $5 million in loans raised by the Greater Boston Interfaith Organization (GBIO).

"We are very pleased to be sharing the proceeds from January's silver sale for the good of the community," said Dr. Jane Penhney, chair of the church's board of governors. "We are certain that our colonial forebears would be happy to have us do so."

The church's 11 pieces of silver, which dates back to colonial times, was auctioned off to pay a $1.7 million building repair bill. It was expected to bring in $1.3 million. Instead, it netted an unexpected $2.7 million.

One piece, the Col. John Quincy tankard which was bequeathed to Quincy by its namesake in 1767, was purchased by Quincy attorney George Burke for $160,000.

The housing funds raised from investments by religious denominations, community groups and labor unions will make up a revolving Construction Loan Trust to build homes for average working families.

The GBIO has challenged the governor, mayors and local officials around Greater Boston to match the sum that has been raised with land donations and limited subsidies.

Nehemiah Homes is named for the Biblical prophet who led the rebuilding of Jerusalem. The purchase price is expected to be about $190,000, well within the affordable range for families with incomes between $30,000 and $50,000.

The homes will be owner-occupied and will have rental units to help tenants looking for affordable apartments, as well as helping the owner to meet expenses.

"We are hopeful that Nehemiah Homes will make the opportunity of affordable home ownership available to more of Quincy's families," said the Rev. Sheldon Bennett, pastor of the First Parish Church. "We strongly believe that people who work in Quincy be able to afford to live in Quincy."

"We understand that local officials are very interested in the concept and will work with us for an 'exciting possibility' for Quincy. We are very optimistic that some of these homes will be built here. We will be meeting with appropriate parties in the near future."

"It is unconscionable that the price of houses in Quincy has increased 24 per cent in the last year and that virtually all apartments rent for $1,000 and much higher per month," said John Hunt, a GBIO leader.

"It's like 'Do Not Enter' signs are posted for long-time Quincy residents."

MOUND STREET BEACH will see $1,000 worth of improvements thanks to a recent donation of mitigation funds by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond (right) to the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission. "We deeply appreciate Councillor Raymond's contribution to our efforts," said QBC's Chairman Leo Kelly (center), who accepted the donation along with QBC Member Chickie Abdallah. Kelly said the funds, which can be used as the commission sees fit at Mound Street Beach, represent yet another positive step in the commission's goal of bringing Quincy residents "back to the beaches." ## Wreath Laying Ceremony Honors Birth Of John Quincy Adams

"He plants trees for future generations."

Those were the words offered last Wednesday by Adams National Historical Park Supervisory Ranger John Stanwich to those gathered at United First Parish Church for a wreath laying ceremony honoring John Quincy Adams on the occasion of his 234th birthday anniversary.

Stanwich was quoting John Quincy Adams, who was quoting Cicero, and the words proved appropriate as those "future generations" -- "successors in place," Council President Paul Harold called them -- honored the legacy of the nation's sixth president.

"Today we commemorate one of the most remarkable careers of public service in American history," said Rev. Sheldon Bennett, Minister of United First Parish Church, in his welcome to the more than 50 guests and, in addition to Stanwich and Harold, the day's featured speakers: Mayor James Sheets; Edward Fitzgerald, executive director of the Quincy Historical Society; and Commander Charles Wiseman, commanding officer of the Naval Reserve Center in Quincy, whose duty it was to lay the wreath on the tomb of John Quincy Adams on behalf of President George W. Bush.

"He truly dedicated his life to serving all of the people of this country," Commander Wiseman said in remarks preceding the traditional wreath laying in the crypt beneath the church.

John Quincy Adams' more than 60 years of public service -- as a diplomat, congressman, senator, secretary of state, and president -- provided speakers with a wealth of material in extolling the virtues of the man, who was born July 11, 1767 in Quincy, then known as the North Precinct of Braintree.

Mayor Sheets evoked images of the young John Quincy and mother Abigail waving to the militia on its way to Bunker Hill and other battles, the two uncertain of the outcome of those battles or of the nation's future. Commander Wiseman reminded listeners that John Quincy Adams was the only New England Federalist to vote for Thomas Jefferson's Louisiana Purchase, choosing the good of the country over the wishes of his party. Stanwich spoke of the young John Quincy as a 14-year old translator on the first American diplomatic mission sent to Russia.

The Historical Society's Fitzgerald, who said John Quincy Adams was enjoying a quieter but no less important historical reevaluation and appreciation than that of his father, President John Adams, noted John Quincy Adams' passionate fight against slavery and his articulate defense of the men aboard the slave ship Amistad.

But Fitzgerald also recalled a John Quincy Adams who, when caught up in a book, would eat one apple after another and leave the cores strewn about the Adams Old House.

"There's something about a man like that that you simply have to like," Fitzgerald said.

Harold, who serves as a member of the board of supervisors of the Adams Temple and School Fund, said he had participated in many such wreath layings but that this year's was unique.

"This is the first time we have the son of a president sending a wreath to the son of president on this anniversary celebration," said Harold.

Even if John Quincy Adams had not become president, Harold said, his numerous accomplishments, including the signing of the Treaty of Ghent ending the War of 1812 and his authorship of the Monroe Doctrine, merited remembrance.

Noting John Quincy Adams' constant appreciation of home, Harold called it appropriate that Adams' "successors in place" pay tribute to him on his birthday anniversary.

Prior to his term as president, 1825-1829, John Quincy Adams served at various times as a minister to Prussia, Russia, and Great Britain; a U.S. Senator from Massachusetts; and secretary of state under President James Monroe.

Following his presidency, Adams served for 16 years in the House of Representatives, dying on the House Floor in 1848.

Seaside Gardeners Seek Volunteers To Mow Gilbert Park

The Seaside Gardeners of Squantum are seeking volunteers to assist in the weekly mowing of the Gilbert Memorial Park.

This small park at the entry to Squantum is named for a local, young man, Danny Gilbert, who was killed in the Korean War.

In 1976 the garden club assumed responsibility for the park, creating the rock garden and donating the commemorative stone. Squantum residents Bill and Louise Grabowski were instrumental in the landscape design and continue to weed and trim "the triangle," but help is needed with mowing.

Anyone who is interested in being put on the schedule should call Laurie Kelliher at 617-773-2434.

The Seaside Gardeners have established a fund to pay for professional mowing when volunteers are unavailable. Checks payable to the Seaside Gardeners Mowing Fund may be sent to the club treasurer, Betty Ellis, 16 Harbor View St., Squantum.

Three Residents Vermont Graduates

Three students from Quincy have been awarded bachelor's degrees at the University of Vermont's 197th commencement.

They are James M. Conley, political science; Erin E. Kelley, business administration; and Edward A. McGillicuddy, biology.

Site Of WWII Memorial Work Begins On Formal Garden At Upper Merrymount Park

The Quincy Park Department has begun construction on the Formal Garden at Upper Merrymount Park.

The formal garden will be located in Merrymount Park, along Hancock St.

The formal garden will feature a decorative water fountain, meandering walking paths, park benches, a plethora of flowers, an interesting variety of tree species, a World War II Memorial, and a host of other plantings.

"The formal garden setting provides an opportunity not found elsewhere in our park system," said Mayor James Sheets. "The garden will provide people a peaceful, beautiful area to sit, relax, and enjoy the eclectic beauty of the garden. It will provide a passive recreational opportunity for people who may not benefit from baseball or soccer fields. It compliments our park system nicely."

The plan was inspired by the works of Frederick Law Olmstead and Olmstead Associate Herbert Kellaway. Kellaway's 1937 Master Plan for Merrymount Park was used as the basis for the new formal garden design. Quincy Landscape Architect Mary Smith combined the plans of Kellaway, the inspiration of Olmstead, and the needs of today's population to formulate a beautiful and practical park setting.

State Rep. Ronald Mariano secured $100,000 in state funding through the Department of Environmental Management's Historic Landscape Preservation Program to help fund the project. Mayor Sheets and the City Council have allocated $60,000 in matching local funds toward the project.

The Quincy Partnership has raised $100,000 in private donations for the purchase of the decorative water fountain, which will serve as the centerpiece of the formal garden.

"Representative Mariano has worked tirelessly to secure funding for this project for the past four years," said Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry, and Cemetery Departments. "Through his efforts, we will finally realize the century-old intentions of Olmstead and park benefactor Charles Francis Adams for a passive park setting. This project's success is due to the combination of state, local, and private support."

Construction will continue on the first phase of the project through the summer and fall of this year. The second phase of the project, which is scheduled to commence in early 2002, will include the World War II Memorial and the intersection changes at Hancock St. and Merrymount Parkway.

A LARGE TURNOUT was on hand Saturday for the opening of Mayor James Sheets' reelection campaign headquarters at 1514 Hancock St., Quincy Center. With the mayor are his wife, Joann, and daughter-in-law, Margaret, wife of son Tad Sheets, holding grandson Nicholas Tad Sheets, two months.

Center Plans Celebration Of 'First Ladies Of The Sky'

The Aviation History Info Center will hold a special celebration of Quincy's Aviation History Tuesday, July 24, with an emphasis on the early woman aviators Harriet Quimby and Amelia Earhart.

The celebration will take place at Beechwood on the Bay near the site of the Harvard Aviation Field and Dennison Airport from which Quimby and Earhart flew in the early days of flying.

"It seems fitting to remember Harriet Quimby and Amelia Earhart, our First Ladies of the sky, in July," said Sharron Beals, executive director of Beechwood and founder of the Aviation History Info Center.

Earhart was born in July, 1897; flew from Dennison Airport in July, 1927; and disappeared in the Pacific Ocean on an attempt to fly around the world in July, 1937.

Quimby, the first woman to earn a pilot's license, died when her plane crashed into Dorchester Bay on July 1, 1912, on a flight around Boston Light during the Third annual Harvard-Boston Aeromeet.

Beals said it is the Center's hope that Quincy residents who are non-members will visit the new Aviation Walk, dedicated last month to the city's aviation history.

Cost of the celebration is $5 per person. For further details, call the Center at 617-471-5712.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

FIT FOR A CROWN

If a substantial part of a tooth is lost to decay, wear, or repeated fillings, the dentist can provide a synthetic replacement for the upper part of the tooth known as a crown. Before this dental prosthesis can be attached, the tooth must first be prepared by grinding down a significant part of its enamel and some underlying dentin. If the tooth is badly weakened by decay, necessitating a root canal, the dentist will need to implant a metal post inside the tooth to help support the crown. The crown itself is typically made of porcelain over metal-alloy. All metal crowns are sometimes used on back teeth for added strength, while aesthetically pleasing all-porcelain crowns are sometimes used for front teeth.

Our dental services include crowns, bridges, dentures and cosmetic dentistry. For more information, or to schedule an appointment, please call us at 617-479-6220. It is important to us that any dental experience be a positive one for all patients. Our caring, friendly staff strives to make each visit pleasant and comfortable in a relaxed atmosphere. For gentle, caring dentistry for the entire family, come see us at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

P.S. To anchor a fixed bridge in place, the natural teeth on either side of the gap must be fitted with crowns.

Moments in time

• On July 16, 1769, Father Junipero Serra, a Spanish Franciscan missionary, founds the first Catholic mission in California, on the site of present-day San Diego. Serra eventually founded a total of nine missions.

• On July 19, 1799, during French Gen. Napoleon Bonaparte's Egyptian campaign, a group of his soldiers discovers a black basalt slab inscribed with ancient writing near the town of Rosetta. Experts eventually determined that the "Rosetta Stone," as it became known, held the key to solving the riddle of hieroglyphics.

Quincy Bay's Comeback

It's been a long time since Houghs Neck was called "The Flounder Capital of the World."

"Something like 20 years," says Leo Kelly, former Ward 1 city councillor and now chairman of the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission.

He remembers the chartered bus loads of fishing enthusiasts from New York and New Jersey rolling into Houghs Neck on weekends to hook flounder off its shores.

The buses would come from early spring into the fall and those who came seldom went home empty handed but with their coolers filled with their catch and headed for the family freezer.

Houghs Neck's flounder fishing grounds were famous.

But as Boston Harbor and Quincy Bay started to get filthy -- and then filthier -- the flounder went elsewhere and the buses stopped coming. Other fish vanished, too.

But Kelly now sees good signs for the future. "The flounder is beginning to come back, local fisherman and yacht club members tell me," he says.

"They also say mackerel is being caught again in the bay. Mackerel had disappeared from here long before the flounder did."

Kelly keeps tuned into what's going on along the waterfront. And likes what he's hearing.

"They say there's striped bass out there everywhere," he reports. "A lot of cod. The blues are showing up. And there was even a school of tuna sighted the other day in the Peddocks and Graves Island areas."

His conclusion:

"These are all signs that the Boston Harbor cleanup is working. The bay is coming back."

And there are other good signs.

"The city's beaches are also coming back," he says. "You see more and more young kids in the water. Even though there are now more swimming pools in the city than ever before."

The city beaches are: Avalon, Baker/Broadway, Edgewater Drive, Mound Street, Nickerson, Orchard, Parkhurst, Post Island and Rhoda.

Wollaston Beach is supervised by the MDC.

And one more good sign that Quincy residents are again interested in going to the beaches.

The booklet "A Guide To The Quincy Beaches" compiled by the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission is as popular in town as David McCullough's John Adams. And, it's free.

The first 5,000 copies this season were quickly scooped up and the booklet is now in its second printing of 1,500 more.

"Things look good," says Kelly.

"Who knows, maybe we'll be the flounder capital of the world again someday. With the bay improving as it is, I don't think that is far-fetched."

KELLY

CITY COUNCILLOR-County Treasurer Tim Cahill is endorsing state Senator Stephen Lynch as successor to the late Joe Moakley in the 9th Congressional District.

"I believe Stephen most embodies the qualities of Joe Moakley," Cahill says. "He is a worthy successor who will best help the families of the district."

As county treasurer, Cahill serves a number of communities in the 9th District.

Cahill is the second Quincy councillor to line up with Lynch. Pat McDermott, who is giving up the Ward 3 seat, was one of the first to join the Lynch camp and will actively work in his campaign.

CAHILL

YOU'D HAVE TO say that Steve Durkin, seeking re-election to the Ward 5 city council seat, has the most rare campaign worker this election year.

DURKIN

One named "Quincy."

And "Quincy" is the family's pet dog, a lovable female year-old mixed breed.

She likes to wear "Re-elect Durkin" bumper stickers which his daughters, Molly, 14, and Bridget, 7, put on her when the weather isn't hot.

"Quincy" gets more attention than a billboard as she parades down the street on a campaign tour.

BRYAN CONNOLLY, who is challenging incumbent Michael D'Amico for the Ward 4 city council seat, is an honor student at Boston College Law School.

Connolly was named to the prestigious College Law Review after finishing his first year ranked in the top 10 percent of his class.

He's a graduate of Boston College High School and Notre Dame University and worked at Catholic Charities in Boston before entering B.C. Law School last fall.

CONNOLLY

A "Back to the Beaches Party" fundraiser for Brian McNamee, candidate for city councillor at-large, is set for Thursday, July 26 7 to 10 p.m. at the Wollaston Yacht Club, Quincy Shore Drive. Suggested contribution is $25 at the door.

MCNAMEE

YOU REALLY DON'T have to look hard -- or far -- for an item about George Burke these days. There's the Col. John Quincy tankard he rescued from the auction block in New York City for almost $200,000. Then the recent honors: the Chancellor's Medal at his UMass Amherst alma mater, the Thayer Academy Hall of Fame, the Good Scout Award, etc., etc.

But he also felt honored by a recognition recently out in Cleveland. His brother, Jack, went to a book signing for Bill Russell's new book, Russell Rules.

Jack bought a couple of books and then asked Russell, "Do you remember George 'Trigger' Burke?" Russell looked up at him and said, "You look just like him."

George Burke was a high scoring basketball star at UMass and became a Boston Celtics rookie in 1957, the second year Russell was with the team.

"It was nice to be remembered by someone like Bill Russell," George says.

(Now, George, who could forget you!)

Bargain Center Expands Outside City Due To Parking

By PAUL HAROLD

Joseph Copleman, president of the Bargain Center, announced the store would expand outside the city, with harsh words concerning the city's failure to provide needed parking.

July 19 - 26
39 Years Ago

"The city disregards us completely. I have give up hope of getting parking here. I am going to try to divert all the business I possibly can," he said.

The Bargain Center had opened a store in East Boston and recently purchased 30,000 square feet of retail space in Somerville. Copleman said he planned to move many of his customers to locations outside Quincy, and that many large number of employees.

The store president scoffed at the city's planned $7.2 million in parking expansion downtown, pointing out that only $130,000 would be spent for improvements in the area near his store.

PAINE NAMED HOSPITAL DIRECTOR

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa named Harlan Paine, Jr., the new hospital director, replacing Dr. Joseph Leone, at a salary of $12,465 (plus living accommodations).

Paul Hurley, chairman of the hospital board of managers, said Paine was selected from a field of 60 applicants. The final screening was done by a committee from the board of managers and medical staff.

Paine was a career hospital administrator, having come from an assignment as head of the American University Hospital in Beirut, Lebanon.

LEGION CONVENTION COMING TO CITY

The American Legion's state convention was slated for Quincy in 1963, following a vote at the organization's Worcester convention this week.

The resolution to bring the convention to the city was pushed through the Legion's steering committee by Wollaston Legionnaire Arthur Senter. In the voting Quincy beat out Boston for the privilege of hosting the annual gathering.

William O'Connell, executive vice president of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce, said with the Legion convention Quincy was now in position to host future conventions of reasonable size.

Rumors that Dist. Atty. Myron Lane would be named a judge had candidates scurrying around with two sets of nomination papers. Among the first was Rep. James McIntyre who filed nomination papers for both re-election as representative and for district attorney. Other potential candidates mentioned were Assistant City Solicitor Stephen Keele, Jr. and Atty. Joseph McDonough. . . Abraham Mann, son of Rabbi Jacob Mann of Beth Israel Synagogue was ordained as a rabbi in New York. He would teach Hebrew before joining the military as a chaplain. He was a graduate of the Daniel Webster School. . . Republican candidate for U.S. Senate George Lodge began his 13,500-mile state campaign in Quincy with a stop at Angelo's Barber Shop in Quincy Square. Meanwhile, Joan Kennedy was boosting her husband's campaign with stops in the city including a coffee hour at the Conant Rd. home of Mr. and Mrs. James Moody. . . Rep. Joseph Brett called upon the city to acquire the treacherous granite grotto pile that was the scene of two deaths a few weeks ago. The mayor said he had estimates from Herbert Duane of the Duane Building and Wrecking Company of $160-$200 a day to level the rock pile adjacent to the Southeast Expressway in West Quincy. . . Bethany Church sold its parsonage on Presidents Lane to purchase the Arch home on Monroe Road for a new parsonage. . . Twenty members of the Youth for Peabody Committee met at the Furnace Brook Parkway home of Ann Rosenthal. . . ### Overcrowding At Central Middle School

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

According to the Department of Education, the reason the city of Quincy may be eligible to receive a $57 million school building grant is to relieve the problem of overcrowding at Central Middle School.

This plan is illogical. The proposed new high school will be too small to accommodate the present vocational enrollment. Therefore, the plan to relieve overcrowding in the middle school will create overcrowding in the high school.

There are many practical and inexpensive solutions to relieve overcrowding at Central. There is classroom space available in other middle schools such as the recently renovated Point Webster Middle School. District lines could be changed. Another solution is to relocate the Advanced Placement Program that is based at Central Middle School.

Coddington Hall would be a perfect building and location for the Advanced Placement students. It is a lovely brick school building in a central location, near transportation, tennis courts and ball fields and it is across the street from the Thomas Crane Public Library. The city of Quincy allows Quincy College to rent Coddington Hall, two large remodeled homes and a parking lot for $217,000 per year, yet Quincy is planning a $90 million school building project to relieve overcrowding in Central.

Central Middle School is one of the most beautiful, historic brick and granite buildings in Quincy. Shade trees, Butlers Pond and the lovely gardens and grounds of the historic Dorothy Quincy Estate surround it.

Central also has access to the most well-maintained sports field in Quincy. It is a wonderful building and perfect location for a middle school. If the school needs an addition, classrooms could be built over the gymnasium or surrounding property could be bought and an addition could be built alongside Central.

Quincy could provide a quality education to our students by maintaining the current well-built school buildings and their luxurious space. Central Middle School, Quincy High School and Coddington Hall are quality structures in lovely locations and taxpayers would be fortunate to have these buildings maintained and used for our public school students.

Bob Bell Scholarship Fund Raiser Thanks

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The Fund Raiser Dance held on the USS Salem on May 18 in memory of former Quincy resident Bob Bell successfully added to the proceeds available for the annual Bob Bell Scholarship Fund. The members of the planning committee for the event wish to thank those supporters who purchased tickets for the evening and the host of local businesses who donated raffle items.

The second annual round of scholarships to two students at North Quincy High School were presented by Susan Bell in early May. The proceeds of this latest event will be invested and will continue to fund future scholarships in Bob's memory.

In addition to proceeds raised directly from the evening's festivities, special cash donations were added to the scholarship fund by Bell family members and by many individuals, businesses, and firms who came to know and appreciate Bob's contribution to the Quincy community through his personal and real estate relationships.

The committee wishes to thank the following individuals and local businesses who contributed to the success of this year's event:

Special thanks to: Susan Bell, Lisa and Mark Cicchese, The Cicchese Family, Mary Denzler, Canam Consultants, Inc., Spillane & Epstein, P.C., The USS Salem, Joanne Condon-Walsh, and the ship's volunteers.

And the following local businesses: Abigail's Crossing, Allied American Insurance Agency, Barry's Deli, Frank Brillo Catering, Cagney's Restaurant, Captain Fishbones Restaurant,

Caryn's Corner, Century 21 Annex Realty, Century 21 Liberty, Classic Homes/GMAC Real Estate, Common Market Restaurant, Consumer Home Mortgage, Jack Conway Real Estate, Custom House Restaurant, David J. Donaghue Insurance, ERA Central, Finian's Restaurant & Pub, J.J. Foley's, Grand Canal-Canal Street/Boston, Green Dragon, Officer Jack Haines, Jimbo's South of Braintree, DJ Mike Keally, Kelleher Mackey Insurance, Northeast Mortgage Associates, NQHS Bookstore, NQHS PAC, Attorney George T. Padula, Parkway Texaco, Tapestry Florist of Quincy, Tiger Home Inspection, state Rep. A. Stephen Tobin, and Dr. Allan Yacubian.

Additional donations in support of the fund can still be made to: The Bob Bell Scholarship Fund, 38 Jenness St., Quincy, MA 02169. For more information, call (617) 471-2437. Organizers hope to continue to hold an annual event to assist in the growth of the fund.

Sharon Kennedy Storyteller At Main Library July 24

The 15th annual Summer Storytellers Series at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Square, continues Tuesday, July 24 with Sharon Kennedy.

The programs, which take place at 7 p.m. in the large meeting room of the library, are for families with children ages 5 and older.

The series is sponsored by the Quincy Arts Lottery with a grant from the Massachusetts Cultural Council.

Kennedy will tell stories of knights in shining armor, wizards, magic, chivalry, courage and transformations.

The series will feature Len Cabral July 31, George Capaccio Aug. 7 and conclude with Karen Glickman and Tony Toledo Aug. 14.

Also at 7 p.m. on Tuesdays, a Pajama Time Story-hour with Dottie Moynihan is offered for younger siblings accompanied by an adult and families with children under the age of five. These programs take place in the Story Room at the Main Library Children's Room.

Barnyard tales are scheduled for July 24 and teddy bear tales, July 31. Stories of Marc Brown's Arthur will be featured Aug. 7 and the series will conclude with some of Mrs. Moynihan's favorites Aug. 14.

In addition, the library is offering many ongoing programs this summer. There is no registration required for any summer programs. Simple drop-in craft programs are being held at a different branch each day. The craft for the week of July 23 is moonscapes. Drop-in storytimes for different ages will be offered beginning with a storytime for 2-3 year olds, accompanied by an adult, on Thursdays during July at 10:30.

The program will take place in the Story Room at the Main Library.

LOIS HIRSHBERG, daughter of Mollie and Dr. Sumner Hirshberg, thanks all who attended the jazz concert to memorialize Dr. Hirshberg, Anthony Ferrante, Anthony Rose, Myron "Mike" Segal, and Gordon Crosier, all former members of the Olde Kids on the Block, a 20 piece band that plays Big Band arrangements. Behind Hirshberg are some members of the Sumner Hirshberg Pro-Dixie Band, from left: Vincent Hennessy and Guy Bognanno, both clarinet; John DiMasi, trombone; and Paul Ricca, trumpet. Proceeds from the event, which was sponsored by the Hirshberg Family and the Dental Associates of Quincy, went to the Mollie Hirshberg Fund.

Jazz/Swing Combo To Perform On Library Lawn July 26

Award-winning jazz vocalist and songwriter Krisanthi Pappas and her four-piece band, "Krisanthi's Swing Combo," will perform on the lawn of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Square, Thursday, July 26 from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m.

Music will include lively jazz standards and swing favorites for people of all ages. Concertgoers are welcome to bring lawn chairs, beach blankets, picnics. In case of inclement weather the concert will be held in the library atrium. The concert, funded in part by the Quincy Arts Council, is free and accessible.

Pappas performs regularly at Foxwoods Casino, Regattabar and Scullers Jazz Club in Boston as well as spending winters performing in the Caribbean. It is her second appearance at the library. She is the creator and star of "Celebratin' Swing" — a full theatrical production which recently made its world premiere to sellout audiences at the Orpheum Foxborough and will be traveling to theatres nationwide. Krisanthi's CDs have received high accolades and airplay on numerous radio stations in Boston and throughout the country.

As a popular full-time performer, she has shared the stage with Chuck Mangione, Kevin Mahogany and Manhattan Transfer's Cheryl Bentyne, and has been chosen to perform in the Metro South Jazz Festival this summer. This event features Grammy-award winning saxophonist Branford Marsalis, the Yellowjackets, Gary Burton and Makoto Ozone.

David McCullough To Speak At Partnership Fundraiser

Pulitzer Prize winning author and historian David McCullough will be the guest speaker at a fundraiser sponsored by the Quincy Partnership Oct. 30 at the new Boston Marriott Hotel in Quincy.

McCullough, whose recently released biography of John Adams is already in its fourth printing and has been on the New York Times Bestseller List since publication, will comment on the life and times of the nation's second president as well as on the book itself.

Edward Keohane, owner of Keohane Funeral Home and chairman of the Quincy Partnership, said McCullough's visit will serve as the main fundraiser for the Quincy Partnership as it seeks to construct a statue of John Adams in front of City Hall.

The new statue, estimated to cost $60,000, will be done by sculptor Lloyd Lillie, the same artist who created the statues of Abigail Adams and young John Quincy Adams across from City Hall beside First Church of the Presidents.

McCullough, Keohane said, is making his Oct. 30 appearance at the request of Marianne Peak, superintendent of the Adams National Historical Park and a member of the Quincy Partnership, but McCullough has also appeared at other Partnership events and recently invited many Partnership members to a lecture he gave at the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C.

"He's very supportive of Partnership activities," Keohane said.

Keohane added that there has already been a tremendous amount of interest generated for the Oct. 30 fundraiser. "People have been calling about it and we haven't even printed the tickets yet," he said.

The black-tie optional event will have seating for 400 guests and tickets will be sold at $150 apiece.

For more information on the event, contact Keohane at (617) 773-3551.

The Quincy Partnership began in 1989 for the purpose of privately funding civic-minded projects across the city.

Andy Card Guest At Historical Society Fund Drive Kickoff

Andrew H. Card Jr., the chief of staff in President George W. Bush's White House, will be a special guest of the Quincy Historical Society Friday, July 27, at 12 noon.

Card will appear at a benefit inaugurating the Historical Society's Capital Fund Drive at the John Adams Building in State Street South, 1776 Heritage Drive off Newport Avenue, North Quincy.

Tickets are $100 per person and are available from the Historical Society, 617-773-1144, or from its President Joyce Baker at 617-471-5439.

Card, who grew up in Holbrook, will offer some informal remarks, drawing on his professional experiences and his personal impressions as a native of this area.

After his talk, those in attendance will be able to meet the guest of honor.

Baker said the event, which is sponsored by State Street South, will feature a buffet luncheon. Mayor James Sheets will be on hand to extend the greetings of the city.

Among the special materials on display will be the Colonel John Quincy silver tankard, courtesy of George G. Burke with the cooperation of Mayor Sheets and the Quincy Police Department.

ANDREW CARD

Storyboards of the Society's plans for restoration, renovation and a new comprehensive exhibit at the QHS headquarters in the Adams Academy Building will also be shown.

"We think this will be a most special event," said Baker, who is a longtime acquaintance of Card. "We are please to be able to welcome a neighbor back to Quincy. And we are fortunate that Andy recognizes the important work of the Historical Society."

Bike Ride/Tour Saturday At Squantum Point Park

Environmental Treasures of Quincy will present a family bike ride/tour of Squantum Point Park Saturday with the ride starting at 10:30 a.m. and the tour at noon.

Bike Quincy, a cycling advocacy group, will host and lead the three-mile family ride for all ages which will be only on paved trails and a short stretch of lightly traveled roadway.

The tour starts at the Squantum Point Parking Lot.

Helmets are required for all ages of riders. A variety of bike helmets will be available for purchase for only $10 in partnership with the Kiwanis Club of Quincy.

Around noon, John Amodeo, landscape architect with Carol Johnson Associates of Cambridge, will conduct a tour of the newly dedicated waterfront park. Amodeo, who headed up the park project, will discuss the park's design and history.

Throughout the event, Bike Quincy members will be on hand to offer safety and riding tips and suggest road-riding routes in Quincy and environs.

Participants should feel free to pack a picnic lunch.

DIANE DANIEL of Bike Quincy stops to survey the Neponset River entering the ocean at Squantum Point Park, a highlight of the bike tour Saturday in conjunction with the Environmental Treasures of Quincy program.

Bike Quincy was formed in November of 2000 to promote a bicycle-friendly city and improve conditions for all cyclists in the Quincy area including bike commuters, casual riders, ride club members, racers, and families.

Mayor James Sheets formed the Bike Quincy Commission, made up of eight Bike Quincy members and representatives from several city departments including Traffic, Parks, and Schools.

Some of Bike Quincy's goals are to work with the schools to promote cycling education for children and provide safe routes to school, to coordinate efforts with the Traffic Department to educate drivers that bikes have a legal right to share the roadways, and to create safer cycling routes around the city.

Rain date for the event is Sunday.

For more information, call Diane at (617) 328-0064.

90th Birthday Celebration For Retired Officer Morgan O'Regan

Retired Quincy Police Officer Morgan O'Regan celebrated his 90th birthday in style recently as the surprise guest of honor at the weekly meeting of the Retired Quincy Police Officers Breakfast Club at Webster's Eatery on Scammell St.

"He knew he was invited to breakfast but he had no idea it was in his honor," said fellow retired Quincy Police Officer William O'Donnell, who initiated the birthday breakfast along with retired Quincy Police Officer Robert Wilson.

Usually 15 or so retired officers show up for the weekly breakfast at Scammell's, said O'Donnell, who emphasized the informality of the group which, he said, really didn't have a name but has been meeting for almost two decades.

But O'Donnell said breakfast club numbers doubled to celebrate O'Regan's birthday. "Word got around, I guess," he said.

O'Regan, whose last beat was Hancock St. near School St and who retired over three decades ago, was driven to the breakfast in a stretch limo courtesy of Red Rose Limousine Service at the request of retired Quincy Police Officer Don Pearson. At the end of the breakfast O'Regan was presented with a cake as well as a laminated photo of one of the more dramatic moments of his career: O'Regan's heroic rescue of a drowning night watchman with the assistance of O'Donnell and another fellow officer, the late Dante Pettinelli.

O'Regan thanked the group and spent the morning joking and reminiscing with old friends.

"He's just a great guy," said O'Donnell, who described himself as one of the "regulars" at the weekly breakfasts, "and he looks ready to go back to work right now."

"I'd drive in old car four with him tonight," O'Donnell added.

Quincy Legion Post Honors Point Webster, Central Graduates

Point Webster and Central Middle School outstanding graduates were recently honored by Quincy Legion Post at its awards ceremonies.

Commander Kenneth Menz, assisted by Principals James McGuire and Frank Santoro, presented plaques with mounted American Legion school certificates to Diana DiCesare and John Santon of Point Webster and Shelly Donovan and Adam Graeber of Central Middle School. Each received a gold lapel pin from past sergeant at arms David Wood of Quincy Legion Post.

Program Chairman Robert Leo Eng, past state commander, cited the high qualities met by the eighth-grade graduating class winners: courage, honor, leadership, patriotism, scholarship and service to their schools and community.

Delahunt Hopes Olympic Games Bring More Freedom In China

Cong. Bill Delahunt has congratulated the people of China for acquiring the 2008 Summer Olympic Games, but with a proviso.

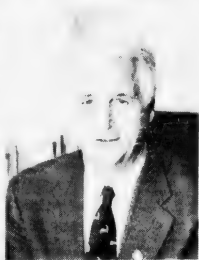

"I hope," he said, "their government will use this opportunity not only to beautify their cities but to give greater freedom to the people who inhabit them."

Delahunt recently led a bipartisan congressional effort stressing human rights considerations in the selection of the city that will host the games.

"Some have taken the view that China's human rights record ought to disqualify Beijing from consideration," said Delahunt in a statement issued shortly after the International Olympic Committee's selection was announced.

"As a member of the House International Relations Committee, I strongly share the concerns about that record --- but I also share the hope that the Olympics will help create momentum for positive change."

Prior to the selection, Delahunt and 30 congressional colleagues sent a letter to IOC President Juan Antonio Samaranch urging the IOC to seek assurances from the candidates that they would not violate human rights during the games.

"I heard from the Chinese government and I know that the letter got their attention," said Delahunt.

"According to news reports, Chinese officials have given assurances on one of the principal concerns we raised --- that journalists be free to report on any subject from anywhere in China, both before and during the games.

"This is a very positive development and my colleagues and I will continue to monitor the implementation of that commitment.

"In this and other respects, it will now be incumbent on the Chinese to ensure that the 2008 games are conducted in the spirit of freedom and openness which the international community expects of every host country.

"The eyes of the world will be upon them and I hope they will rise to the challenge."

USS Salem Host Summer Adventure Program

The United States Naval Shipbuilding Museum is sponsoring the USS Salem Summer Adventure Program to introduce young people to life aboard a real Navy ship.

The program will run from July 30 to Aug. 3 and Aug. 6-10 and the cost is $250 per week.

Participants will live on board the USS Salem and will sleep in the former crews quarters. Meals will be served in the ship's mess and include breakfast, lunch, dinner and nighttime snacks.

The program includes visits to historic sites in Quincy and Boston, including a cruise to Boston Harbor to visit historic Fort Warren on Georges Island. An overnight camping trip on one of the Boston Harbor Islands is also available.

Space is limited to 100 participants per week. A limited number of day program slots are also available.

The USS Salem is located at the Fore River Shipyard, next to Harbor Express, Quincy Point. For more information call 617-479-4900.

MOUNTING CONCERNS

Engine mounts are designed to dampen any shaking movement that the powertrain might otherwise conduct to the rest of the vehicle. Automobile manufacturers have gone to considerable lengths in recent years to design engine mounts that perform admirably. They have engineered shapes, specific hardness, and cutouts (called "voids") that tune their operation. Some are even outfitted with electronic controls. The engine mounts in older vehicles, on the other hand, are likelier made up of simple two-piece metal brackets outfitted with rubber bushings. When these become worn, drivers will likely feel the engine shaking at idle. Then, upon acceleration, the engine might shudder. When these symptoms arise, it is time to have the engine mounts checked and replaced, if necessary.

LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO invites your inquiries about most anything connected with the care of your car. Our ASE Certified technicians are highly skilled so they can do everything necessary to keep your car in excellent running condition whether that means something simple to complex engine work. We're here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. We're "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." We're your local source for propane for grills, motor homes and converted vehicles.

HINT: In some cases, engine mounts have hydraulic chambers filled with silicone fluid. These may show signs of leakage when they fail.

David McGillicuddy Candidate For Ward 3 Council Seat

David P. McGillicuddy officially announces his candidacy for the city of Quincy's Ward 3 council seat and promises to be the eyes, ears, and voice of Ward 3.

A resident of Quincy for the past 35 years, McGillicuddy brings his extensive management and community service background in both public and private sectors to his election campaign.

McGillicuddy said his commitment to community was fostered during his 27-year career at NYNEX/New England Telephone, where he began his career as a Union Craftsman which led to his position as Manager of External Affairs/Community Relations. In this position, he acted as the NYNEX/New England Telephone representative to greater Boston neighborhoods, community groups, and businesses.

McGillicuddy was responsible for resolving critical issues with community and political leaders while assisting corporate executives in achieving their organizational goals and objectives. During his tenure McGillicuddy made it his priority to bring the needs of the community to the company. He mentored high school students, for which he received the N.E.T. Award and was cited by the governor. He was closely involved in the creation and implementation of the U.S. First Robotics Competition, which fosters the development of engineering skills for high school students.

"Through my years of community service on all levels, I have developed the insight and skills necessary to bring about positive changes. I am dedicated to working together with the people of Ward 3 to bring about the changes you demand," said McGillicuddy.

McGillicuddy said he is devoted to the city of Quincy and its people. He introduced National Night Out to the city of Quincy. This annual event, held the first Tuesday in August, is an opportunity to present members of the Quincy police force to the community they service and to join forces to establish crime watch groups to safeguard Quincy's neighborhoods.

"I am a firm believer that most answers to community problems can be found within that community, you just have to carefully listen to the citizens' requests," McGillicuddy said. "I look forward to applying this philosophy to the position of Ward 3 councillor and believe that I can be the eyes, ears, and voice of your neighborhood."

McGillicuddy is currently Ward 3 Democratic Committee Chairman and a member of the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association. He is retired from NYNEX. He is also a former member of the IBEW, Local 2222, Teamsters Local 504, and for three years was the organization coordinator responsible for recruiting volunteers for the Special Olympics in the Greater Boston Area. In addition, he was a coach for Koch Club baseball, basketball, and Quincy Youth Soccer.

McGillicuddy is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts with a bachelor's degree in community planning and management. He resides with his wife Linda at 88 Elmwood Ave. in Quincy. He has three grown children, David, Dana, and Mark.

McGillicuddy welcomes any volunteers to his campaign and is interested in hearing of concerns or suggestions from Ward 3 residents about the problems in the ward. McGillicuddy may be reached at (617) 376-3260.

Farmers' Market Grand Opening

Mayor James Sheets will officiate the Grand Opening of the 2001 Farmers' Market Season Friday at noon at the Hancock Municipal Parking Lot.

The market operates Friday from 11:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. from now until the end of October, rain or shine.

On hand for the Grand Opening will be nutrition educators from the University of Massachusetts to stir fry vegetables from the market and hand out recipes and nutrition information for health diets that include at least five fruits and vegetables a day. Area chefs will also demonstrate the use of seasonal produce, inviting customers to sample and answering questions on new varieties of ethnic vegetables now appearing at Quincy Farmers' Market.

Alan Cousin Bows Out Of Ward 3 Race

Alan H. Cousin, candidate for City Council from Ward 3, announced Tuesday that he is withdrawing from the race.

"I misjudged the amount of support I could generate this year," Cousin said in making the announcement. "There is not enough to justify going forward."

Cousin explained further that the crowded field in Ward 3 -- John Cain, Kevin Coughlin, John Garland, David McGillicuddy, and John Rodophele are still vying to replace Councillor Patrick McDermott, who has chosen not to run for reelection -- warranted raising a large amount of money to advertise and "stand out above the crowd."

Cousin said contributions from two fundraisers allowed him to send a bulk mailing to roughly 4,00 residents in Ward 3 and purchase lawn signs but in the end, he said, it wasn't enough.

Cousin thanked friends and supporters, singling out Campaign Treasurer John Spada and staff member Shereda Hosein. He added that he would remain active citywide on issues such as fiscal responsibility and city management.

I.B.E.W. Local 2222 Endorses Finn For Councillor At-Large

Local 2222 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers has endorsed the candidacy of Joe Finn for councillor at-large in Quincy.

The Quincy-based union has over 1,000 members living in Quincy.

P.J. Foley, vice president of the Committee on Political Education, said, "Our union is extraordinarily pleased to endorse Joe's candidacy and is squarely behind him 100 percent. We know that he is best suited to represent the interest of working families and will fill the void of outgoing at-large Councillor Paul Harold who has always been with us."

Joseph Lavin On Bryant Dean's List

Joseph P. Lavin of Quincy was named to the Dean's List for the spring semester at Bryant College in Smithfield, R.I.

Ward 4 Community Policing Barbecue To Be Held Friday

The fourth annual Ward 4 Community Policing Cookout will take place tomorrow (Friday) beginning at 6 p.m. on the grounds of the Ward 4 Community Center, 100 Brooks Ave.

The event will feature Mounted Police, K-9 Units, Community Police Division, Emergency Management, Crime Watch, and the Police Athletic League (PAL). There will also be a four-piece band.

There will be a 6:30 ceremony where police representatives will lead a small procession from the Lincoln Hancock Elementary School to the Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Learning Center.

As in past years, said Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico, the invitation to the barbecue is extended to residents throughout the entire city.

'Island Breeze' Concert Aboard USS Salem Sunday

The Sunday Summer Concert Series continues July 22 from 2 to 4 p.m. aboard the USS Salem at the Fore River Shipyard in Quincy.

The third group appearing will be "Island Breeze," a Caribbean steel pan trio.

Admission is $6 per adult and $4 for a child or senior. There is seating under the "tent" for the first 100 people who attend. Refreshments are available and a tour of the USS Salem Naval Shipbuilding Museum is included in the admission price.

Each Sunday through Sept. 2 there will be a different group providing entertainment for all ages. For more information call 617-479-7900.

Free Smoking Cessation Program At QMC

Bay State Community Services is offering a free eight-week smoking cessation program at Quincy Medical Center.

Charlene McDonald, smoking cessation counselor, will lead the group through a series of six smoking cessation counseling sessions that provide education on methods for ceasing tobacco use, supportive counseling during the early quitting period, information and advice on nicotine replacement therapy, and referral to individual smoking cessation counseling.

The present session, being held on Tuesday evenings at 6 p.m. at the hospital, started this weekend and will run for six weeks. Nicotine patches are available as part of this program at a small co-payment along with counseling.

Call McDonald at 617-472-6027, ext. 213, to register or for more information.

Three Days Of Good Buys And Good Fun Starts Thursday 31st Sidewalk Festival In Quincy Center

Quincy Center will once again transform itself into an outdoor bazaar filled with food, entertainment, and terrific bargains as the 31st Annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival begins today (Thursday) for a three-day run through Saturday.

The event, sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, will be held on Hancock St., which will be closed to vehicular traffic from Granite St. up to Hancock Ct.

Shoppers will be able to stroll down the middle of Hancock St. dotted with 85 canopied booths and turned into a pedestrian mall, leisurely looking over merchandise in front of stores and at vendors and crafters' booths.

"The entertainment this year is bigger and better than ever," said QCBPA Executive Director Maralin Manning, who emphasized an increase in children's entertainment -- especially on Saturday morning -- and the return of The Vibe Jazz Quartet with Matthias Lupri, a crowd favorite of last year's festival.

In addition to live broadcasts from several familiar Boston radio stations, Manning said Quincy's own WJDA 1300 AM will be on location several times throughout the festival to catch the local flavor of what has become a Quincy tradition.

Entertainment and other activities are scheduled from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. today (Thursday) and tomorrow

DRAW THE LINE, an Aerosmith tribute group, headlines Friday night's entertainment at the Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival. Known for their high energy performances, the group promises the look, sound, and feel of Aerosmith and their 25 years of hit music.

(Friday) and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Featured performers for the 31st Annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival are:

The Vibe Jazz Quartet with Matthias Lupri, from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m., Thursday night, sponsored by State Street Bank and Sherman Realty. Making a return engagement, the group has been scheduled in a later time slot to let early evening audiences hear what noon-time strollers raved about last year.

Also performing Thursday are: Suzanne Lockwood, 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., sponsored by Flatley Company; Mix 98.5 FM, broadcasting live from noon to 2 p.m.; Pickles the Clown, noon to 2 p.m., sponsored by Jeff Hannon, Three Phase Elevator; and Skip Daniels, trickster and entertainer, from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m., sponsored by Sovereign Bank.

Draw The Line, from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m., Friday night, sponsored by Norfolk Electric and Eastern Bank. This Aerosmith tribute group enjoys a large following on the South Shore as it presents the look, sound, and feel of Aerosmith and their 25 years of familiar hits.

Also performing Friday are: A live broadcast of WROR 105.7 FM's Loren & Wally Show from 5:30 a.m. to 9 a.m. in front of Stephen Leigh Jewelers;

SHOPPERS WILL AGAIN be able to leisurely stroll down Hancock St. looking for good buys at the 31st annual Sidewalk Festival sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. Hancock St. will be closed off to vehicular traffic.

(Marilyn Manning photo)

PUPPETEER DONNA MARIE and friends, a fan favorite of previous sidewalk festivals, returns for a Saturday morning performance sponsored by Stop & Shop Supermarkets. "She really draws the children into her performance," said QCBPA Executive Director Maralin Manning of Donna Marie's use of singing, dancing, and audience participation to engage young children. "It's wonderful."

The Festival Committee

A committee of Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA) members and staff planned this 31st Annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival.

Joanne Falco, owner of Professional Cuts, ETC. served as chairwoman of the committee, which included: Jeff Bertman, Rogers Jewelry; Steve Blumberg, Stephen Leigh Jewelers; Henry Bosworth, The Quincy Sun; Sandy Cavanaugh, Superfitness; Gerri Dussault, River Bay; Richard Gormley, Sovereign Bank.

Jeff Hannon, 3 Phase Elevator; Bill Holmes, Stop & Shop; Sean Kenealy, Key Realty; Arthur Morin, The Patriot Ledger; Charles Ryder, Ryder's Home Decor; Caryn Smith, Caryn's Corner; Tina Tuggle, Papa Gino's; QCBPA Executive Director Maralin Manning; and Marie Watts, QCBPA secretary.

Windfall, from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday afternoon, sponsored by Congress Group Ventures. This contemporary group with a featured vocalist rounds out the entertainment for the festival.

Also performing Saturday are: Donna Marie, puppeteer, 11 a.m. to noon, sponsored by Stop & Shop; Allan Belanger as Spunky T. Clown, noon to 1 p.m., sponsored by Bank of Canton and South Shore Savings Bank; Pickles the Clown, noon to 2 p.m., sponsored by Jeff Hannon, Three Phase Elevator; and WXXS 108 FM broadcasting live from noon to 2 p.m.

There will also be continuing demonstrations by Jae Kim's Tae Kwon Do students and demonstrations by the Norfolk County Sheriff's Drug Sniffing Dog Team.

Each year the festival proves to be the perfect opportunity for the local work force to spend their lunch time dining and shopping outdoors amidst the festivities, Manning said.

The ample free parking available on Saturday, she added, makes the day the perfect choice for the whole family.

DANN BROWN of Quincy with "Kerry," a specially trained capuchin monkey who assists Brown, who has a spinal cord injury, with daily activities. Brown and Kerry will visit the Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival Thursday and Friday mornings at the booth of Helping Hands: Monkey Helpers for The Disabled, the organization which trained Kerry.

Festival Booth Shows How Monkeys Can Aid The Disabled

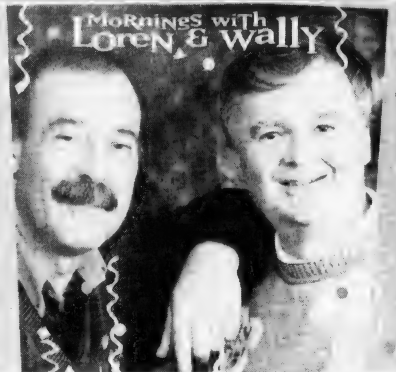

Quincy residents Betsy and Dann Brown will assist in the Helping Hands: Monkey Helpers for the Disabled booth this morning (Thursday) and tomorrow morning (Friday) at the Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival.

The Browns will give festival goers the chance to meet "Kerry," a capuchin monkey who has been specially trained to assist Dann, who has a spinal cord injury, with his daily activities.

Those interested in getting involved with the organization as a foster parent to one of these special monkeys can learn more about the Foster Family Program at the Helping Hands booth, located in front of Professional Cuts, ETC., or by calling (617) 787-4419.

Located in Boston, Helping Hands: Helpers for the Disabled trains capuchin monkeys and places them throughout the country with quadriplegics who need their help.

WROR'S LOREN & WALLY will broadcast their morning show live Friday from 5:30 a.m. until 9 a.m. in front of Stephen Leigh Jewelers as part of the 31st Annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival. The popular morning team consists of Loren Owens (left) and Wally Brine.

SPUNKY T. CLOWN, also known as Allan Belanger, makes his appearance Saturday at noon at the Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival.

City Receives $50,000 Grant To Assist First-Time Homebuyers

Quincy's Beacon Hill delegation jointly announces the city has been awarded $50,000 from the state Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD) to be used to assist first-time homebuyers of low and moderate income.

Senator Michael Morrissey and Reps. Ronald Mariano, Bruce Ayers and Stephen Tobin said the grant funding comes from the state's Soft Second Loan Program administered by DHCD and the Massachusetts Housing Partnership Fund (MHP).

The Soft Second Loan Program makes buying a home easier by providing a subsidized second mortgage to go along with a conventional first mortgage from a private lender. The mortgage is arranged with 75 percent of the purchase price representing the first mortgage, 20 percent of the purchase price being financed by the soft-second mortgage and the remaining 5 percent being provided as a downpayment by the buyer. Furthermore, the state subsidizes the interest payments on the second mortgage for the first nine years of homeownership.

"Home prices in Quincy have skyrocketed,"

Morrissey said. "The soft-second program will help families that might not otherwise be able to buy a home."

The program is limited to first-time homebuyers who meet certain income guidelines.

"We encourage any interested parties to contact the MHP Fund at 617-727-7824 for information on these loans," Mariano said. "For example, the income limit for a family of four in the Greater Boston area is approximately $52,500. Eligible properties must fall in the following price ranges: $150,000 to $180,000 for condominiums and single-family homes, $180,000 to $225,000 for a two-family home, and $200,000 to $270,000 for a three-family home."

"Everybody has the dream of owning their first home," Tobin said. "I am pleased to help hard-working people attain meaningful assistance to help them realize this dream."

Downpayment Assistance Available From Government

Financial Assistance Network in Washington, D.C., has published a new booklet, "How To Collect Government Money For Housing & Real Estate — Even If You Don't Have Perfect Credit."

The booklet includes information on a how and where to get government money to help people realize the American dream of owning their own home.

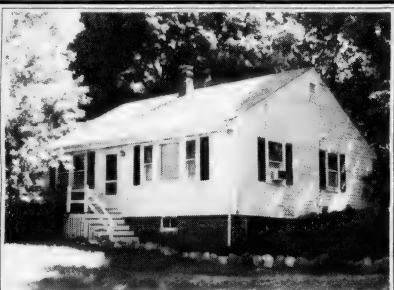

"The American Dream

Downpayment Fund will provide $200 million in downpayment assistance to help 130,000 low-income families buy homes," said Jim Surasak, a researcher at Financial Assistance Network.

In addition, the Bush administration recently announced a program to allow people who receive low-income rental assistance to bundle a year's worth of payments and use the money for a downpayment, or to make monthly payments on a new mortgage."

Real Estate in the New Era

by Vin Moscardelli
Owner/Broker

IMPROVING PROSPECTS

There usually comes a time when homeowners outgrow their homes, forcing the decision whether to move or improve. While some may feel comfortable remaining in their present homes and expanding their living space, this course of action may not make the most financial sense in the long run. If owners over-improve, they may not recover the money put into the remodeling project. Even worse, over-improvement may put the house into a price category that far exceeds those of other homes in the immediate neighborhood, rendering the home exceedingly difficult to sell. These concerns should be carefully weighed in consultation with a real estate agent, who can examine the desired improvements and price them out in comparison with similarly equipped homes.

Have you outgrown your home? In the quest for additional space, some homeowners may increase the value of their homes over that of other homes in the neighborhood. In this situation, it may be difficult to recoup their remodeling investment in the long run. ERA CENTRAL REAL ESTATE can provide you with a market analysis of your current home and show you a wide listing of homes that may be more suitable to your lifestyle needs. Our services to sellers include the listing of their homes on our web site and in local papers, coordination of open houses, and assistance in locating a new home. Call us at 328-1312, or visit us at 128 McGrath Highway.

HINT: A consultation with a real estate agent can help homeowners with their decisions to free up equity at the time of a remortgage.

Face Foxboro Friday In First Round Game

Quincy Legion In Playoffs

By CHRIS POISSON

And the winner of the fifth and final playoff spot in the American Legion Baseball District 6 East playoffs is... drum roll, please...

Quincy.

After winning an electrifying, must-win game last Friday night against Cohasset in its regular season finale, Quincy must have spent the entire weekend wondering if its heroics were all for naught.

Canton and Cohasset each had two games left beginning Monday night. If either team won its remaining games, then Quincy would be left out of the postseason party. As it turns out both teams lost Monday, ending all the drama surrounding the three-team battle royal for the final spot.

Quincy (9-11) will face Foxboro in the first round of the playoffs with a best-of-three series beginning tomorrow (Friday) at 6 p.m. at Foxboro. Game 2 will be played Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at Adams Field and, if necessary, Game 3 will be Sunday at Foxboro.

"As far as the playoffs go, don't let our 9-11 record fool you," said head coach Bob Benn. "These guys can play the game. Many of those losses were by one and two runs. We all made mistakes early in the season, which cost some games, and we've learned from them."

In the Friday the 13th thriller over Cohasset, all the excitement took place over the final two innings. Trailing 5-1 in the top of the sixth, Quincy center fielder Wayne Moynihan saved a run when he made a spectacular diving catch with his back towards the infield. He bruised his ribs on the play and had to leave the game.

"Most people were saying, 'I can't believe he caught that.' Well, we say, 'Only Wayne could make a catch like that.' This kid continues to amaze us every game. This catch was beyond belief. I have never seen a catch like that at any level."

Moynihan's fearlessness seemed to galvanize his teammates as they exploded for five runs in the bottom half to take a 6-5 lead. Bryan Thornton led off with a double and scored on Mike Feetham's line drive up the middle.

With one out, John Fidalgo singled and Dennis Thomson walked to load the bases for Dave Centrella. After fouling off several pitches, Centrella ripped a bases-clearing double to right-center to knot the game at 5-5.

"David comes to play every night," Benn said. "He will fight you for every pitch. He showed what he is made of. He's a great competitor."

After Ryan Murphy reached on a fielder's choice and stole second, Chris Walsh once again delivered the big hit for Quincy when he singled home Murphy with the go-ahead run.

In the seventh, Cohasset reached Feetham, who relieved starting pitcher Conrad Leger with two outs in the fourth, for the tying run. After getting the first batter out, Feetham yielded a walk and an RBI double.

With its playoff hopes on the line, Quincy was determined to pull out a win in its last at-bat to avoid extra innings. Thornton led off with a single and moved to second on Feetham's sacrifice bunt. Fidalgo stepped up to the plate and promptly lined a single to right for the game-winner.

"The team is really coming into its own," Benn said. "It's an excellent time to be going to the playoffs. We've been swinging the bats well and have been getting good pitching. We'll be in good shape. I think we'll be all right."

In the first inning, Cohasset took a 1-0 lead with back-to-back doubles off Leger. Quincy threatened in the bottom half when it loaded the bases, but it failed to push a run across the plate. Quincy did score the equalizer in the second on Murphy's RBI single that scored Centrella.

In the fourth frame, Cohasset snapped the 1-1 deadlock with four runs of Leger. Feetham stopped the bleeding when he struck out the final batter with runners at second and third.

"Leger pitched for us without his normal rest in between starts, so he got a little tired early," Benn said. "He missed his college orientation to be here because we needed him. That's the type of young man this kid is. We are proud of the way he has performed for us this year. But we are most proud of the type of kid he is. Just a class act. We'll miss him next season."

But first Quincy still has to finish this season, which continues tomorrow evening in Foxboro.

14-Year-Old All Stars Take Fifth In Playoffs

The Quincy 14-year-old All-Stars finished fifth at the recent District 4 Babe Ruth playoffs at French's Common in Braintree.

Quincy committed six errors in an 11-7 loss to Weymouth that knocked them out of tournament. It finished with a 3-2 record.

Quincy will host the New England Regional Tournament at Adams Field beginning Aug. 4. The winner will advance to the Babe Ruth World Series.

Quincy jumped out to a 3-0 lead against Weymouth in the first inning. Dave Jaehnig and Nick Malvesti each singled and Justin Thorley knocked them in with a double. John Folino smacked a single to score Thorley.

Quincy added three more runs in the second. Tom Ross (single), Jaehnig (single) and Malvesti (walk) all reached to load the bases. Thorley stroked a two-run single and Folino followed with an RBI double.

Quincy managed only one more hit the rest of the game.

In earlier action, Quincy opened with a 12-3 win over Randolph behind John Stanton's complete-game, four-hitter.

Folino powered the offense with a home run, a double and five RBIs. Sean Warwick banged out three hits (double) and Kevin Richardson added two hits (triple). Stanton belted a triple, while Paul Lennon and Paul Graham also had base hits.

In the second game, Quincy was out, 13-3, in a 12-0 loss to Braintree. Matt Tobin, Graham and Folino had the hits. James Spellman and Ross played well defensively.

Quincy rebounded by winning its next two games. Folino hurled a no-hitter in a 15-0 win over Marshfield, just missing a perfect game as Quincy made an error. He also hammered his second home run of the tourney.

Thorley chipped in with two hits and two RBIs and Sean Sullivan added a double. Warwick, Tobin and Richardson also had hits.

Quincy also defeated Hingham, 14-4, as Jaehnig turned in a monster game at the plate. With his team trailing 4-1 in the fifth, Jaehnig led off with a home run deep to right field, sparking a 10-run outburst. Later in the same inning, he blasted a three-run shot over the roof of the Town Hall.

Jaehnig also picked up the win, relieving Stanton, the starter, in the fifth and shutting Hingham down.

Program's First Losing Record In 55 Years; Cattaneo Suggests Combining Local Teams For Morrisette, A Season To Forget

By CHRIS POISSON

Manager Ray Cattaneo knew the day was near when the mystique of Morrisette Legion baseball would take a big hit.

That day arrived last Wednesday at Adams Field when his ball club made eight errors in an 8-3 debacle to Canton. It was Morrisette's 11th loss of the season; thus, the 2001 campaign officially goes down in the books as a losing season.

Big deal. All strong programs will occasionally have an off-year, right? Yeah, but it's a different ballgame with Morrisette. The program has never had a losing season. Never. We're talking 55 years of baseball here.

Certainly, this has been a nightmare for Cattaneo in his 32nd year in charge of running the program.

"Absolutely," he said. "I never want another [losing season]. I knew it was coming. I've said it the last few years. Everything is different now. Kids have so much more things to do today. You just play the game to play the game."

As he has in the past, Cattaneo said it's time to make changes to legion baseball in the city. He suggests that the Morrisette and Quincy legion teams combine to form one team in the city. "I've been saying that for a while now," Cattaneo said. "It's time for Quincy to have one team in this league. There aren't many legion ballplayers out there. You only get 18 kids at tryouts and you're picking up some kids that haven't even played at high school. It's only going to get worse for both teams if we continue this way."

For Morrisette, A Season To Forget

Although this is Morrisette's first losing year, there were signs the previous two seasons that the program was in decline. In 1999, it started off 2-7 before rebounding to win 10 of its last 11 to reach the playoffs. Last year it won six of its last seven to finish with a 14-6 record, but it lost in the first round of the playoffs.

The Quincy program had also been struggling until this year. It finished 9-11 to slip into the postseason, but it will be difficult for the team to win games and advance to the later rounds.

Cattaneo pointed out that if Quincy had Morrisette pitcher Keith Doherty and some other players it would field a solid team that could make some noise in the playoffs. He particularly would have liked to have seen Doherty and Quincy's ace Mike Feetham, two of the best pitchers in the league, playing on the same team like they did at North Quincy High.

"I'd like to see Doherty and Feetham on the same team and see a team advance deep in the playoffs," he said. "That way you get scouts and college coaches at the games. The way it is now, it's not good for the kids. It's not fair for the good ballplayers."

"If there was one team it would be a good team. It's time. It really is. Let the good kids in high school play on one team together. They play together in Little League and Babe Ruth and then split up when they get here."

On Sunday, Morrisette revisited its glory days, at least for one night, with a 2-1 victory at home over a strong Weymouth team. It was its first win since a 4-1 win over Milton June 25, snapping a nine-game skid.

"It was a big win and it did a lot for the kids," Cattaneo said. "We lost a lot of tough games this year. It was nice to beat a good team. It was an uplift. The kids deserve it. They worked yard all year."

We didn't hit, but we got enough runs to win."

Offense has been a problem all season, but usually a couple of runs is all you need when Doherty is on the mound. The left-hander turned in a brilliant pitching performance, allowing no earned runs and only four hits in the complete-game effort. He fanned seven and walked two.

"Keith Doherty pitched a tremendous game," Cattaneo said. "He really battled with the game on the line. They threatened in the last inning, but he bared down and got them out."

Morrisette also received a sensational defensive play, something that has also been lacking this year. With two outs in the seventh inning and the tying run on second base, shortstop Steve Pizzi made a tremendous back-handed catch on a bloop to the hole to end the game.

"What a way to end the game," Cattaneo said.

Morrisette (5-13) lost to first-place West Roxbury, 16-7, Monday and wrapped up the season West Roxbury Tuesday and Cohasset yesterday.

"I'm not going to say 'thank God it's over' because I'll miss it," Cattaneo said.

2-0 After 14-12 Win Over Randolph Granite Brace For Hurricanes Saturday

By CHRIS POISSON

Make no mistake about it, the Quincy Granite would rather win convincingly than the two finger-crossing victories it has sweat out so far this season.

In Randolph last Friday night, the Granite's 14-12 win wasn't settled until quarterback Anthony Comer's two-point conversion pass with 2:22 remaining in the game went incomplete to Charles Williams.

It was a little less dramatic than the season-opening win over the Boston Cowboys, when it took linebacker Ryan Craig's goal-line stick on the final play of the game with seven seconds left to secure a 13-6 win.

As head coach Ken McPhee says, though, a win is a win. And through two weeks of the Eastern Football League season, Quincy (2-0) is atop the mighty Eastern Football Conference by itself.

"It's nice, but it's very early," McPhee said. "We still have to take it one game at a time. It's a cliché but it's true."

Quincy returns to Veteran Memorial Stadium Saturday night to battle the Hyannis Hurricanes (0-2) at 7 p.m. Hyannis, which was shut out last year by Quincy, is com-met off a 26-6 loss to Rhode Island last Saturday.

Heading into the season, the coaching staff knew it had a strong defense and that the offense would need time to get rolling. And that still holds true at the end of Week 2. The defense, a.k.a. the "Dark Side," has kept the team in games as the offense struggles to find its rhythm.

"We're progressing," McPhee said about the offensive unit. "We need to score more points. We have to finish our drives and be more careful inside the red zone. We can't give the ball up."

The offense will have a great opportunity to light up the scoreboard against Hyannis. The Hurricanes yielded more than 350 points in 10 games last year and they have allowed 53 points in two games this year.

"I'd like to see us get more points on the board, but I really don't know that to expect from Hyannis," McPhee said.

Against Randolph, the defense came up big on the Oilers' drive when defensive back Troy Parks picked off quarterback Tony Comer. The Oilers ended the drive with a 26-6 loss to Rhode Island last Saturday.

Randolph's offense, coached by former Granite head coach Bill MacDonnell, was stiffened by the Oilers' defense. In the third Comer, last year's offensive MVP, replaced Gaucher at quarterback and led Randolph to a field goal.

In the fourth, Quincy increased its lead to 14-6 when quarterback Liam Higgins connected with wideout Bill MacDonnell for a 35-yard touchdown pass. Higgins, who nursed a shoulder injury in the preseason, started in place of Mike Thomas who was attending a wedding.

"He was a little rusty at the beginning but came on strong and played well," McPhee said. His shoulder was ready. He hit some receivers."

Comer tossed a 23-yard TD strike to receiver Dan Grew to pull the Oilers within two, 14-12. For the second straight week, though, Quincy's defense saved a win late in the game.

Spillane & Epstein Win Triple A Championship

Nick Peters fired a four-hitter as Spillane and Epstein recently captured the Triple A championship with a 4-2 victory over Century 21.

Peters struck out 12 in the complete-game effort. Nick Lavie crushed a two-run home run and added a triple. Ryan Shea made a great diving catch in right field. Alex Breen hit the ball hard and played strong in center field. J.J. Downs had a nice hit and played well in left field.

For Century 21, Nick Poli pitched a solid complete game. Tom Henry ripped a double and scored a run. Miah Foley knocked in a run with a base hit.

In previous playoff action: Spillane & Epstein 12 Century 21 5

Ryan Donovan went the distance with 13 strikeouts to pick up the win. Brendan Gavigan reached base twice and scored a run. Mike Naughton reached base twice and stole two bases. Joe Lynch also reached base twice and had an RBI.

For Century 21, Bobby Harrington and Jeremiah Foley hit back-to-back home runs. Tom Henry had a solid hit and played strong defense.

Spillane & Epstein 6 Quincy DARE 4

Brendan Masters knocked in three runs as Spillane & Epstein won its first playoff game. Bobby Magnell reached base twice and scored twice. Ryan Donovan reached base three times and scored twice. Nick Couture played strong defense in center field. Nick Peters turned in the complete-game win.

For Quincy DARE, Jonathan Caplan struck two doubles. Ben Lindbaum reached base three times and scored a run. Eric Moteschi scored a run and played outstanding defense.

The Buzz On Bee Sting Allergy

Every summer outdoor enthusiasts across America brace themselves for the annual assault of legions of stinging insects descending upon their activities. These hostile marauders often leave in their wake widespread fear, painful stings and sometimes even death.

Coping with the aftermath of such an attack requires knowledge of the symptoms of a normal vs. an allergic reaction, knowing when to seek medical attention and, if allergic, understanding how to prevent future reactions.

According to the American College of Asthma, Allergy and Immunology, most insect stings result in a normal reaction. Symptoms include: pain, swelling, itching and redness confined to the sting site. Recommended treatment includes: gently disinfecting the area, using ice to reduce the swelling and using topical steroid ointments or oral antihistamines to relieve the itching.

Sometimes a normal reaction can be rather large extending well beyond the sting site (a sting on the wrist may cause the entire arm to swell). If this situation persists for more than a day or two, a physician should be consulted.

For 1 to 2 percent of the population, an insect sting reaction will be allergic in nature. This type of reaction is characterized by hives, itching and swelling in areas other than the sting site; tightness in the chest and difficulty in breathing; dizziness or a sharp drop in blood pressure; unconsciousness or cardiac arrest.

An allergic reaction can occur in minutes after the sting and may be life-threatening or even fatal. Immediate medical attention is required and may involve the administration of certain drugs and, in some cases, intravenous fluids, oxygen and other treatments.

Because there is a 60 percent likelihood of a recurrence upon re-sting, allergic patients should seek follow-up care from an allergist. This specialist will evaluate a patient's allergic condition and may prescribe an insect sting kit for emergency treatment and/or immunotherapy, a highly effective vaccination program for lifelong protection against allergic reactions.

It was recently shown in a study published in the Journal of Allergy and Clinical Immunology that most people who are allergic to insect stings who undergo a two-year vaccination program will have a prolonged benefit and permanent loss of allergy.

For those interested in learning more about allergic reactions to insect stings, a free brochure written by the American College of Asthma, Allergy and Immunology, is available by calling 1-800-23-STING.

Arthritis: Prevention And Treatment

By DR. MARTIN RIGBY

Osteoarthritis is more commonly known as arthritis or degenerative joint disease (DJD). In this condition the protective cartilage at the ends of bones in joints, particularly in the spine and legs, gradually wears away. The inner bone surfaces become exposed and rub together. The condition may be associated with broken bones or other traumatic incidents.

Generally, DJD develops from wear and tear in the body's weight bearing joints. The cartilage and bones cannot repair themselves quickly enough to keep up with the degenerative process. In some cases bony spurs develop on the edges of joints. These bony growths may cause damage to muscles and nerves, pain, deformity, and difficulty in movement.

More than 50 million Americans suffer from arthritis. It is the No. 1 cause of movement limitation and probably the leading cause of disability, if you consider that people often become sedentary due to the associated aches and pains.

The cause of osteoarthritis is unknown, although some people appear to have a genetic predisposition to degenerative bone disorders. In most people the onset of osteoarthritis is gradual and has no serious debilitating effect, although it can change the size and shape of bones. In other people bony growths and gnarled joints may cause painful muscle inflammation or nerve damage, along with significant changes in posture and mobility.

The primary symptoms of osteoarthritis are pain and stiffness upon awakening or after a period of rest. This stiffness tends to decrease somewhat when activity is initiated. X-rays confirm the diagnosis and reveal shrunken joint spaces or calcification at the ends of bones.

Conventional medicine treats osteoarthritis in a three-phase approach: medication to relieve pain and reduce inflammation, rest of the affected area to allow tissue healing, and exercise to restore mobility and strength. A limitation of this approach lies in the fact that many of the pain relieving medications have been shown to increase the rate of cartilage destruction. They actually cause the cartilage to wear out faster, causing further pain and continued disability in the future.

Chiropractic treatment involves a doctor making a specific diagnosis followed by a trial period of manipulation of the affected joints. Chiropractic adjustments relieve pain by restoring normal joint relationships, which helps to restore the normal range of motion by increasing joint mobility.

Cartilage receives its nourishment from movement and movement alone, so joint mobility is crucial. Every time a joint is moved through its range of motion, the synovial fluid within the joint bathes the cartilage, distributing nutrients throughout the cartilage surface. When movement is limited due to pain or inflammation, the cartilage does not receive an even distribution of nutrients and may deteriorate faster than if the normal joint relationships are maintained.

Last, a chiropractor will prescribe exercise to increase strength and endurance. Both medical and chiropractic treatments help to manage the osteoarthritis, though neither can cure it. People often ask, "What can I do to prevent or help my arthritic condition?" Here are my recommendations:

• Exercise. Try to walk daily. Weight bearing activity forces nutrients into cartilage.

• Stretch. This moves joints through their full range of motion, bathing cartilage within the joint in nutrients rich synovial fluid.

• Try a new supplement. Glucosamine Sulfate in combination with Chondroitin Sulfate has shown promise. It speeds the formation of new cartilage. Several of my patients have had great success when combining this supplement with chiropractic treatment.

• Keep active. Even when pain is present, try to perform your daily activities.

Dr. Martin Rigby is a New York Chiropractic College graduate who completed his undergraduate education at the University of Massachusetts, earning his bachelor's degree in biology. He is in private practice at 22 Billings Road, North Quincy.

Two Priests From St. Joseph's To Celebrate Televised Masses

Two priests from St. Joseph's Parish in Quincy Point will celebrate televised Masses on Boston Catholic Television (BCTV) this week.

Fr. Bob Monagle, a parochial vicar at St. Joseph's, will celebrate BCTV's Daily Mass tomorrow (Friday) at 9:30 a.m. Daily Mass is aired every weekday from the chapel of the Archbishop of Boston, Bernard Cardinal Law. It can be seen live on BCTV Cable and on WBPX, Channel 68. It will also be rebroadcast on BCTV Cable at 7:30 that evening.

Daily Mass has been airing on BCTV since 1973 and reaches an estimated audience of half a million viewers in New England.

Fr. Dan Graham, the pastor of St. Joseph's, will celebrate BCTV's Sunday Mass July 22 at 7:30 a.m. on WHDH, Channel 7. Sunday Mass is aired weekly from Channel 7's studios in conjunction with BCTV. An estimated three million viewers watch the program each Sunday. It is the longest running continuous live program in history, airing every Sunday since Jan. 1, 1955.

BCTV is a viewer-funded cable television station directed by Monsignor Frank McFarland.

"It is a cause of unity for Catholics in the New England area," said Monsignor McFarland on the importance of the TV Mass. "It reminds them they are not alone; they belong somewhere. They feel less alienated."

"Besides the senior citizens who write and support Boston Catholic Television, there are many who are confined in prisons and half-way houses. They watch the Mass and gain consolation, hope and encouragement."

BCTV broadcasts a variety of spiritual, educational and religious programs 24 hours a day and can be seen in 135 communities in eastern Massachusetts. It is carried by AT&T on Channel 56 in Quincy from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. weekdays; 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturdays; and 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Sundays.

Internet users can tune in its broadcast via BCTV's home page, www.catholictv.org, by clicking BCTV Live. A complete program schedule is available at the BCTV Web site or by calling 617-965-0050 for a free viewer's guide.

Your support of this event will assist Father Bill's Place to help these young adults with shelter, substance abuse counseling, mental health services, housing search and housing supportive services. With you help," Yazwinski said, "we can end homelessness one person at a time."

The annual Food Fest & Auction will highlight the culinary creations of restaurants and chefs on the South Shore, and offer rare sports memorabilia and unique gift items for auction.

Admission is $75. To order tickets or to donate an auction item, call Linda at 617-770-3314.

of staff.

While living with the Hunting, she attended school and found work. She helped take care of Clara Hunting after Dr. Hunting died.

She is survived by a sister, Doris Barrena, and three nieces and two nephews.

Burial was private. Funeral arrangements were by Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Someone once said that of all subjective blessings, that which most directly makes us happy is a cheerful disposition; for this excellent trait is its own immediate reward. Yes, those who bring sunshine into the lives of others cannot keep it from themselves.

A well known man noted for his cheerfulness was once asked how he managed to keep himself so happy, and he replied that it was by not allowing himself to anticipate the misfortunes which might come to him. He always expected the best, and when unpleasant things came he made the best of them. He tried to see the ludicrous even in mishaps.

"You will find yourself refreshed by the presence of cheerful people. Why not make earnest effort to confer that pleasure on others? You will find half the battle is gained if you never allow yourself to say anything gloomy." ... L.M. Child

Reducing The Risk Of Osteoporosis

By ANN MARIE DOWNEY

Senior Dietician
Welch Healthcare
& Retirement Group

Osteoporosis affects over 28 million Americans and causes more than 1.5 million fractures each year, most often of the hip, wrist, and spine.

Unfortunately, osteoporosis often remains undiagnosed until a weak or brittle bone breaks. Once this bone-thinning disease affects you, it can limit your mobility, level of independence, and lifestyle.

Researchers have found that it is never too late to slow bone loss and reduce your risk of a serious fracture. Making changes to your diet, personal habits, and lifestyle will reduce your risk of developing osteoporosis or slowing bone loss, decreasing the chance of a serious fracture.

Keep the following tips in mind:

- A well-balanced diet is essential in keeping you strong and healthy.
- Calcium and vitamin D strengthen bones, protecting them from becoming weak and brittle.

- The best sources of calcium come from dairy products, such as milk, cheese, and yogurt. Other healthy alternatives include dark green vegetables (like broccoli, kale, turnip greens), fish with bones (like sardines), and calcium-fortified orange juice.

- Weight-bearing activity like standing, walking, or dancing helps build strong bones.

- Sunlight helps absorb calcium.

- Protect yourself from falls. Keep floors and living areas clear and well lit, avoid scatter rugs, and wear low-heeled rubber shoes.

- Consult your doctor for the best prevention test, treatment program, and level of physical activity for you.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Someone once said that of all subjective blessings, that which most directly makes us happy is a cheerful disposition: for this excellent trait is its own immediate reward. Yes, those who bring sunshine into the lives of others cannot keep it from themselves.

A well known man noted for his cheerfulness was once asked how he managed to keep himself so happy, and he replied that it was by not allowing himself to anticipate the misfortunes which might come to him. He always expected the best, and when unpleasant things came he made the best of them. He tried to see the ludicrous even in mishaps.

"You will find yourself refreshed by the presence of cheerful people. Why not make earnest effort to confer that pleasure on others? You will find half the battle is gained if you never allow yourself to say anything gloomy." . . . L.M. Child

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You're not Sheepish when it comes to asserting your opinions on what you think is right or wrong. Be assured that you're being heard and something positive will follow.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your sense of justice makes it difficult not to speak up about a recurring matter involving a co-worker. But, once again, you need facts to back you up before you can act.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Romance is still dominant, and if Cupid misfired before, don't worry. He'll take better aim at someone new this time around. Expect favorable news about a financial matter.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The Zodiac's Moon Children can expect things to work out pretty much as planned. One negative note involves a minor relationship problem that suddenly turns serious.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You're suddenly being asked to make choices between two practically equal offers. Which one to choose? Easy. The one most likely to gladden your Lion's heart.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Once again, you're confronted by a workplace problem you thought you'd already resolved. This time, you might need to go higher up to find a just resolution.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Good for you. You're determined to stick with your goals and ignore those naysayers who might try to discourage you. You're on the right track. The challenge now is to stay on it.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You'll soon get news that is supposed to help you with a troublesome situation. Use your sharp Scorpion instincts to determine if the information is reliable.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) If you learn someone has betrayed your trust, don't just accept it and walk away. You need to know why that person decided to do what he or she did.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A painful family relationship problem could finally begin to heal. Be prepared to show more flexibility than you might like — it could be worth it.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) It's a good idea to enhance your career skills so you'll be prepared to accept a more responsible position when it's offered. A friend returns a favor just when you need it.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Show that strong, steely backbone that you usually hide, and demand to be included in any family decision-making that could affect the well-being of a loved one.

BORN THIS WEEK: You can be happy being alone at home. But you also love exploring the world outside and meeting new people and sharing new ideas.

Garland Calls For Action On Ward 3 Traffic Problems

Jack Garland, candidate for the Ward 3 city council seat, has called for immediate action to the problems of speeding cars and traffic in the ward.

"Many of the streets in Ward 3 are virtual speedways with cars greatly exceeding the 30 miles per hour limit," he said. "Both main streets and side streets in Ward 3 routinely see cars speeding by with no care or caution for the people, especially children who live there. What must be remembered is that these are neighborhood streets and need to be reclaimed as such."

In addition to the speeding problem, Garland said that continued traffic congestion requires a new attitude on the part of the city and new methods to deal with cars clogging the streets.

"While there are companies, like State Street Bank located in Ward 3, which contribute to the tax base in the city, it is essential that the city take a new approach to managing traffic. Our streets can no longer be seen simply as access routes and cut-throughs, or merely the most convenient way for people to get to their work.

"Preserving the residential integrity of our neighborhoods in Ward 3 starts with finding permanent solutions to traffic problems like speeding and congestion. Harvard Street, for example, is beset with cars racing through at speeds often over 50 miles per hour. It is a tragedy waiting to happen. West Squantum Street is a mini version of the expressway with cars crawling toward North Quincy every morning. Crossing Beale Street or Adams Street at any time of the day requires eyes in the back of your head and the feet of a sprinter.

"First and foremost, the police department should immediately focus its resources on stopping speeders on problem streets in Ward 3. Now that school is out for the summer it is especially important that the city signal its intolerance for people who endanger others by their driving. They must be stopped and cited with the maximum possible fines."

Garland urged the city to look at every feasible means to reduce traffic and speeding problems in Ward 3.

"Everything from pavement markings, to additional and enhanced signage, to street narrowings, to reconfiguring traffic flows should be closely examined as part of an overall solution to this very real problem," he said. "The needs of our residents — the people who live in Ward 3 and bear the brunt of traffic in the northern end of the city — must come first. Safety, reducing traffic congestion and enhancing the quality of life are the keystones to making Ward 3 a better place."

Keenan Urges Follow-Through On Fire Department Study

John Keenan, candidate for city councillor at-large, is urging the city to follow through on its plans to conduct a full fire department needs study.

Keenan said that while serving as executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets, he worked with Fire Chief Thomas Gorman and members of the Firefighters' union to put the framework for the study together. Presently the city is soliciting proposals from entities interested in conducting the study, he noted.

"A lot of work went into preparing the study framework," said Keenan, "so I hope the city continues with its efforts to have the study conducted." Keenan said 20 firefighters will be retiring next year, and several more the following year.

"There will be a large-scale turnover in personnel," said Keenan, "and so the time is right to focus on the future of the department."

The study calls for analysis and recommendations relative to all aspects of the department, including fire station conditions and equipment needs. Several pieces of equipment, according to Keenan, are or will soon be in need of replacement, and repairs are needed at several stations.

"Right now," said Keenan, "there is no long-term plan in place to address the fire department's needs; the fire study should prompt such a plan."

"Financially, things are tight in the city and will get tighter over the next few years. If the city does not have a comprehensive plan in place for the future of the fire department, and does not have a matching financial plan, most likely things will be done in a reactionary manner that will end up costing the city more than it would cost if done in accordance with a plan.

"With some planning, we can address the needs of the fire department and ensure public safety in a financially sound manner."

Vic DiGravio Memorial Golf Tournament Aug. 6 At South Shore Country Club

The second annual Vic DiGravio Jr. Memorial Golf Tournament will be held Monday, Aug. 6 at the South Shore Country Club in Hingham.

The tournament is being held in memory of Vic DiGravio who died of cancer in 1999.

Last year's tournament raised $18,000 for a scholarship fund for local students attending Bridgton Academy in North Bridgton, Maine. Over 130 golfers played in the tourney and 180 people attended the post-tournament dinner and awards ceremony.

This year's tournament will be a scramble format with a 1 p.m. shotgun start. Dinner will be served at the South Shore Country Club following the tournament at approximately 6:15 p.m.

Entry fee is $100 per person, which includes greens fees, cart, golf shirt and dinner. For those attending just the dinner the donation is $30 per person. The registration deadline is July 31.

All proceeds will fund the Vic DiGravio Jr. Memorial Scholarship at Bridgton Academy. The scholarship provides financial aid to students from Quincy, Weymouth and Marshfield who attend the school.

Vic graduated from Bridgton Academy in 1959. He grew up in Weymouth and attended Weymouth High School where he was an outstanding athlete. After marrying, Vic lived in Quincy where he owned and operated the Spotlight Tavern for over 20 years.

Entry fees and/or donations may be sent to the Vic DiGravio Jr. Memorial Golf Tournament, 89 Puritan Drive, Quincy, MA 02169.

For more information call Vic DiGravio III at 617-328-8170 or Sean Downing at 617-472-5746.

Crane Library Receives $30,000 State Grant

The Thomas Crane Public Library has won a $30,000 grant from the State Board of Library Commissioners "to satisfy needs that are not currently being met by current programs."

The open program, under which Quincy received the grant, is designed to allow the library to apply new methods to solve problems, build programs and best carry out its mission and plan.

The grant will be devoted to the development of the Wilson Method of tutoring for volunteers.

Marina Bay Club Told To Turn Down Noise Levels

Reached for comment Tuesday, Kane said that he had yet to see the actual agreement but was willing to take a look at it "in the spirit of cooperation."

Kane, a Quincy native, admitted noise had been an issue "on and off" at the club for the past six years but maintained the proposed levels were too low.

"Sound is logarithmic," explained Kane, who said Waterworks monitors its own sound nightly with average levels at 90 decibels. "If you lower the decibel level 10 percent, it's basically a halving of what the ear actually hears."

The new agreement would mandate that the "at-source" noise level at Waterworks be at or below 75 decibels, with four decibels leeway higher or lower to account for the variations of live music. The decibel level 30 feet from the nearby Summer House, also owned by Kane, which is smaller but closer to residents, would be set at or below 65 decibels.

Under the agreement,

Waterworks would be given three warnings concerning noise levels. The next violation after the warnings would merit an appearance by the club before the License Board and possible three-day suspension of its entertainment license. A second violation would bring the club back before the board for a possible seven day suspension, and further violations could result in the revocation of the entertainment license.

"We fully intend to enforce this agreement," Sheets said.

Alleged Drunk Driving Accident On Southern Artery Injures Three

An alleged hit-and-run drunken driving accident involving three cars Saturday morning on the Southern Artery near Brackett St. injured one Quincy woman and two Canton men and resulted in charges being brought against 32-year old Paul Plante of Quincy.

As of press time, 28 year old Tara Kelliher of Quincy was still receiving care at Beth Israel Hospital in Boston. The other two victims, brothers Kevin and Keith Hughes of Canton, had already been released from Boston Medical Center.

The accident occurred at around 2:30 a.m. when Plante's car allegedly sideswiped the Hughes' SUV, causing the SUV to cross over and collide with Kelliher's car traveling in the opposite direction.

Plante, who was not injured, pleaded not guilty Monday to charges of driving under the influence of alcohol and leaving the scene of an accident.

Sidewalk Sale Called 'Best Ever'

By TOM HENSHAW

Take it from Maralin Manning, last week's 31st annual Sidewalk Festival was the "best ever" in her nine years as executive director of the sponsoring Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

"The weather could not have been more complementary," she said, noting that the thermometer cooperated by remaining in the low 80s for most of the three days. "The crowds were consistent where there are usually peaks and valleys."

Mark Bertman, proprietor of Roger's Jewelry, 1402 Hancock St., which has participated in all 31 of the festivals, pronounced the 2001 edition to be "excellent."

"The weather was good," he said. "We didn't have the brutal heat that we've had in past years. And the entertainment was good. That band that played Friday night (Draw the Line) attracted a lot of people."

The length of Hancock Street from Granite Street to Hancock Court was closed to vehicular traffic while shoppers strolled among the 85 booths, tents and tables seeking bargains and listening to the entertainers that had been recruited for the occasion.

"There seemed to be a greater number of families," said the QCBPA's Manning. "I'm glad we had more entertainers who appealed to kids."

33 Candidates File Nomination Papers

4 Preliminary Election Contests Set For Sept. 11

The stage was set for one of Quincy's most interesting election years in recent times as 33 candidates filed nomination papers by Tuesday's deadline.

Of these, 21 will square off in preliminary (primary) contests for councillor at-large and for council seats in Wards 3, 5, and 6 Sept. 11. City Clerk Joseph Shea sees a 60 percent voter turnout that day.

It will be the first at-large preliminary race in 20 years with a field of nine candidates.

There would have been one for mayor — the first since 1989 — if Robert Boussy, who had kept City Hall guessing, had turned in his papers for mayor as he had hinted he might.

Instead, he walked into the Election Department minutes before filing deadline to declare himself a candidate for councillor at-large.

This leaves the battle for the mayor's office between incumbent James Sheets, 66, and School Committeeman William Phelan, 41, in question until the final election Nov. 6. A preliminary contest would have given early indications.

Boussy ran against Sheets two years ago with the latter piling up an 88 percent vote margin.

There were no real big surprises as the clock ticked to the 5 p.m. deadline Tuesday.

Only two candidates decided not to file their papers:

Anthony Siciliano, Deputy Director of the city's Emergency Management Agency, who had papers out for councillor at-large.

Mary Collins, who had taken out papers for the

Sheets Wants Inclusionary Ordinance On Aug. 9 Council Agenda

A summer meeting of the City Council will take place Thursday, Aug. 9 at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers of City Hall.

Councillors will consider only items placed on the summer meeting agenda, which is traditionally lengthy to address unfinished business.

Although no agenda has been set, Daniel Keating, executive secretary to Mayor

James Sheets, said the mayor's office intends to request, pending a decision by the Planning Board on the matter, that a proposed Inclusionary Zoning ordinance be placed on the Aug. 9 agenda.

C-SPAN Series Visits Quincy For Profile Of Henry Adams

C-SPAN's historical series "American Writers: A Journey Through History" paid a visit Monday morning to the Adams National Historical Park to broadcast a segment on the life, times, and writings of scholar and historian Henry Adams.

Guests for the program, which was broadcast live but will be re-broadcast Friday at 8 p.m., included: Brooks Simpson, author of The Political Education of Henry Adams and professor at Arizona State University; Peter Drummey, librarian at the Massachusetts Historical Society; and Caroline Keinath, deputy superintendent at the Adams National Historical Park.

Viewers from across the country tuned in for the more than two-hour discussion on Henry Adams (1838-1918), the grandson of John Quincy Adams and the great-grandson of John Adams, who was a correspondent for the Nation, a Harvard professor, and an editor of the North American Review from 1870 to 1876 but is best remembered for his book The Education of Henry Adams, recently named the greatest American work of non-fiction of the 20th century by a Modern Library panel of historians and the work for which Adams was awarded a posthumous Pulitzer Prize in 1919.

Simpson, who referred to The Education of Henry Adams more as a carefully selected "recreated life" rather than pure autobiography, described Adams as one of the most well read Americans of his time living in age of amazing expansion and change in the United States, essentially "unlearning" the rules of one century while trying to cope with the next.

"He was caught between two worlds," explained Keinath, who took television viewers through various rooms of the "Old House" where Adams summered in his youth and where he later returned to finish The Education of Henry Adams.

Drummey, who said the Massachusetts Historical Society contains the bulk of Adams' existing correspondence as part of its collection of Adams family papers, remarked that many doors were opened to Henry Adams as the grandson and great-grandson of presidents but there were also unrealistic expectations for the historian, who at times felt the Adams name "a trifle too heavy" for him.

Simpson said Adams' acerbic, pessimistic examination of the political process "pioneered the notion of the Washington pundit," citing a passage in The Education of Henry Adams where the author writes that the progression from General George Washington to General Ulysses S. Grant proved Charles Darwin wrong.

But Simpson also noted Adams' skepticism of post Civil-War Reconstruction, his opposition to black suffrage, and his clearly anti-Semitic writings "that most modern readers would find repulsive."

Much of the discussion from both callers and panelists concerned Adams' wife, Marianne "Clover" Hooper Adams, a talented amateur photographer who committed suicide in 1885.

In profiling Adams' uneasy balance between two Americas, one agrarian and the other industrial, panelists pointed out that young Henry Adams would take walks at the "Old House" with grandfather John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, yet also outlived the invention of the airplane by 15 years.

"He was surrounded by history," Simpson said of THE ADAMS MANSION is nearly hidden from view by C-SPAN television trucks Monday morning as the cable station aired a live broadcast on Henry Adams for its 'American Writers' series. The segment, which features Caroline Keinath, deputy superintendent of the Adams National Historical Park, is scheduled for re-broadcast Friday at 8 p.m.

Adams, who also wrote, among other works, a nine volume history of the United States which is still available.

Keinath said C-SPAN's coverage of Henry Adams reflected the incredible depth of the Adams sites, explaining that many visitors come because of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams but are drawn into the lives of other Adams family members such as Henry.

"It's really a hidden gem that's just being discovered," said Keinath.

C-SPAN airs "American Writers: A Journey Through Time" at 9 a.m. each week and reairs the program at 8 p.m. Friday evenings. The series premiered on March 19 and will run through Dec. 17, exploring over the course of 38 weeks more than 45 writers who have chronicled, reflected upon, or influenced the course of the nation's history.

A full listing of the writers and sites included in the series can be found at www.americanwriters.org where interested viewers can also purchase all 45 works featured in the series through a partnership with Borders.com, the on-line subsidiary of Borders Group, Inc.

The program is the fourth historical series produced by C-SPAN for its viewers and classrooms across the country.

Reorganization Plan

By CRAIG SALTERS

Mayor James Sheets once again expressed confidence that the reorganization plan currently put forth by Massachusetts Heavy Industries (MHI) to U.S. Bankruptcy Judge William C. Hillman on the idle Fore River Shipyard would be accepted and that Quincy would recover its nearly $10 million investment in the site.

"It's the only plan being considered right now," said Sheets Tuesday. "I can't speak for the judge but, in my opinion, there's a good chance it will be accepted."

The proposed reorganization plan, the mayor said, calls for investors with collateral in excess of $50 million to become "major stockholders" at the site with Sotirios Emmanouil, owner of the now bankrupt MHI, involved with the shipyard in some capacity.

The plan would allow for the completion of the modernization of the shipyard, the completion of the dry-docks, and equity for the completion of a contract for six tankers at the yard.

"It (the plan) makes the city whole and it makes MWRA whole," said Sheets, who has been criticized for the city's nearly $10 million commitment, via the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), to a shipyard renovation plan dogged by delays, the bankruptcy of MHI, and the seizure of the yard last year by the United States Maritime Administration (MARAD), the shipyard's largest creditor.

Sheets longstanding optimism on the project was supported by attorney Robert Kerwin, who represents the city in the bankruptcy proceedings.

"I remain optimistic," said Kerwin, who said the draft reorganization plan was submitted months ago by MHI attached to a status report. "The focus now is on getting the issuance of the bonds."

Emphasizing that the reorganization of a multi-million dollar shipyard was

"a complicated arrangement" but not atypical of bankruptcy proceedings, Kerwin explained further that an entity called Boston Capital Institutional Investments was involved in a process to issue bonds, which would be secured by the residual value of insurance policies, and that those bonds would address both MARAD and non-MARAD debt.

Kerwin confirmed that MHI was the only entity to have a reorganization plan before Judge Hillman, explaining that A.O. Ahlberg & Sons, the former contractor at the shipyard, had withdrawn its plan.

One reason for optimism, Kerwin said, was that the bankruptcy process was still continuing and that creditors, at present, were not taking action to change the status of the proceedings.

Kerwin also noted an Aug. 1 hearing which, although it deals specifically with Clean Harbors and its attempt to recover its losses at the shipyard, might allow for discussion of the general status of the bankruptcy proceedings.

MOUND STREET BEACH, the largest of the 10 city-owned beaches and once site of the city's largest summer bathhouse, was the site of the second annual Beach Clean-Up Day undertaken by employees of Boston Financial Data Services. Volunteer participation doubled from last year's Beach Clean-Up, which is an initiative launched by the Quincy Park Department and the mayor's office. Interest in the beach is increasing as water quality continues to improve.

Conservation Commission

Rules Faxon Field A Wetland

At its most recent meeting the city's Conservation Commission declared that Faxon Field, proposed site for the new Quincy High School, is indeed a wetland subject to the Wetlands Act.

However, said Christopher Carroll, co-chairman of the commission along with Paul Kennedy, the commission made no classification as to whether Faxon Field was an "isolated wetland subject to flooding" as the city claims or a "land subject to flooding" and "bordering vegetation," which is harder to build on.

The July 18 determination that Faxon Field is a wetland, which Carroll said was based on earlier decisions concerning the site made in the 1990's, means that any use of the property must come before the commission for approval and that applicants must present a plan addressing the two key issues of wetlands replication and "compensatory storage," meaning that any lost wetlands must be restored somewhere else and that development cannot increase negative effects to the surrounding community.

In making their determination, the commission agreed with a Determination of Applicability filed by Nancy Jolly of Woodward Ave. and Brian Houde of Edgewood Circle, residents who oppose construction of a new high school on the site because of the potential for increased flooding in the neighborhood.

ABCC Hearing Sept. 5

On Anna's License

The state Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission has set Wednesday, Sept. 5 at 10 a.m. as the time for a hearing into the Quincy Licensing Board's rejection of a beer and wine license for Anna's Hungarian Kitchen on Willard Street, West Quincy.

The hearing will be held in Suite 200 at 239 Causeway St., Boston.

"We will be there to defend our vote and we expect to win," said City Clerk Joe Shea, chairman of the Licensing Board, which voted 5-0 June 12 to reject the application of Charles Debrezzeni, owner of Anna's.

SHIFTING FOR THEMSELVES

The arrival of the automatic Hydramatic and Dynaflo transmission of the 1940s signaled a shift away from manual transmissions. Today, only 17% of U.S. adults own a car equipped with a standard transmission, and automakers increasingly regard aficionados of stick shifts as a niche market of hard-core driving enthusiasts. It used to be that cost-conscious American purchased automobiles with stick shifts, lured by lower price tags and better gas mileage. While these benefits still hold true, today's manual shifters tend to be affluent, married, college-educated men over 45 years old, who are drawn to the old-fashioned way of heel-and-toe downshifting. Today's consumers who have turned to manual transmissions want to add an aspect of entertainment to their driving.

The new hybrid transmissions can bring some of the fun back to those who occasionally like to manually shift. No matter what type of transmission it is important to keep your car in top operating condition. Don't hesitate to ask any questions about anything related to your car when you bring it into LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO for servicing. We have modern test equipment and the best ASE Certified service technicians available in the area here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). We're "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." We're also your local source for propane for grills, motor homes and converted vehicles.

HINT: Automakers are increasingly making available hybrid transmissions that combine the elements of both automatic and manual transmissions.

Let Yakoo Alone!

Ed Grogan is taking aim at Yakoo again. He wants to bring down the beloved North Quincy High School mascot and symbol which depicts an American Indian with a feathered headband, carrying a stone hammer and a North Quincy pennant.

Grogan, an Atlantic Middle School teacher, calls Yakoo a racial stereotype offensive to Native Americans and has filed a complaint with the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination.

Grogan led the charge against Yakoo 10 years ago and lost. Now, suddenly, he is resurrecting the issue and having another go at doing him in.

In 1995 the U.S. Department of Education said the mascot image does not violate the U.S. Civil Rights Act.

The Boston regional office thought the figure a bit offensive but said that it did not create a racial hostility climate at NQHS.

Things have been quiet since. But, Grogan's complaint could stir it all up again.

Yakoo has been North Quincy High School's mascot and symbol of school pride for 44 years.

He came into existence in 1957 and for over three decades it didn't seem to bother anyone. Until Grogan made it an issue.

Ironically, the model for the image was not a Native American but an Armenian American, Dr. Allan Yacubian, a North Quincy dentist, who was a member of the class of 1958. A fellow student drew his profile for the mascot in 1957.

Critics have claimed that the stone hammer is a tomahawk and see Yakoo projecting a fighting stance.

Yacubian seeks Yakoo differently.

At the time of all the hullabaloo in 1991, Yacubian said: "The hammer denotes hard work. His (Yakoo's) look is that of determination and perseverance. Critics have miscalculated the whole image."

Back then, there were even Quincy High School students and alumni supporting North Quincy students' rights to keep Yakoo.

The North students went through a Democratic process in determining Yakoo's fate. They invited representatives of both sides to speak to them on the issue. Including Native Americans who spoke for and against Yakoo.

Jeff Hanley, director of Harvard University's Native American Program and a Chippewa Indian from North Dakota opposed Yakoo.

Justify Rent Increase To Naval Terrace Tenants

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Kudos to the Quincy City Council for blasting the non-profit outfit running the Naval Terrace apartments for the elderly.

City Council President Paul Harold thinks the corporation which recently sprung a surprise $75 increase in the monthly rent is "in worse shape than I ever imagined." The rent increase was supposed to take place July 1 and was then postponed until Aug. 1. Now the city council wants the rent increase postponed until the increase can be justified.

Harold was right back in 1996 when he wanted a private management company to run the place. Instead, a board picked by the mayor runs the apartments.

The Elder Housing Corporation was formed to take ownership of the property from the Navy. If the board of directors think a rent increase is necessary, prove it to the tenants and City Council first before dropping off the notices to folks.

Interfaith Social Services Seeks Volunteers

Interfaith Social Services in Wollaston urgently needs volunteers for its Faith in Action Program.

The organization seeks those who can give an hour a week as a companion to a person recovering from mental illness.

Good listeners who can initiate activities of mutual interest such as shopping, going to the beach, or attending a movie are particularly helpful.

Currently, 18 clients ranging in age from 38 to 75 are waiting for companions. One of these clients also has two children, ages eight and nine, who could benefit from their own companion.

Interfaith Social Services, which is located at 776 Hancock St., will provide training for volunteers and match each volunteer to a client.

People who have been mentally ill can become quite isolated socially and a companion can provide the bridge that will bring them into more normal community relationships, said ISS Executive Director Robert Taylor.

Interested persons should call Interfaith Social Services at (617) 773-6203.

Visitors Welcome At Deer Island Plant

The MWRA is extending the welcome mat to its long-suffering ratepayers to take a tour of the state-of-the-art Deer Island Treatment Plant for which they have paid and paid and paid for so long.

From April to November, the authority offers guided tours of the island, a chance to explore both the engineering marvels in the plant itself and the 60 acres of parkland surrounding the site.

"The Deer Island Treatment Plant is the cornerstone of a clean Boston Harbor and we're encouraging people to come out and see the nation's second largest wastewater treatment facility for themselves," said Frederick A. Laskey, the new executive director.

Construction of the plant, which began with a court order in 1985 and ended in the summer of 2000 with the opening of the 9.5 mile out-fall tunnel, cost $3.8 billion, which was paid mostly by ratepayers.

Any group or individual seeking to schedule a tour of the treatment plant should call Nadia Caines at 617-339-4102. Visitors must be 12 years of age or older.

Grossman Drops Out Of Race For Congress

By PAUL HAROLD

Quincy businessman Joseph B. Grossman dropped out of the race for the Republican nomination for the open congressional seat, leaving three remaining candidates, Rep. William Jenness of Quincy, Atty. Harold Putnam of Needham and former Brockton Mayor Hjalmar Peterson. Incumbent Richard Wigglesworth was not running for re-election.

July 26 - Aug. 1
43 Years Ago

Besides Grossman there were originally three other potential candidates from Quincy: Sen. Charles Hedges, Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, and Councillor and former Mayor Thomas Burgin. Political observers said as the only candidate from the city, Jenness's chances were much enhanced.

On the Democratic side there was a free for all for the nomination with eight candidates: former Councillor David Crowley and Herman Seppala from Quincy, Rep. William Connell from Weymouth, Hollis Mosher, James Burke and Peter Fallon, all from Milton; and Michael Simone and Ed Dwyer from Boston.

GOULDIN SUPERIOR COURT JUDGE

Governor Foster Furcolo swore in Edward Gourdin of Presidents Lane to the state's Superior Court, making him the first Negro in New England to serve at the superior court level.

Attending the swearing in ceremonies were Thurgood Marshall, chief counsel for the NAACP. Marshall said Gourdin's appointment was the answer of the North to the charges by the South that the North was not doing its part in the segregation problem. "This is a great day not just for Massachusetts but for the country," Marshall said.

DEDICATION CEREMONIES AT ST. BONIFACE'S

Quincy's newest Catholic Church, St. Boniface's, was dedicated this week by Archbishop Richard Cushing to meet the needs of the expanding populations of Germantown and Adams Shore. The church was named for the saint, originally from Ireland, who brought Christianity to the German tribes.

Rev. Richard McHale, the pastor and his assistant, Rev. Joseph Veneto, said the parish's first, First Communion Mass would be Aug. 2 for all those completing the preliminary instruction.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS POSTCARD is a 1920 view from Great Hill at the end of Houghs Neck. In the left distance is Raccoon Island on which the buildings were used by the Stigmatine Fathers for a summer school and camp. In the right center can be seen an electric trolley approaching the turnaround at the foot of Sea Avenue. Most of the houses were summer cottages at this time as attested by the closed shutters on the windows.

Grossman Drops Out Of Race For Congress

By PAUL HAROLD

Quincy businessman Joseph B. Grossman dropped out of the race for the Republican nomination for the open congressional seat, leaving three remaining candidates. Rep. William Jenness of Quincy, Atty. Harold Putnam of Needham and former Brockton Mayor Hjalmar Peterson. Incumbent Richard Wigglesworth was not running for re-election.

Besides Grossman there were originally three other potential candidates from Quincy: Sen. Charles Hedges, Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, and Councillor and former Mayor Thomas Burgin. Political observers said as the only candidate from the city, Jenness's chances were much enhanced.

On the Democratic side there was a free for all for the nomination with eight candidates: former Councillor David Crowley and Herman Seppala from Quincy, Rep. William Connell from Weymouth, Hollis Mosher, James Burke and Peter Fallon, all from Milton; and Michael Simone and Ed Dwyer from Boston.

GOURDIN SUPERIOR COURT JUDGE

Governor Foster Furcolo swore in Edward Gourdin of Presidents Lane to the state's Superior Court, making him the first Negro in New England to serve at the superior court level.

Attending the swearing in ceremonies were Thurgood Marshall, chief counsel for the NAACP. Marshall said Gourdin's appointment was the answer of the North to the charges by the South that the North was not doing its part in the segregation problem. "This is a great day not just for Massachusetts but for the country," Marshall said.

DEDICATION CEREMONIES AT ST. BONIFACE'S

Quincy's newest Catholic Church, St. Boniface's, was dedicated this week by Archbishop Richard Cushing to meet the needs of the expanding populations of Germantown and Adams Shore. The church was named for the saint, originally from Ireland, who brought Christianity to the German tribes.

Rev. Richard McHale, the pastor and his assistant, Rev. Joseph Veneto, said the parish's first, First Communion Mass would be Aug. 2 for all those completing the preliminary instruction.

QUINCY-ISMS

The Quincy-built USS Salem, slated for mothballing, steamed out of the Norfolk Naval base for renewed service. The action followed the recent deployment of troops in Lebanon. The Navy department would not disclose the ship's destination. Quincy Post Office Supt. Frank Anselmo didn't make the last cut for appointment as Boston's postmaster. The Mayflower II shallop was scheduled to participate in the Quincy Bay Race Week festivities. The GSA was ready to open negotiations with the city for the sale of 11.6 acres at Broad Meadows after they received an appraisal. The Quincy Electric Company had already offered to lease the 90 acres at Broad Meadows that the city currently owned.

Rev. Frank Bauer, pastor of Wollaston Lutheran Church, preached at the annual Lutheran Day services at the Cathedral of the Pines in Rindge, N.H. Labor chief John Wipfler was a candidate for state representatives in the First Norfolk District. Fried clams at Morey Pearl's on the Southern Artery were priced at 50 cents, 95 cents and $1.80. Further down on the Southern Artery was the new Smart's Lobster Kettle, co-owned by William Smart and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Smart. At Quincy City Hospital a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Svizzero of Farnum St. Mayor Della Chiesa named Sons of Italy Venerable Larry Scarnici as head of the city's Columbus Day program. The mayor also named Rep. Carter Lee to head the UN Day ceremonies. The Koch Club's 10th outing was held at Faxon Park. Woodward Spring Shop was building a new building on the corner of Canal and Brackett Streets. It was founded 76 years ago as a blacksmith shop on Copeland St. The mayor nominated Atty. Louis George for the Freedom, Inc. award. George came to Quincy at age six from Lebanon. He served 12 years on the city council and was a member of the housing authority board. One hundred hymnals were given to the Houghs Neck Congregational Church following a drive by the deacons to replace older books.

Justify Rent Increase To Naval Terrace Tenants

Editor, The Quincy Sun: Kudos to the Quincy City Council for blasting the non-profit outfit running the Naval Terrace apartments for the elderly.

City Council President Paul Harold thinks the corporation which recently sprung a surprise $75 increase in the monthly rent is "in worse shape than I ever imagined." The rent increase was supposed to take place July 1 and was then postponed until Aug. 1. Now the city council wants the rent increase postponed until the increase can be justified.

Harold was right back in 1996 when he wanted a private management company to run the place. Instead, a board picked by the mayor runs the apartments.

The Elder Housing Corporation was formed to take ownership of the property from the Navy. If the board of directors think a rent increase is necessary, prove it to the tenants and City Council first before dropping off the notices to folks.

Interfaith Social Services Seeks Volunteers

Interfaith Social Services in Wollaston urgently needs volunteers for its Faith in Action Program.

The organization seeks those who can give an hour a week as a companion to a person recovering from mental illness.

Good listeners who can initiate activities of mutual interest such as shopping, going to the beach, or attending a movie are particularly helpful.

Currently, 18 clients ranging in age from 38 to 75 are waiting for companions. One of these clients also has two children, ages eight and nine, who could benefit from their own companion.

Interfaith Social Services, which is located at 776 Hancock St., will provide training for volunteers and match each volunteer to a client.

People who have been mentally ill can become quite isolated socially and a companion can provide the bridge that will bring them into more normal community relationships, said ISS Executive Director Robert Taylor.

Interested persons should call Interfaith Social Services at (617) 773-6203.

Visitors Welcome At Deer Island Plant

The MWRA is extending the welcome mat to its long-suffering ratepayers to take a tour of the state-of-the-art Deer Island Treatment Plant for which they have paid and paid and paid for so long.

From April to November, the authority offers guided tours of the island, a chance to explore both the engineering marvels in the plant itself and the 60 acres of parkland surrounding the site.

"The Deer Island Treatment Plant is the cornerstone of a clean Boston Harbor and we're encouraging people to come out and see the nation's second largest wastewater treatment facility for themselves," said Frederick A. Laskey, the new executive director.

Construction of the plant, which began with a court order in 1985 and ended in the summer of 2000 with the opening of the 9.5 mile out-fall tunnel, cost $3.8 billion, which was paid mostly by ratepayers.

Any group or individual seeking to schedule a tour of the treatment plant should call Nadia Caines at 617-339-4102. Visitors must be 12 years of age or older.

Art Of Nancy Sheehan-Melzack At Walpole Public Library

An art exhibit featuring the knitted sea creatures of Nancy Sheehan-Melzack, an art teacher at the Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Learning Center, is on display until August 2 at the Walpole Public Library, Common St., Walpole.

Captured in multiple strands of yarn to suggest the colors and textures of starfish, barnacles, jellies, flatfish, and even a sea-horse, the exhibit also includes polymer clay rocks which are almost indistinguishable from the real thing.

Sheehan-Melzack, who attributed the discovery of creating realistic beach stones to a "happy accident" one day while demonstrating how to mix shaved crayon into translucent polymer clay, said her intent was not to duplicate marine life but rather to evoke a response so that audience members could recognize the animals and plants and concentrate on the messages being presented.

Most of the work is bas-relief. The knitted forms of the rocks are stitched into fabric backgrounds and a few pieces are in full-relief. The "Jellyfish" and "Seahorse" are in glass cases and can be viewed from all sides but the viewing public is invited to touch the collection of starfish and barnacles.

Library hours are Monday and Tuesday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Wednesday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Gabriella Snyder Concert On The Lawn Aug. 2

Gabriella Snyder, a performer at Boston's First Night, will appear in concert on the lawn of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Square, on Thursday, Aug. 2, from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m.

While accompanying herself on the mountain dulcimer, she will sing enchanting and nearly forgotten songs drawn from centuries of music.

Concert goers are welcome to bring lawn chairs, beach blankets, and picnics. In case of inclement weather, the concert will be held in the library atrium.

The concert, funded in part by the Quincy Arts Council, is free and accessible.

Snyder's repertoire includes a wide variety of music including Appalachian shape note hymns, Renaissance airs, Shaker dances, Medieval ballads, American folk songs, spirituals, Celtic melodies, and original songs. Her songs celebrate the homelife, loves, work, and play of ordinary people.

In addition to her First Night Boston performance, she performs throughout New England at festivals, coffeehouses, historical societies, and libraries. Her latest CD release is Ancient Christmas-Songs & Carols.

Snyder was the principal singer and mountain dulcimer player with The Sacred Harp Ensemble in the early 1990's. Before she began singing traditional music professionally, she sang opera and oratorio in the Greater Boston, Cape Cod, and upstate New York area. She has also performed art songs, show tunes, and improvisational drama.

Snyder composes and teaches voice and mountain dulcimer.

Quincy Girl Studies Leadership At Bridgewater

AnnaLee Nurmenniemi of Quincy has graduated from the six-week Leadership Institute at Bridgewater State College.

The Institute, organized by the Office of Student Activities, encourages personal growth through active participation in discussions, exercises and workshops.

Students learn how experiences in their co-curricula life can influence their work in the classroom and as leaders in organizations both at Bridgewater State and after graduation.

Participating students are nominated for the Institute by faculty and staff. Graduates put their newly acquired leadership skills to work sponsoring philanthropic activity in the community.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

A NOTCH ABOVE

If you brush too hard, abrasion and erosion of the tooth surface may occur over time. It begins with gum recession and tooth sensitivity. The enamel of the tooth may also wear away to reveal a small horizontal notch adjacent to the gum line. Eventually, the enamel may wear through and the underlying dentin becomes exposed. At this point, tooth sensitivity may become severe. It is this symptom that leads patients to the dentist for a remedy, often available in the form of resin bonding, which serves to fill in the eroded tooth with a resin material that exactly matches the original tooth color. In this way, both the structure and the appearance of the tooth are restored.

Let us determine if it's tooth sensitivity or a different dental problem that needs attention. Today's technology provides a variety of options to address oral health needs as well as cosmetic concerns. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we offer complete dental health services in a relaxed and friendly environment, with state-of-the-art equipment. Smiles are our business. Let us help you keep yours. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment - we spend the extra time to get to know you. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

P.S. To avoid tooth erosion and abrasion, patients are strongly encouraged to use toothbrushes with soft bristles and to exert less pressure on the handle of the toothbrush.

Thinking About Leaving Quincy? Think Again

Call it stubborn loyalty, but this is where I grew up. I know the stores, the streets and the people like the back of my hand. It's where I raised my family. I'm staying here and moving to River Bay Club retirement community. They offer everything I need for now and in the future. Florida, that's for vacations.

MARC SMITH, chief executive officer of the Stop & Shop Company, was the first into the dunk tank outside the firm's Quincy headquarters to help the Jimmy Fund during the Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival.

ARIANA SMITH, 15 months, found the beat to her liking during the performance by the musical group Windfall.

DONNA MARIE and her puppet friends were a hit with the youngsters Saturday.

ALEXIS HIGGINS of Quincy met a new friend, Pickles The Clown.

THERE WERE A lot of early risers Friday morning who took in the 5:30 a.m. Loren & Wally Show live WROR broadcast in front of Stephen Leigh Jewelers. The attendance was estimated at over 400.

THE GREG HOPKINS Group, sponsored by the Pearl Restaurant, performed for the "Lunch Bunch" at noon Friday.

Quincy Center Sidewalk Sale Called 'Best Ever'

The youngsters especially enjoyed audience participation with puppeteer Donna Marie; Pickles the Clown, who appeared on all three days of the festival; Ken Sherburn, the Balloon Man; and Spunky T. Clown, a Saturday noontime feature.

The increase in sales noted by many of the festival participants weren't just confined to the sidewalk bargains. Many ventured inside the stores to look over the everyday sales items.

"We were very active inside the store," said Mark Bertman. "Many shoppers came in to select things to layaway for Christmas."

Comments were virtually the same from merchants up and down Hancock Street.

"It was an overwhelming success," said Steve Blumberg, owner of Stephen Leigh Jewelers, who noted WROR 105.7 FM had been receiving many positive calls and e-mails since Friday's live broadcast of The Loren & Wally morning show in front of Blumberg's store.

Blumberg, who said he was considering doing the event next year, added that he saw many new faces at this year's festival.

Deanna Gazarian, owner of Phase II Jewelry, agreed.

"There was a lot of foot traffic and we noticed many new customers," said Gazarian. "The event was very well received."

"We did well," said Cindy Ryder of Ryder's Home Decor and More, 1489 Hancock St. "It was as good as last year. But this year there seemed to be more fun. The weather was great, too."

"We did okay," said Ed Morris of the Fours restaurant, 15 Cottage Ave. "Usually we're hurt by the sidewalk sales. But this time it was different. Don't ask me why. This is a funny business."

Manning noted that those who attended the sidewalk festival also had a chance to try new foods from the Thai, Indian and other ethnic restaurants that new to downtown Quincy.

Those who were interested in promotion and dispensing information rather than sales noticed the increase in activity during the three days.

The USS Salem and its Naval Shipbuilding Museum's Jim Fahey reported a "very extensive crowd" at its booth, which was used to attract new members and promote its summer concert series and summer adventures.

The feature of the Salem booth was the ship's bell that was rung periodically to attract attention.

"The kids would hear it and come over," said Fahey. "Then the parents would follow."

"The response was great," said Michael Cheney, managing the booth for the Transition To Trades School, a free pre-apprenticeship program for those over 18 years of age and older, sponsored by the Quincy & South Shore Building and Construction Trades Council, AFL-CIO.

"We had over 50 applications for the program which will begin in September."

"We had volunteers manning our booth and they were busy most of the time," said Helen Crowley, program manager for the American Red Cross, who has maintained a tent at the festival for several years because "it is important that we be visible in the community."

Geri Dussault of the River Bay Club, a senior living complex at 99 Brackett St., said the club entered a booth "for exposure and to support the local businesses."

"We were very busy," she said. "And we developed a couple of leads."

QMC Auxiliary Donates $35,000 To Hospital

Carol Herbai, president of the Quincy Medical Center Auxiliary, presented a $35,000 check to Christine Schuster, CEO of Quincy Medical Center, at the auxiliary's annual luncheon held recently at the Wollaston Golf Club.

The funds will be used to complete renovations underway in the QMC emergency room.

Over the course of its history, the QMC Auxiliary has donated over $1 million to the hospital. An estimated $400,000 has been donated over the last 10 years under the leadership of Herbai.

In addition, the annual Bissette Scholarship Award was presented at the luncheon to Matthew O'Malley, a hospital volunteer and graduate of Boston College High School, where he was captain of the cross country team and a member of the National Honor Society. O'Malley will attend Williams College.

Auxiliary members conducted a business meeting following the luncheon where Herbai and new officers were installed for the coming year: Carol Herbai, president; Caroline Bornstein, first vice president; Clarus McKeon, second vice president; Ilda DiMaschio, recording secretary; Lorraine Edwards, corresponding secretary; Yolanda Romanelli, treasurer; and Natalie Fossati, assistant treasurer.

Directors installed were: Elizabeth Gullage, three years; Mildred Jacobs, two years; and Arlene Constant, one year.

Chairwoman for the luncheon was Caroline Bornstein.

Quincy Well Represented At Keating's Senior Summit

More than a dozen representatives from the Quincy Police Department, Council of Aging, Human Rights Commission and other organizations were among some 150 elders and senior citizens advocates at Norfolk Dist. Atty. William Keating's Senior Summit in Randolph recently.

Andrew Veneto, Kathy Quirk, John Noonan, Gerald Weidman and Tom Clasby from the Council on Aging, Robert Hanna, Brian Tobin, John Ryan and Barry DeFranco from the Quincy Police Department all took part.

Human Rights Commission members Zaida Shaw, David Ezickson, Joseph McDermott, Guy Degrazia and Elmina Greene as well as Commission Director Nancy McDonald; Linda K. Stice, Commission on the Family; Eve Masiello, Quincy Medical Center, and Housing Authority Service Coordinator Barbara O'Brien also participated.

"It was gratifying to have such a strong turnout from Quincy and across the county for this event," Keating said. "Isolation is often at the root of problems seniors face --- be they telemarketing scams or dishonest caregivers. The one we bring seniors together with each other and with those working to help them, the more that isolation is defeated."

The Senior Summit gathered together senior leaders from a dozen councils on aging, a half dozen police departments and a score of state and private service organizations. The event featured updates on current legislative initiatives and emerging trends as well as workshops on topics from recognizing and dealing with dishonest caregivers to geriatric care management.

The event was held in collaboration with the Norfolk County Elder Protective Service Agencies.

Finneran Names Ayers To Joint Insurance Committee

House Speaker Thomas Finneran recently appointed Rep. Bruce Ayers to the Joint Committee on Insurance, which is chaired by Rep. Ronald Mariano, also of Quincy.

Ayers serves on the Hu-man Services and Elder Af-fairs Committee and the Public Safety Committee.

Ayers said he was eager to serve on this additional committee.

"This committee deals with issues that I am very much concerned about, such as Health Care related cost issues as well as small business insurance protection."

Recently, Ayers filed 52 bills with the House Clerk, which he gathered from neighborhood meetings, office hours, and constituent services.

One of the bills that Ay-ers has been working on is the new Senior Pharmacy Bill, which offers unlimited prescription benefits to seniors. Ayers has been talking with senior groups throughout the First Norfolk District regarding benefits and program guidelines. He has also produced a cable TV show and has been circulating a flyer that deals with the issue of a prescrip-tion drug coverage and other senior related issues.

Ayers praised Meghan Barry, his legislative aide, for her administrative as-sistance with the various committee assignments and close work with constituent services.

Beechwood Harbor Cruise Will Help Expand Programs

Beechwood's annual Harbor Cruise, Aug. 8 will benefit the center's expanding intergenerational programs, says Helen Irvin, president of Beechwood Community Life Center.

"This harbor cruise has become a very popular event," said Executive Director Sharron Beals. "Last year tickets sold out early, and we expect the same community response this summer. Ours is a three hour harbor cruise with music, complimentary foods and a wonderful crowd each year."

Another successful "sail" will ensure the expansion of programming On The Bay, Beals said.

The three hour midweek moonlight cruise features a DJ, complimentary food, dancing and a cash bar. Passengers will board at the Marina Bay dock at 7 p.m. The ship departs at 7:30 p.m. Cost is $35 per person and $50 per couple.

Tickets can be purchased at the center, from members of Beechwood's Development Committee, and other sites throughout the city. For more information, call 617-471-5712.

Annual Fun Dog Show To Be Held At Marina Place

Marina Place and the Quincy Animal Shelter announce the second annual Fun Dog Show to be held today (Thursday) from 3 to 4 p.m. at Marina Place, 4 Seaport Drive.

Dogs of all ages and talents are invited to participate and everyone is invited with or without canine companions.

Contestants will be judged in an array of categories including: most exotic, most musical, best dressed, most talented, largest, smallest, and closest resemblance to owner.

Judges include Elizabeth Westley, director of Marketing at Marina Place, and Heather Garre, certified dog trainer and owner of Tail Wagging Dog Training School.

Also taking part in the judging will be "Cocoa," a chocolate-colored labrador retriever and Marina Place's own pet therapist, specially trained as a general companion to the Marina Place residents.

The contest begins with a pet parade for the benefit of residents and guests in the Marina Place viewing stand. Prizes will be awarded and raffles and refreshments for both contestants and their owners will add to the fun.

For more information, contact Elizabeth Westley at (617) 770-3264.

Marina Place is an Independent and Assisted Living Community that is part of a campus dedicated to providing a continuum of care for seniors.

The Quincy Animal Shelter (QAS) is an all-volunteer non-profit incorporated in November of 1999. As a "no-kill" shelter, QAS makes every effort to find an appropriate placement for every animal rendered into its care.

In its first 18 months, QAS has placed more than 800 unwanted dogs and cats into homes.

Josiah Quincy House A National Historic Landmark

The Josiah Quincy House, 20 Muirhead St., Wollaston, was officially declared a National Historic Landmark at a ceremony held there Tuesday afternoon.

The house is under the jurisdiction of the Society for the Preservation of New England

Antiquities (SPNEA).

The second floor of the home was a lookout for Col. Josiah Quincy, great uncle of Abigail Adams, from which he spied on British ship movements for his friend, General George Washington.

On March 17, 1776 he watched 170 ships move out to sea as the British evacuated Boston.

The house was recently repainted from yellow to beige to reflect more accurately how it looked in the 1880s when historian Eliza Susan Quincy began to chronicle information pertaining to the house and the Quincy family.

First-Time Homebuyer's Workshop Aug. 11, 18

Neighborhood Housing Services, an approved First-Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will hold an accredited and MHFA-certified First-Time Homebuyer's Workshop in partnership with the Randolph Banking Collaborative Saturday, Aug. 11 and Aug. 18.

The workshop will be held at Randolph Town Hall, 41 South Main St., from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Attendance at both workshops is mandatory to receive your homebuying certificate, which is required by most lenders to qualify for the many different mortgage options such as the Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs, downpayment and closing costs grants and other special first-time homebuyer fi-ancing options.

Neighborhood Housing Services is a non-profit organization dedicated to assisting first-time buyers through the homebuying process. The staff at NHS is unique in their approach to obtaining downpayment and closing costs assistance as well as rehab grants for their clients, which are available throughout the entire South Shore area.

The agenda will be comprehensive and individualized. The focus will be on the many changing aspects of homebuying, including how to locate a property within budget, how to make an offer, and determining the best mortgage program.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited. A $10 refundable registration fee is required.

For more information and to register for the workshop, call Debbie Ederly at 617-770-2227, ext. 31.

Michelle Keady Completes Conway Real Estate Course

Michelle Keady of Quincy recently completed a four-week course on the fundamentals of real estate sales at the Conway Country School of Real Estate.

Those interested in becoming licensed real estate agents can take the 25 hours of coursework to meet the Commonwealth of Massachusetts' requirements prior to taking the salespersons' licensing exam.

Students of the Conway School also have access to professional career counseling to discuss joining the Conway sales team, although enrolling in the precursing class does not obligate students to work for Conway.

Tuition is $180 and the classes are at the Hanover Campus, Routes 53 and 139, Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 9:30. The next class starts Aug. 7 and runs through Aug. 30. Additional classes are being scheduled at Conway's new Lakeville Campus. For more information on this or future license courses, call 781-826-0088.

The Conway Country School of Real Estate is a division of Norwell-based Jack Conway and Co., which is the largest independent real estate company in Massachusetts, with more than 600 agents in 37 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

Finance Tip

(NU) - Creating a smart plan for retirement is a marathon -- 40 years of investing until your 60s.

You should start by investing 10 percent of your annual income in your 20s and 30s. By your 50s you should be investing up to 15 percent.

Even in your 60s as you're collecting from your retirement plans, you'll need to keep investing to produce income.

For a free investor's kit, call 1-877-275-6242 or visit www.better-investing.org.

Antonia McGuire Named Manet Health Exec. Director

Manet Community Health Center Board President Barbara Morris recently announced that Antonia G. McGuire of Westborough has been named executive director of Manet Community Health Center.

McGuire comes to Manet having served most recently as director of Administration and Community Affairs for the Department of Family Medicine at Boston Medical Center. In her role at BMC, she assisted in the development of the fiscal, clinical, research, and administrative infrastructure for the first-ever Department of Family Medicine at BMC. With the chairman she developed the department's strategic plan and implemented the organizational strategy that reached the goal of 12,000 patient visits in the first year of clinical operations for the department.

"When we started our search for a new executive director for Manet, a key factor for us was to find an individual who clearly demonstrated a commitment to the community health center model of care," said Morris. "We are confident that Toni McGuire brings that commitment and those skills to Manet. The entire board and staff of Manet Community Health Center are looking forward to working with Toni."

McGuire said she was pleased with the opportunity to lead the health center. "Manet is a valuable resource to the community and draws its strength from the people that have been served for over 20 years," said McGuire. "The board, the clinical leadership, and the entire staff of Manet impressed me with their commitment to the Health Center's mission."

McGuire has held clinical leadership positions with the Blackstone Valley Perinatal Network of Brown University and Family Care Health Centers of St. Louis, MO, where she developed clinical programs and became proficient in attaining grants and awards to support these programs.

In her position as vice president for Clinical Services with Managed Care Assistance Corporation, she traveled to community health centers across the country assessing the readiness of clinical and administrative systems for managed care and assisting them in preparation of systems for managed care. She also worked for Fallon Healthcare System as system director for Health, Education, and Promotion.

A registered nurse, McGuire holds a bachelor of Arts degree in Sociology from Maryville University, MO, and a Masters of Public Health degree from St. Louis University.

Sex Offender Registry Law Upheld By SJC

State Rep. Stephen Tobin, chairman of the Committee on Criminal Justice, announces that The Sex Offender Registry, a Criminal Justice bill enacted last season, was recently upheld by the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court.

The Sex Offender Registry Law requires certain sex offenders to provide information to the state, including their home and work address, and allows the information on the highest level offenders to be disseminated to the public.

The law also has a component which provides that a sexually dangerous person who has completed his term of incarceration may still be committed civilly.

In this case, the Supreme Judicial Court was considering whether a person convicted of a sex offense could constitutionally be required to mail his name and address to the Sex Offender Registry Board prior to the offender's registration hearing. The court also considered whether that information could be given to police departments before the registration hearing. The court found both provisions to be constitutional in a ruling handed down June 28.

"This is a victory for public safety," said Tobin. "I am pleased that the efforts of my colleagues in the Legislature, including Senator Michael Morrissey, Representative Ronald Mariano, and Representative Bruce Ayers, have been upheld.

"This law protects children and families from sex offenders who prey on women and children."

D'Amico Endorsed By Norfolk Labor Council

The Norfolk Central Labor Council AFL-CIO has endorsed Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico for reelection.

In a letter to D'Amico, Robert Rizzi, president, and James Howard, secretary-treasurer, said the prime factor in the council's endorsement "is your commitment to the issues of organized labor and all-working men and women.

"We feel secure in the knowledge that in the future your priorities will continue to be a strong advocate for labor."

Patrick Coughlin Joins Army Reserve

Patrick J. Coughlin has joined the United States Army Reserve under the Delayed Training Program.

The program gives young men and women the opportunity to delay reporting for basic military training for up to 270 days. An enlistment gives many the option to learn a new skill, serve their country, and become eligible to receive more than $7,000 toward a college education, $20,000 for repayment of college loans, and a maximum $5,000 cash bonus.

After completion of basic military training, most soldiers receive advanced individual training in their career job specialties.

The recruit qualifies for a $3,000 enlistment bonus.

Coughlin, a 1998 graduate of North Quincy High School, will report to Fort Sill, Lawton, Okla., for basic training.

He is the son of Joan L. and William Coughlin of 25 Oakland St., Quincy.

Bows In Playoffs After First Post-Season Appearance Turnaround Season For Quincy Legion

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy Legion baseball team's turnaround season took a turn for the worse in the postseason.

After a climatic and chaotic late-season surge just to clinch a spot in the playoffs, Quincy unfortunately had to face Foxboro, the District 6 West champions, in the first round.

And Foxboro showed why it's the champs of the West, sweeping Quincy in the best-of-three series, 10-1 last Friday and 6-2 last Saturday.

Still, first-year head coach Bob Benn and his coaching staff were able to resuscitate the once comatose program and lead it to its first-ever appearance in the postseason, truly making this one of the better success stories in American Legion District 6 East this season.

"Foxboro was a good team but not better than us," Benn said. "I know that may sound like sour grapes, but it's not. They beat us, absolutely. Congratulations to them. But our kids are outstanding baseball players, too. Every single one of them."

"We beat ourselves in many instances," he added. "That comes from lack of experience. I take the blame for many of our mistakes. I didn't spend enough time with them on fundamentals, mechanics, and all the little details that must be taught in order to compete at this level. That will change next year."

Quincy should field a strong team next year as it will return 11 of the 16 players from this year's playoff squad. The five 18 year olds that will be gone, though, should not be forgotten. John Lupo, Chris Walsh, Mark Gibbons, Dave Centrella and Conrad Leger all contributed in a big way to this team's success.

"We will have most of the team back next season so we should be even tougher," Benn said. "Although we will miss the graduating 18 year olds. Each one played key roles in making this team what it was this year, a play-off team. They can be proud of the fact that they led Quincy Legion to its first appearance ever in the postseason. A wonderful accomplishment for these guys. We also want to congratulate the rest of the players."

In Game 2 at Adams Field last Saturday, Quincy scored a pair of runs in the first inning to take the early lead. Murphy (2 for 3) led off with a single. Moynihan followed with a fielder's choice and Walsh (2 for 3) reached on an infield single to put men at first and second. With two outs, Fidalgo and Thomson stroked back-to-back RBI singles.

In the top of the second, Foxboro got one run back when pitcher Conrad Leger yielded a lead-off triple and then uncorked a wild pitch. Foxboro notched two runs in the third to take its first lead, 3-2, and never looked back, adding single runs in the fourth, sixth and seventh innings.

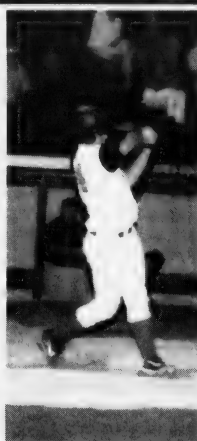

Leger pitched a strong game, allowing eight hits and three walks while striking out six in the complete-game effort. He just happened to be a victim of run support, as Quincy managed only three singles after the first inning.

"Conrad pitched a very good game for us," Benn said. "We were hoping to give him some runs to work with. He worked very hard out there for us, as usual."

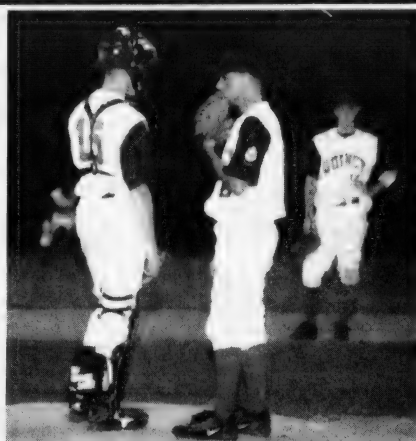

In the series opener last Friday at Foxboro, Quincy's sizzling bats must have been dipped into an ice bath before the game. The cooled-off offense mustered only one run on four hits against a tough Foxboro pitcher. Walsh went 2 for 3 with an RBI, Centrella smashed a long double and Fidalgo added a single.

"The pitcher for Foxboro did a great job," Benn said. "He dropped down to the side, which definitely caused some problems for our hitters. He shut down our bats that were starting to come around. This wasn't one of our better games. But I will say this: these guys played hard right to the end. They didn't pack it in."

"Myself and coaches Jim Maze, Joe Brill and Steve Maze are very proud to have been a part of this team with such a great group of kids. We had a blast. They made it easy on us. They were great to work with."

PAT JAEHNIG takes a big cut in his pinch-hit at-bat in the bottom of the seventh inning.

JOHN FIDALGO takes a trip to the mound in the sixth inning to talk things over with starting pitcher Conrad Leger in last Saturday's 6-2 loss to Foxboro at Adams Field. Despite picking up the loss, Leger turned in a workmanlike performance in his final outing for Quincy Legion. (Quincy Sun photos/Robert Noble)

SPORTS

Quincy Youth Baseball Tournament Starts Friday

Quincy Youth Baseball will host a tournament for 10 year olds at McCoy and Mitchell fields to benefit The Jimmy Fund.

Games will begin tomorrow (Friday) at 6 and 8 p.m. and continue Saturday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. The semi-finals and final will be held Saturday, Aug. 4.

Quincy Youth Baseball, several community businesses and the participating teams are supporting the tourney. The teams are Braintree American, Duxbury (two teams), Hyde Park, Medfield, Milton American, Milton National, Scituate, Weymouth and three teams from Quincy Youth Baseball.

Bertoni Memorial Golf Outing

The Quincy Animal Shelter announces the 13th annual Bill Shea's Bertoni Memorial Golf Tournament will be held Monday, Sept. 10 at the Halifax Country Club.

The tournament enables area residents and businesses to show their support for Quincy's homeless pet population. All proceeds benefit animals waiting for homes at the all-volunteer Quincy

Animal Shelter.

Opportunities for individuals to get involved include playing golf, sponsorship and prize donation.

Cost is $110 per golf and tee time is at 8 a.m. Sponsorship opportunities include Corporate Sponsorship for $1,000, Golf Hole Sponsorship for $625, and Hole Sponsorship for $150.

An awards luncheon will follow the tournament and prizes are needed. These may include gift certificates, sports equipment, or gift and promotional items. All sponsors and donors are listed in the tournament program and on the Quincy Animal Shelter Web site.

For more information contact Bill Shea at 617-328-1266 for Jeanie Ellard at 617-472-3560.

Sacchetti Memorial Tourney Aug. 6

The ninth annual Charlie Sacchetti Memorial Golf Tournament will be held Aug. 6 at the South Shore Country Club in Hingham with a 7:15 a.m. shotgun start.

A clambake will be held after the tournament for all participants at the Torre di

Paseri Social Club, 252 Washington St., Quincy Point.

Cost of the tournament is $90 per person. For those who wish to sponsor a hole, the cost is $100.

Proceeds from the tournamant are donated to the Morrisette Post Scholarship Fund. In the previous eight years, over $20,000 has been donated.

To participate, visit the Triangle Service Station at 15 West St., West Quincy, or call 617-472-9517.

Striper Tournament At Marina Bay

The American Striper Association's 16th annual Mercury Tournament Trail will make two stops in the Greater Boston area this summer — one of them in Quincy.

Monahan's Marine's Tournament Fisherman's Championship will hold a captain's meeting Friday, Aug. 24 at its Weymouth facility and then move the fishing portion of the event to Marina Bay Aug. 25-26.

For more information on the ASA trail, tournament brochures and applications, call 904-819-0369 or visit online at www.fishasa.com.

Revolution Honor Two Residents

Alberto Mendez and Adita Vazquez, both of Quincy, were recently honored by the New England Revolution at their first-ever Hispanic Heritage Night celebrating the diversity and culture of the New England Hispanic community.

They were two of 50 local Latino community members honored as community heroes during a halftime presentation as well as a pre-game reception.

Mendez, former president of the Hispanic Lions Club, is a Doctor of Spanish at Suffolk University and Dean of the university's Spanish Department.

Vazquez, current president of Greater Boston Hispanic Lions, has been involved in the community for over 20 years. She has received numerous awards, including the Concilio Human Services Certificate of Appreciation and the Clara Barton Humanitarian Award.

Granite Strike Hurricanes Again And Again

By CHRIS POISSON

The Hyannis Hurricanes may have struck first, but the Quincy Granite struck again, again, again, again, again, again, again last Saturday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Hurricanes made a statement early when Rodney Ferguson returned the opening kickoff 80 yards for a score, but, apparently, the words were lost in translation as the Granite proceeded to score eight times in a 53-6 thrashing.

In fairness to the Hurricanes, they were severely outnumbered, playing with less than half the number of bodies the fully-loaded Granite had on their sideline.

"They were just undermanned," said head coach Ken McPhee. "We have a lot of talent. It was a nice win for us. We needed a win like that. We didn't want to score 53 points, it just happened."

And it happened in all sorts of ways. There was a punt return for a score; there was a touchdown off a fake punt; there was a ground game that found paydirt five times; and there was the steady receiver doing what he does best, catching a six-pointer.

Quincy (3-0) will try to keep its offense rolling Saturday when it meets the Boston Cowboys (0-2) for the second time this season at 3 p.m. at Boston English High School. Quincy defeated Boston, 13-6, in the season opener nearly three weeks ago. The Cowboys are coming off a 39-13 loss to the Middleboro Cobras last Saturday.

"They're tough," McPhee said. "They're going to be prepared and plus they got a couple of players that just came back. We have our work cut out for us. But I think we are up to the task. I really do. These guys want to play football. Hey, we beat them. Now they have to beat us."

Clearly, the offensive unit, with help from special teams, busted out of its cocoon as it racked up a season-high 362 total yards. Quincy rushed for 197 yards, powered by the Vetiac brothers, starter Jackson and fourth-stringer Max, with two touchdowns apiece.

With Mike Thomas out with an ankle injury, Liam Higgins started his second straight game at quarterback. Higgins, who had a shoulder injury in the preseason, completed 5-of-14 passes with a touchdown and two interceptions. Although the completion percentage was low, he was able to make the big plays, averaging 23 yards per throw.

After Hyannis scored, Quincy scored three times in the first to take a 20-6 lead. Punter Matt Kuleska faked a punt on fourth down and found Troy Parks, who raced 60 yards into the end zone. Higgins connected with the always reliable wideout, Billy MacDougall, for a 25-yard TD pass. Dwayne Williams added a 70-yard punt return (extra point failed) for the 20-6 lead.

In the second quarter, Jackson Vetiac (6 carries, 34 yards) scored from 2 and 3 yards out to hand the Granite a 33-6 lead. Tailback Will Felix increased the lead to 40-6 with a 12-yard TD run in the third. Max Vetiac, who earned the game ball, rounded out the scoring in the fourth by reeling off 80- and 20-yard touchdown runs on his only carries of the game.

As usual, the Dark Side, the Granite's renowned defensive unit, blacked out its opponent, limiting the Hurricanes to 42 total yards and only six first downs while also recovering a fumble.

Defensive back John Skabeikis, who led the EFL in interceptions last season with 11, picked off three balls. The defense applied pressure up front, with de-

Chris Boyd Leads Burke Club In 2-1 Win

Chris Boyd scattered four hits and a walk and struck out six as Burke Club defeated Keohanes, 2-1, in recent Junior League semi-final action.

Boyd knocked in Wendell Cosgrove with a single in the first inning. Keohanes, the regular season champs, tied the game in the top of the sixth. In the bottom half, Cosgrove led off with a single to center and scored the winning run on Danny Munkley's double to deep center.

Brian Mahoney, Nathan Mahoney, Kyle Roche and Matt Sheridan played strong defensive games. For Keohanes, Tom Conley and Joe Garland played well.

In earlier playoff action: Burke 3, Elks 2

Lammie Papalambros struck out eight and walked one to pick up the win in quarterfinal action. Conor Roche singled and scored in the first inning, but the Elks tied it in the third. In the sixth, Wendell Cosgrove (2 for 3) doubled home Roche and later scored on Danny Munkley's sacrifice fly.

For the Elks, Steve McGarty pitched an excellent game.

Burke 6, Rotary 0

Chris Boyd fired a one-hitter as he received some support from his defense, which turned three double plays. He also smashed a double. Wendell Cosgrove crushed a towering two-run home run in the first inning. Lammie Papalambros had three singles and Conor Roche scored two runs. Nathan Mahoney knocked in his first run, Dave Griffin had a sacrifice RBI and Mike Ferrara (2 for 3) played well as catcher.

Burke 4, Elks 2

Chris Boyd allowed two runs over five innings to earn the win and Wendell Cosgrove picked up the save in first-round action. Boyd knocked in a run with a sacrifice fly and Danny Munkley (2 for 3) ripped an RBI single. Lammie Papalambros drove in a run with his second double of the game. Dave Griffin and Matt Sheridan played well defensively.

Paul Doolan pitched well.

Youth Soccer Camp At Fore River Field Aug. 6-10

Quincy Youth Soccer and NOGA Soccer have teamed up to provide a week-long soccer camp this summer at Fore River Field.

The camp will be held Aug. 6-10 and is open to all Quincy Youth Soccer players regardless of ability. Players ages 4-11 are invited to the first session from 9 a.m. to noon and players 12 and over are invited to the second session from 4 to 7 p.m. All children will initially be grouped by age and then by ability.

As part of the camp program, the NOGA Soccer coaches will also run free clinics for parents and coaches on Tuesday, Aug. 7 and Thursday, Aug. 9 from 5 to 6:30 p.m.

NOGA is regarded as one of the premier soccer coaching organizations in the United States, with over 150 coaches who work with 50,000 of America's soccer clubs for parents and coaches on Tuesday, Aug. 7 and Thursday, Aug. 9 from 5 to 6:30 p.m.

Bows In Playoffs After First Post-Season Appearance Turnaround Season For Quincy Legion

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy Legion baseball team's turnaround season took a turn for the worse in the postseason.

After a climatic and chaotic late-season surge just to clinch a spot in the playoffs, Quincy unfortunately had to face Foxboro, the District 6 West champions, in the first round.

And Foxboro showed why it's the champs of the West, sweeping Quincy in the best-of-three series, 10-1 last Friday and 6-2 last Saturday.

Still, first-year head coach Bob Benn and his coaching staff were able to resuscitate the once comatose program and lead it to its first-ever appearance in the postseason, truly making this one of the better success stories in American Legion District 6 East this season.

"Foxboro was a good team but not better than us," Benn said. "I know that may sound like sour grapes, but it's not. They beat us, absolutely. Congratulations to them. But our kids are outstanding baseball players, too. Every single one of them."

"We beat ourselves in many instances," he added. "That comes from lack of experience. I take the blame for many of our mistakes. I didn't spend enough time with them on fundamentals, mechanics, and all the little details that must be taught in order to compete at this level. That will change next year."

Quincy should field a strong team next year as it will return 11 of the 16 players from this year's playoff squad. The five 18 year olds that will be gone, though, should not be forgotten. John Lupo, Chris Walsh, Mark Gibbons, Dave Centrella and Conrad Leger all contributed in a big way to this team's success.

"We will have most of the team back next season so we should be even tougher," Benn said. "Although we will miss the graduating 18 year olds. Each one played key roles in making this team what it was this year, a play-off team. They can be proud of the fact that they led Quincy Legion to its first appearance ever in the postseason. A wonderful accomplishment for these guys. We also want to congratulate the rest of the players."

In Game 2 at Adams Field last Saturday, Quincy scored a pair of runs in the first inning to take the early lead. Murphy (2 for 3) led off with a single, Moynihan followed with a fielder's choice and Walsh (2 for 3) reached on an infield single to put men at first and second. With two outs, Fidalgo and Thomson stroked back-to-back RBI singles.

In the top of the second, Foxboro got one run back when pitcher Conrad Leger yielded a lead-off triple and then uncorked a wild pitch. Foxboro notched two runs in the third to take its first lead, 3-2, and never looked back, adding single runs in the fourth, sixth and seventh innings.

Leger pitched a strong game, allowing eight hits and three walks while striking out six in the complete-game effort. He just happened to be a victim of run support, as Quincy managed only three singles after the first inning.

"Conrad pitched a very good game for us," Benn said. "We were hoping to give him some runs to work with. He worked very hard out there for us, as usual."

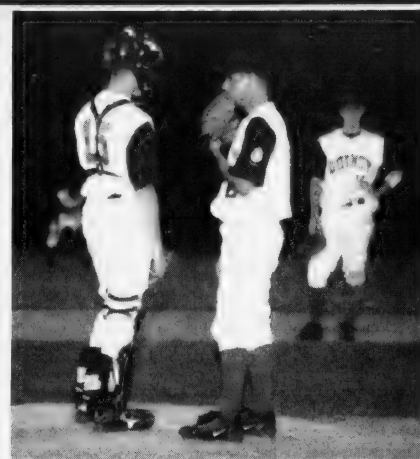

In the series opener last Friday at Foxboro, Quincy's sizzling bats must have been dipped into an ice bath before the game. The cooled-off offense mustered only one run on four hits against a tough Foxboro pitcher. Walsh went 2 for 3 with an RBI, Centrella smashed a long double and Fidalgo added a single.

"The pitcher for Foxboro did a great job," Benn said. "He dropped down to the side, which definitely caused some problems for our hitters. He shut down our bats that were starting to come around. This wasn't one of our better games. But I will say this: these guys played hard right to the end. They didn't pack it in."

"Myself and coaches Jim Maze, Joe Brill and Steve Maze are very proud to have been a part of this team with such a great group of kids. We had a blast. They made it easy on us. They were great to work with."

PAT JAEHNIG takes a big cut in his pinch-hit at-bat in the bottom of the seventh inning.

JOHN FIDALGO takes a trip to the mound in the sixth inning to talk things over with starting pitcher Conrad Leger in last Saturday's 6-2 loss to Foxboro at Adams Field. Despite picking up the loss, Leger turned in a workmanlike performance in his final outing for Quincy Legion. (Quincy Sun photos/Robert Noble)

SPORTS

Quincy Youth Baseball Tournament Starts Friday

Quincy Youth Baseball will host a tournament for 10 year olds at McCoy and Mitchell fields to benefit The Jimmy Fund.

Games will begin tomorrow (Friday) at 6 and 8 p.m. and continue Saturday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. The semi-finals and final will be held Saturday, Aug. 4.

Quincy Youth Baseball, several community businesses and the participating teams are supporting the tourney. The teams are Braintree American, Duxbury (two teams), Hyde Park, Medfield, Milton American, Milton National, Scituate, Weymouth and three teams from Quincy Youth Baseball.

Bertoni Memorial Golf Outing

The Quincy Animal Shelter announces the 13th annual Bill Shea's Bertoni Memorial Golf Tournament will be held Monday, Sept. 10 at the Halifax Country Club.

The tournament enables area residents and businesses to show their support for Quincy's homeless pet population. All proceeds benefit animals waiting for homes at the all-volunteer Quincy

Animal Shelter.

Opportunities for individuals to get involved include playing golf, sponsorship and prize donation.

Cost is $110 per golf and tee time is at 8 a.m. Sponsorship opportunities include Corporate Sponsorship for $1,000, Golf Hole Sponsorship for $625, and Hole Sponsorship for $150.

An awards luncheon will follow the tournament and prizes are needed. These may include gift certificates, sports equipment, or gift and promotional items. All sponsors and donors are listed in the tournament program and on the Quincy Animal Shelter Web site.

For more information contact Bill Shea at 617-328-1266 for Jeanie Ellard at 617-472-3560.

Sacchetti Memorial Tourney Aug. 6

The ninth annual Charlie Sacchetti Memorial Golf Tournament will be held Aug. 6 at the South Shore Country Club in Hingham with a 7:15 a.m. shotgun start.

A clambake will be held after the tournament for all participants at the Torre di

Paseri Social Club, 252 Washington St., Quincy Point.

Cost of the tournament is $90 per person. For those who wish to sponsor a hole, the cost is $100.

Proceeds from the tour-namment are donated to the Morrisette Post Scholarship Fund. In the previous eight years, over $20,000 has been donated.

To participate, visit the Triangle Service Station at 15 West St., West Quincy, or call 617-472-9517.

Striper Tournament At Marina Bay

The American Striper Association's 16th annual Mercury Tournament Trail will make two stops in the Greater Boston area this summer — one of them in Quincy.

Monahan's Marine's Tournament Fisherman's Championship will hold a captain's meeting Friday, Aug. 24 at its Weymouth facility and then move the fishing portion of the event to Marina Bay Aug. 25-26.

For more information on the ASA trail, tournament brochures and applications, call 904-819-0369 or visit online at www.fishasa.com.

Revolution Honor Two Residents

Alberto Mendez and Adita Vazquez, both of Quincy, were recently honored by the New England Revolution at their first-ever Hispanic Heritage Night celebrating the diversity and culture of the New England Hispanic community.

They were two of 50 local Latino community members honored as community heroes during a halftime presentation as well as a pre-game reception.

Mendez, former president of the Hispanic Lions Club, is a Doctor of Spanish at Suffolk University and Dean of the university's Spanish Department.

Vazquez, current president of Greater Boston Hispanic Lions, has been involved in the community for over 20 years. She has received numerous awards, including the Concilio Human Services Certificate of Appreciation and the Clara Barton Humanitarian Award.

Granite Strike Hurricanes Again And Again

By CHRIS POISSON

The Hyannis Hurricanes may have struck first, but the Quincy Granite struck again, again, again, again, again, again last Saturday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Hurricanes made a statement early when Rodney Ferguson returned the opening kickoff 80 yards for a score, but, apparently, the words were lost in translation as the Granite proceeded to score eight times in a 53-6 thrashing.

In fairness to the Hurricanes, they were severely outnumbered, playing with less than half the number of bodies the fully-loaded Granite had on their sideline.

"They were just undermanned," said head coach Ken McPhee. "We have a lot of talent. It was a nice win for us. We needed a win like that. We didn't want to score 53 points, it just happened."

And it happened in all sorts of ways. There was a punt return for a score; there was a touchdown off a fake punt; there was a ground game that found paydirt five times; and there was the steady receiver doing what he does best, catching a six-pointer.

Quincy (3-0) will try to keep its offense rolling Saturday when it meets the Boston Cowboys (0-2) for the second time this season at 3 p.m. at Boston English High School. Quincy defeated Boston, 13-6, in the season opener nearly three weeks ago. The Cowboys are coming off a 39-13 loss to the Middleboro Cobras last Saturday.

"They're tough," McPhee said. "They're going to be prepared and plus they got a couple of players that just came back. We have our work cut out for us. But I think we are up to the task. I really do. These guys want to play football. Hey, we beat them. Now they have to beat us."

Clearly, the offensive unit, with help from special teams, busted out of its cocoon as it racked up a season-high 362 total yards. Quincy rushed for 197 yards, powered by the Vetiac brothers, starter Jackson and fourth-stringer Max, with two touchdowns apiece.

With Mike Thomas out with an ankle injury, Liam Higgins started his second straight game at quarterback. Higgins, who had a shoulder injury in the preseason, completed 5-of-14 passes with a touchdown and two interceptions. Although the completion percentage was low, he was able to make the big plays, averaging 23 yards per throw.

After Hyannis scored, Quincy scored three times in the first to take a 20-6 lead. Punter Matt Kuleska faked a punt on fourth down and found Troy Parks, who raced 60 yards into the end zone. Higgins connected with the always reliable wideout, Billy MacDougall, for a 25-yard TD pass. Dwayne Williams added a 70-yard punt return (extra point failed) for the 20-6 lead.

In the second quarter, Jason Vetiac (6 carries, 34 yards) scored from 2 and 3 yards out to hand the Granite a 33-6 lead. Tailback Will Felix increased the lead to 40-6 with a 12-yard TD run in the third. Max Vetiac, who earned the game ball, rounded out the scoring in the fourth by reeling off 80- and 20-yard touchdown runs on his only carries of the game.

As usual, the Dark Side, the Granite's renowned defensive unit, blacked out its opponent, limiting the Hurricanes to 42 total yards and only six first downs while also recovering a fumble.

Defensive back John Skabeikis, who led the EFL in interceptions last season with 11, picked off three balls. The defense applied pressure up front, with de-

Burke Club In 2-1 Win

Chris Boyd scattered four hits and a walk and struck out six as Burke Club defeated Keohanes, 2-1, in recent Junior League semi-final action.

Boyd knocked in Wendell Cosgrove with a single in the first inning. Keohanes, the regular season champs, tied the game in the top of the sixth. In the bottom half, Cosgrove led off with a single to center and scored the winning run on Danny Munkley's double to deep center.

Brian Mahoney, Nathan Mahoney, Kyle Roche and Matt Sheridan played strong defensive games. For Keohanes, Tom Conley and Joe Garland played well.

In earlier playoff action:

Youth Soccer Camp At Fore River Field Aug. 6-10

Quincy Youth Soccer and NOGA Soccer have teamed up to provide a week-long soccer camp this summer at Fore River Field.

The camp will be held Aug. 6-10 and is open to all Quincy Youth Soccer players regardless of ability. Players ages 4-11 are invited to the first session from 9 a.m. to noon and players 12 and over are invited to the second session from 4 to 7 p.m. All children will initially be grouped by age and then by ability.

As part of the camp program, the NOGA Soccer coaches will also run free clinics for parents and coaches on Tuesday, Aug. 7 and Thursday, Aug. 9 from 5 to 6:30 p.m.

NOGA is regarded as one of the premier soccer coaching organizations in the United States, with over 150 coaches who work with 50,000 of America's soccer youthevery summer. All staff members hold national coaching licenses from the U.S. and the United Kingdom and many are also qualified teachers.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Jimmy Fund Program Supports Recovering Cancer Patient Patrick White

Barbara and Paul White of Quincy will never forget Halloween 1999. That is when they learned a frightening word from doctors at the Jimmy Fund Clinic: rhabdomyosarcoma.

This rare form of soft tissue cancer, found in their son Patrick's pelvis and lungs, threatened his young life. Doctors immediately began chemotherapy and radiation treatment.

Patrick, now 10, is like any other kid in Quincy. He plays Nintendo and baseball, and rides his bicycle around the neighborhood. He dreams of playing for the Red Sox and beating the Yankees, and if his big league dreams change, he may become a pediatric oncologist.

Last year, he served as "spokes-patient" for the Jiffy Lube/Taco Bell Value Card Program, which supports the Jimmy Fund. As the program kicked off its fifth season, he was recently united with other Jimmy Fund Clinic patients who have participated in the program. Children from all five years are recovering on schedule, according to Jimmy Fund doctors.

PATRICK WHITE of Quincy (second from right) and other Jiffy Lube "spokes-patients" with the #4 Pennzoil Panther Indy Car at the recent kick-off for the Jimmy Fund's partnership with Jiffy Lube.

"Patrick loves being a spokes-patient. He sees himself as a role model, and he likes letting other children know that he is beating cancer," said Barbara White, Patrick's mother.

The program has raised more than $750,000 for the Jimmy Fund since 1997. This year, Jiffy Lube expects to raise an additional $200,000 and Taco Bell is on track to contribute $125,000.

Visitors to anyone of 25 participating Taco Bell Restaurants and the more than 100 Jiffy Lube Centers in New England can support Patrick and other children like him by contributing $2 to the Jimmy Fund, which raises money for cancer research at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. Jiffy Lube and Taco Bell are thanking contributors with a Value Card that entitles customers to a $5 discount on four future Signature Service Oil Changes and $1 off any future combo meal at Taco Bell valid until June 30, 2002. The Jiffy Lube/Taco Bell Value Card is worth more than $50 in discounts.

Study Discovers A Way To Keep Infants Safe From Secondhand Smoke

Using a form of counseling aimed at motivating rather than preaching, researchers at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute helped smokers reduce by nearly one-third the amount of dangerous secondhand smoke their young children were exposed to, according to a new study.

The results of the Project KISS study (Keeping Infants Safe from Smoke) are encouraging and show that even addicted smokers can change their behavior when they are part of an intervention that provides objective information about the risk that smoking poses for them and their families.

The study's lead author, Karen M. Emmons, Ph.D., of Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, says the report being published in the July 15 issue of journal Pediatrics is the first to yield objective evidence that an effort to reduce healthy children's secondhand smoke could lead to a significant reduction exposure in children.

"We think a 30-percent reduction in exposure is quite meaningful," says Emmons, adding that the scientists are now conducting analysis of the children's health data for the year following the trial to determine whether their health improved.

Overall, those involved in the study began smoking outside or using other strategies to lower nicotine levels in the rooms where the children spent most of their time. The improvement in the air quality lasted at least six months, the length of the follow-up period.

In a key part of the experiment, the researchers used monitors to detect nicotine in the air of the families' homes, giving the smokers an objective readout of the extent to which their indoor air was contaminated.

The intervention proved more effective than a set of "self-help" materials given to a comparison group of smoking parents. In those smokers' homes, nicotine levels actually rose during the study.

"There haven't been many previous studies on reducing secondhand smoke, and virtually none of them showed a reduction in healthy kids' exposure using objective measures of exposure," Emmons says.

Young children exposed to passive or secondhand smoke have a higher risk of ear infections, asthma, bronchitis and pneumonia than children of non-smokers. In the United States, surveys show that almost 40 percent of children under 5 live with a smoker. Yet there have been few studies of ways to protect children from the harmful effects of tobacco smoke, Emmons remarks.

Project KISS focused on low-income parents of young children because that socioeconomic group has the highest rate of smoking. The researchers recruited 291 parents or caregivers of children younger than 3 years through community health centers in Boston and Providence, R.I.

The parents in the study group received a 30- to 45-minute "motivational interviewing" session at their home with a health educator, and four follow-up counseling calls over the duration of the project.

A comparison group was mailed a smoking cessation manual and a passive smoke reduction tip sheet, but received no personal counseling.

"Motivational interviewing" is a style of counseling that emphasizes personal responsibility for decisions and changes, and helps people identify steps they might want to take. Rather than trying to persuade the smokers to change their behavior, the motivational interview "is a more respectful strategy that says, 'We can't make this choice for you, but here is some information that might be of use to you,'" Emmons says.

Health educators used the readouts of nicotine-sensing air samplers to give the participants an objective measurement of air quality in their home. The message is "We measured the nicotine level in your home and it's about the same as in the bar down the street," Emmons says. That might help the parent understand why her child has so many respiratory symptoms, she continues. "Then we would ask, 'What do you think you might do?'"

The same health educator made four follow-up counseling calls to check in on the participants' progress and to offer help in meeting the goals the parents had set.

Repeat air measurements at the end of six months found that nicotine had actually risen, though not by a statistically significant amount, in the homes of the comparison group.

Despite the improvement in air quality in the study group's homes, the researchers noted that the average nicotine level was still higher than in a typical smoke-free home, leaving the children with some residual risk for passive smoke-related disease.

The results suggest that a supportive counseling style, emphasizing a problem-solving approach, may be the best in this situation. Longer-term studies are needed to find out whether the parents can maintain their improved air quality.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

You probably have noticed some people at times have peculiar ideas about clergymen. No minister, priest or rabbi is supernatural. They are human beings. The inner voice which beckoned them to their calling usually provides them with patience, tolerance and benevolence. But they are still human and have the same traits of curiosity and anxiety as other people.

We imagine most men of the cloth wonder at times about their adequacy - or inadequacies. Hours of preparation and prayer precede a worship service. Even so, no clergyman can strike a responsive chord to or for every one on every occasion. This is just as impossible as it is for a ball player to hit a home run every time at bat.

But, when a responsive chord is struck, wouldn't it be a good idea - at least once in a while - to write a note and say so? Remember - they're human too...

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Don't assume that what you're being told is accurate. You need proof that things are working before you can move forward. A private situation also needs closer attention.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) That troubling incident in the workplace begins to sort itself out as more facts emerge. You might be eager to resolve the issue, but it's best to wait until the time is right to take action.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) There's some distance developing between you and that special person. But that can be for the best. Sometimes you need to step back to get a better perspective.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) When things don't work out as planned, don't beat yourself up about it. Take responsibility where it applies, and make the necessary apologies and adjustments. Then, move on.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Go ahead and let that triumphant roar just pour out. You made the right choice, and you're to be congratulated. You now have to reassess and redirect your former plans and goals.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Deal with that problem in the workplace rather than risk having it spill over into your personal life. The sooner you confront the issue, the sooner it can be resolved.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might still find it difficult to stay with your goals. But giving up would be a mistake. Your determination wins the admiration of a potentially important supporter.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your strong Scorpion instincts are put to good use as you sift through information that might be only partially reliable. You'll recognize the truth when you see it.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Some facts emerge that will help you deal with what you thought was an act of betrayal. Use what you've learned to get the full story from another source.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Opening up to new possibilities helps you come to terms with some unexpected changes. Remember: Others will look to you for guidance. Give them your best.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You are tireless in your support of good causes. But don't forget that you, too, are worthy of care and attention. Get out and enjoy some long-overdue fun.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) This is a good time to pick up on that artistic project you've been putting off. Apply yourself to it with new fervor, and you'll find some happy surprises coming through.

BORN THIS WEEK: Being the center of attention comes naturally to you. People look to you for leadership, and you don't let them down. You would make a fine politician.

They Can't Hang Up* Help For Elderly People Targeted By Fraud

Studies by the American Association of Retired Persons show that most elderly fraud victims don't make the connection between illegal telemarketing and criminal activity. They don't associate the voice on the phone with someone who could be trying to steal their money.

Most believe that the caller is a nice young man or woman simply trying to make a living, such as a student working his or her way through college, or an ambitious person trying to set a good sales record at the company. Victims think a fraudulent telemarketer's actions are not crimes, simply hard sells. They may realize that they haven't gotten their money's worth, but they are reluctant to admit that they have been cheated or robbed by illegal telemarketers.

The first step in helping older people who may be targets of fraud is to convince them the person on the other end of the line could be a crook. Once they understand that illegal telemarketing is a serious crime -- punishable by heavy fines and a long prison sentence -- they are more likely to hang up and report calls to the authorities. Older people may be surprised to know there are an estimated 14,000 illegal telemarketing operations billing thousands of victims every day. They rob with phones instead of guns. And they don't care about the pain they cause when they steal an elderly person's life savings. If they are caught, they can be put in jail -- where they belong.

Older people are frequent targets of fraudulent telemarketers. They need help because:

- It is hard to tell if a caller is legitimate. Good salespeople are convincing and so are crooks.

- It is hard to hang up. Many people feel that it's impolite to hang up on callers. And swindlers know how to take control of the conversation, either by pretending to be very friendly or by using bullying tactics.

- Senior citizens are targeted relentlessly. Some older people get more than 20 calls a day from scam artists -- the same ones trying to wear them down, or ones who know they have been victimized before and think they are vulnerable.

- Seniors tend to trust the caller. Targets of fraud often don't realize that the person on the phone could be a crook. They give people the benefit of the doubt.

- We all want to believe. Who doesn't want to win a valuable prize or strike it rich on an investment. People want to believe that it's their lucky day, and may react with anger or suspicion when friends or family question their optimism.

It's hard to hang up on people -- especially when the caller sounds so polite and friendly. But people wouldn't let strangers into their homes or accept rides from someone they didn't know. So, they should handle telephone calls from strangers the same way.

NEXT WEEK: What you need to know about fraud.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Don't assume that what you're being told is accurate. You need proof that things are working before you can move forward. A private situation also needs closer attention.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) That troubling incident in the workplace begins to sort itself out as more facts emerge. You might be eager to resolve the issue, but it's best to wait until the time is right to take action.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) There's some distance developing between you and that special person. But that can be for the best. Sometimes you need to step back to get a better perspective.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) When things don't work out as planned, don't beat yourself up about it. Take responsibility where it applies, and make the necessary apologies and adjustments. Then, move on.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Go ahead and let that triumphant roar just pour out. You made the right choice, and you're to be congratulated. You now have to reassess and redirect your former plans and goals.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Deal with that problem in the workplace rather than risk having it spill over into your personal life. The sooner you confront the issue, the sooner it can be resolved.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might still find it difficult to stay with your goals. But giving up would be a mistake. Your determination wins the admiration of a potentially important supporter.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your strong Scorpion instincts are put to good use as you sift through information that might be only partially reliable. You'll recognize the truth when you see it.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Some facts emerge that will help you deal with what you thought was an act of betrayal. Use what you've learned to get the full story from another source.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Opening up to new possibilities helps you come to terms with some unexpected changes. Remember: Others will look to you for guidance. Give them your best.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You are tireless in your support of good causes. But don't forget that you, too, are worthy of care and attention. Get out and enjoy some long-overdue fun.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) This is a good time to pick up on that artistic project you've been putting off. Apply yourself to it with new fervor, and you'll find some happy surprises coming through.

BORN THIS WEEK: Being the center of attention comes naturally to you. People look to you for leadership, and you don't let them down. You would make a fine politician.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

They Can't Hang Up* Help For Elderly People Targeted By Fraud

Studies by the American Association of Retired Persons show that most elderly fraud victims don't make the connection between illegal telemarketing and criminal activity. They don't associate the voice on the phone with someone who could be trying to steal their money.

Most believe that the caller is a nice young man or woman simply trying to make a living, such as a student working his or her way through college, or an ambitious person trying to set a good sales record at the company. Victims think a fraudulent telemarketer's actions are not crimes, simply hard sells. They may realize that they haven't gotten their money's worth, but they are reluctant to admit that they have been cheated or robbed by illegal telemarketers.

The first step in helping older people who may be targets of fraud is to convince them the person on the other end of the line could be a crook. Once they understand that illegal telemarketing is a serious crime -- punishable by heavy fines and a long prison sentence -- they are more likely to hang up and report calls to the authorities. Older people may be surprised to know there are an estimated 14,000 illegal telemarketing operations billing thousands of victims every day. They rob with phones instead of guns. And they don't care about the pain they cause when they steal an elderly person's life savings. If they are caught, they can be put in jail -- where they belong.

Older people are frequent targets of fraudulent telemarketers. They need help because:

- It is hard to tell if a caller is legitimate. Good salespeople are convincing and so are crooks.
- It is hard to hang up. Many people feel that it's impolite to hang up on callers. And swindlers know how to take control of the conversation, either by pretending to be very friendly or by using bullying tactics.
- Senior citizens are targeted relentlessly. Some older people get more than 20 calls a day from scam artists -- the same ones trying to wear them down, or ones who know they have been victimized before and think they are vulnerable.
- Seniors tend to trust the caller. Targets of fraud often don't realize that the person on the phone could be a crook. They give people the benefit of the doubt.
- We all want to believe. Who doesn't want to win a valuable prize or strike it rich on an investment. People want to believe that it's their lucky day, and may react with anger or suspicion when friends or family question their optimism.

It's hard to hang up on people -- especially when the caller sounds so polite and friendly. But people wouldn't let strangers into their homes or accept rides from someone they didn't know. So, they should handle telephone calls from strangers the same way.

NEXT WEEK: What you need to know about fraud.

Siciliano Takes Self Out Of Council At-Large Race

Anthony Siciliano, Deputy Director Quincy Emergency Management Agency, has decided not to run for city councillor at-large.

Siciliano, who had nomination papers in circulation, did not file them at Tuesday's deadline.

"I have decided not to run for councillor at-large,"

he said, "because it would hinder my ability as a volunteer to concentrate on what is most important in my life and my number one priority — helping people. This is who I am."

Siciliano noted he has given thousands of volunteer hours over many years assisting civic, public, non-profit agencies and the residents of Quincy.

He said he has also devoted thousands of volunteer hours training middle, high school and special needs students and adults in community service.

"As a result," he said, "the Community Emergency Response Team is well known in many areas of the country."

4 Preliminary Election Contests Sept. 11

school committee just last Friday. She is a former school committeewoman who has topped that field in the past and also served as a Norfolk County commissioner.

Only one seat is going unchallenged. That's the one in Ward 2 long held by veteran Daniel Raymond.

Two council seats are being vacated, guaranteeing at least two new faces in next year's council.

Paul Harold is giving up his at-large seat and Patrick McDermott is leaving the Ward 3 seat. Harold is now Register of Deeds and McDermott his assistant.

The Sept. 11 preliminary election candidates and contests:

Councillor at-large: Incumbents Timothy Cahill and Francis McCauley; Julie Berberan, the only woman in the race; Robert Boussy, Joseph Finn, former executive director Father Bill's Place;

Ward 4: Incumbent Michael D'Amico and challenger Bryan Connolly, Boston College Law School student and Notre Dame graduate.

School Committee: Incumbents Jo-Ann Bragg, Ronald Mariano and Michael McFarland; Dennis Dockham, Ronald Iacobucci, associate director South Coastal Work Force Investment Board.

Swanson Not Running For School Committee

Rev. John Swanson, pastor of Union Congregational Church and candidate for the School Committee in 1999, announces he will not seek office this year due to pressing professional and personal obligations.

Swanson made a strong showing in his first bid for School Committee. He said he remains committed to the city and especially the public school system and indicated he will be active in this year's election and that he will seek elective office in the very near future.

City Donates $25,000 To After School Program

Quincy After-School Child Care, Inc. received a $25,000 donation from the city Tuesday as it continues to expand its after-school, vacation, and summertime programs for Quincy students.

"It's a great program and we've tried to expand upon it every year," said Mayor James Sheets, who presented the donation to Douglas Veeder, executive director of Quincy After-School Child Care, and School Committee Vice Chairwoman Jo-Ann Bragg, who also serves as treasurer, business manager, and a member of the board of directors for the non-profit corporation.

Most of the $25,000 donation, Veeder said, would go toward scholarships for needy families who want to make use of the organization's programs, with a smaller portion of the funds going to offset agency costs.

Between 300 and 325 students per week make use of Quincy After-School Child Care programs during the school year, Veeder said, with roughly 80 students per week in its summer programs.

The non-profit, Bragg explained, is not part of the Quincy Public Schools but operates in different schools across the city. One advantage to the child care program, she added, was safety since students can go right from classes to an after-school program without leaving the building.

Begun in 1988 by then Mayor Frank McCauley in cooperation with the Mayor's Commission on the Family, Quincy After-School Child Care initially had only one site but is now in 9 school locations across the city.

The City Council approved the $25,000 appropriation, which was sent down by Sheets at the end of Fiscal Year 2001.

For more information on Quincy After-School Child Care, call their main number at (617) 773-3299.

National Night Out Aug. 7

Mayor James Sheets, the Quincy Police Department and the Quincy Citizen Police Academy Alumni Association will host the third annual National Night Out Tuesday, Aug. 7 from 5 to 8 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium, Hancock Street.

National Night Out is designed to heighten Crime

Awareness and Drug Prevention. It generates support for, and participation in, local anti-crime programs, strengthens neighborhood spirit through police-community relations.

"We will be sending a message to criminals that Quincy neighborhoods are organized and are fighting back and building safe neighborhoods for citizens of all ages. This event is a family and a community affair," Sheets said.

This year's event will include a display of emergency vehicles, police horses, and other emergency equipment. The Massachusetts Masonic

Senior Residents Get Breather

Rent Increases Postponed At Naval Terrace

By CRAIG SAUTERS

Rental increases of $75 scheduled to begin Aug. 1 for 48 senior housing units have been postponed indefinitely, as the board of the Elder Housing Corporation (EHC) considers postponing increases until January, 2002.

"At the request of the mayor, the board of directors has been asked to consider deferring the rental increases until the first of the year and we will be voting on it within the week," said Helen Murphy, executive director of EHC, the private, non-profit corporation created by the city to take control of the Squantum Gardens/Naval Terrace property in January after it was conveyed for $1 by the United States Navy.

Murphy said she could not speak for the board but did say board members had "tremendous respect" for Mayor James Sheets, who was instrumental in negotiating the unique $1 conveyance.

Murphy said residents of the 48-unit Naval Terrace were notified as early as last week that rental increases would not become effective Aug. 1 as the board considered the mayor's request.

EHC originally notified residents in a letter dated May 31 that their $750 leases were being terminated and replaced with leases for $825 effective July 1, a date later pushed back to Aug. 1 at the request of the Oversight Committee of the City Council.

The Oversight Committee then held a hearing on the issue July 1. Residents' councilors expressed concern that the impact of the increase on EHC's budget or business plan was not available.

In a subsequent letter dated July 24 and sent to Murphy, Ward 6 Councilor Joseph Newton, chairman of the Oversight Committee and whose ward the Naval Terrace units are located, requested that EHC "continue the moratorium indefinitely until EHC has a formal budget in place and proper leases are drafted."

"People just want the increases justified," said Newton.

Reunited With Local Friends Card Helps Raise $35,000 For Historical Society

By CRAIG SALTERS

Andrew Card, Jr., White House Chief of Staff for President George W. Bush, paid a visit to Quincy Friday as the special guest of the Quincy Historical Society at its kickoff fundraiser at State Street South.

Card, who made the appearance at the request of fellow Republican and longtime friend Joyce Baker, president of the Quincy Historical Society, who unfortunately could not attend the event due to illness, used the opportunity to reminisce with old friends and give those in attendance a taste of what it's like to be the right hand man of the most powerful man on Earth.

Card spent much of the afternoon informally recalling political memories here in the Bay State -- such as driving future First Lady Barbara Bush from Quincy to Dover in his red Chevy Chevette strewn with fast food wrappers -- and chatting with state Senator Michael Morrissey, Mayor James Sheets, Council President Paul Harold, Democratic Committee Chairman Philip Johnston, and former state Inspector General Robert Cerasoli, all friends of Card's from his days as a member of the State Legislature.

But Card became serious when discussing his role as Chief of Staff.

"I am working for a man who understands what it means to be President of the United States," said Card, who also served in the administrations of the elder George Bush and Ronald ANDREW CARD, JR. (right), White House Chief of Staff, listens as Dr. Edward Fitzgerald, executive director of The Quincy Historical Society, reads the inscription inside the biography of John Adams autographed by author/historian David McCullough. Card received the book as thanks for his appearance Friday at the society's kickoff fundraiser at State Street South. Card, a native of Holbrook, said that President George W. Bush was becoming "a real student" of the Adams family and had been reading McCullough's biography during his recent trip to Europe.

Reagan.

A priority of his job, Card told the more than 100 guests, was working hard to define his role as the staffer responsible for the rest of the staff serving the President of the United States, rather than George W. Bush's friend.

Although he admitted he did consider himself a friend to the president, Card said he'd seen too many presidents feel uncomfortable changing a chief of staff because of friendship, negatively affecting the operation of the office.

"The president deserves the best every single day, every single hour," said Card, "and if I'm not doing the job, then someone else should."

Commenting upon the new administration's trademark of punctuality, Card said he had "tremendous respect" for the president's tight schedule just as George W. Bush had respect for the schedules of others, setting the tone in the Oval Office.

"It's my job to say, 'If you need to see the president, you will but if you want to see the president, you won't,'" Card explained.

Overall, the kickoff event at State Street South raised roughly $35,000 to begin his time and State Street the Quincy Historical Society's Capital Fund Drive, which has set a goal of $250,000 to preserve and enhance the Adams Academy Building, the society's home.

"This was a tremendous success," said Fitzgerald, who thanked both Card for his time and State Street South for generously underwriting the event.

Renderings of the historical society's proposed renovations were on display during the event, as was the Colonel John Quincy Tankard, recently purchased at auction by Quincy's George Burke.

Congressman William Delahunt, honorary chairman of the Capital Fund Drive, was on the floor of Congress and was unable to attend.

To Expand Radiology Center Fireman Pledges $1 Million To QMC

Quincy native and resident Simon C. Fireman has pledged $1 million to Quincy Medical Center to enhance and expand its radiology center.

Announcement was made at a private reception at the Boston Marriott Quincy Hotel last Thursday to honor Fireman whose pledge is the single largest gift received by the hospital.

It kicked off the hospital's five-year Capital Campaign.

More than 100 leaders from business, government and health care joined Quincy Medical officials and staff members at the reception.

The $1 million pledge is structured as a challenge grant from the Simon C. Fireman Charitable Foundation.

The funds will help create the Simon C. Fireman Diagnostic Imaging Center at Quincy Medical Center.

It will benefit patients and their families, increasing access to the latest imaging technology by expanding the center's radiology capabilities.

At the reception, Fireman had words of high praise for QMC.

"Today, Quincy Medical Center proudly stands shoulder-to-shoulder with Boston's renowned institutions of healing. It has superb doctors who blend clinical expertise with humanity and compassion, the finest state-of-the-art technology and a commitment from every member of its staff to deliver first-rate care," Fireman said.

Quincy Medical Center President and CEO Christine Schuster applauded Fireman's dedication to the medical center's mission and the community.

"He is one of many leaders here who truly believes that health care focused on clinical excellence, service and technology has the power to change lives," she said.

Other speakers were Robert Curry, Chairman of the QMC Board of Trustees and a local businessman; Harriet Messcher, Vice President of Development, for Quincy Medical Center, and City Council President Paul Harold who spoke on behalf of Mayor James Sheets.

Founder and chairman of the Avon-based Aqua-Leisure Industries, Fireman donated $500,000 to Quincy Hospital six years ago, funding a mammography suite, two ultrasound units, and an education area.

The Simon C. Fireman Diagnostic Imaging Center will feature, among other high-tech equipment, a new, advanced MRI unit, providing clear, vivid images of the body's soft tissues, and offers several benefits.

Unlike more traditional scanners, the new MRI features a shortened, wider bore, minimizing patient anxiety and movement, leading to improved diagnosis and increased patient comfort. The unit's new software and technology reduces the amount of time a patient spends in the scanner. Quincy Medical Center provides female patients with advanced imaging as well as patient-centered care through the Simon C. Fireman Imaging Center For Women.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

THE RISK OF ORAL CANCER

Last year, 30,000 new cases of oral cancer, the sixth most common malignancy in the world, were diagnosed, and 8,000 people died of the disease. All of these cases could have been prevented with certain lifestyle measures. By shunning tobacco use, cutting back on excessive alcohol consumption, and avoiding overexposure to sunlight, we can reduce our risk of oral cancer. In addition, regular visits to the dentist increase the likelihood of early detection, so that treatment can begin at an early, potentially curable stage. In a recent survey of adults aged forty years and older, only 14% of those polled indicated that they had ever been examined for oral cancer. Early detection and treatment of oral cancer significantly improves prognosis. Have you been examined for oral cancer? Your optimum health is always our main concern. We stress preventive health care for the whole family. We want you and all the members of your family to know that our primary responsibility to you is the condition and health of your teeth and mouth. Teeth are meant to last a lifetime and we would like to help you accomplish this goal. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we are currently accepting new patients. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

P.S. Oral cancers can develop anywhere within the oral cavity, including on the lips, the lining of the cheeks, the gums, the tongue, and the palate.

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On July 31, 1556, Ignatius of Loyola, founder of the Jesuit order of Roman Catholic missionaries and educators, dies in Rome. The Society of Jesus, as the Jesuit order is formally known, played an important role in the Counter-Reformation and eventually succeeded in converting millions around the world to Catholicism.
- On Aug. 2, 1824, that cradle of upper-crust commerce, New York City's Fifth Avenue, is founded. America's most fashionable street started as a residential area, albeit a fairly posh one, replete with residents who didn't take too kindly to the idea of having commercial neighbors.
- On Aug. 3, 1861, the last entry of "Great Expectations" is published. The book had been serialized in Charles Dickens' literary circular, "All the Year Round."
- On Aug. 4, 1892, Andrew and Abby Borden, elderly residents of Fall River, Mass., are found bludgeoned to death in their home. The prosecution tried to prove that their daughter Lizzie had committed the murders, but the jury took only 90 minutes to decide that she could never commit such a heinous crime.
- On July 30, 1898, English sculptor Henry Moore is born in Castleford, Yorkshire. The son of a coal miner, he overcame early criticism of his work to become one of the most acclaimed sculptors of the 20th century.
- On Aug. 5, 1962, actress Marilyn Monroe was found dead in her home. Beside her bed was an empty bottle that had contained 50 sleeping pills, leading police to determine her death was a suicide.
- On Aug. 1, 1994, newspapers report that publishing house Alfred A. Knopf will pay Pope John Paul II a record-breaking $8.75 million advance for his new book, "Crossing the Threshold of Hope." The book, a collection of essays addressing moral and theological questions, became a best seller.

A Rose Is A Rose . . . Part II

Funny how a little off-beat column item is remembered long after a bold headlined story on Page One is forgotten.

Like the one about Charlie Sweeney and his special roses.

That one entitled "A Rose Is A Rose" appeared here a good five years ago and people still ask him, "Charlie, how are your roses?"

Now, Charlie is a Purple Heart combat World War II veteran, retired chief services contact officer at the VA Boston Regional Office, former school committeeman, long active in the community, and now a member of the Board of Voter Registrars.

But it's those darn roses people seem to remember when they bump into him.

It all started when Charlie sent away to one of those flower-of-the-month clubs for three special rose bushes.

He planted them, fertilized them, faithfully watered them and proudly watched them grow. They kept growing. But, no roses.

Undaunted, Charlie kept weeding, watering, watching and waiting. Still no roses.

Then suddenly, one day -- like a miracle -- three beauties appeared -- one on each of the three bushes. Charlie was delighted. He even took photos of them to show his friends.

With new zeal, he continued watering, waiting and watching for signs of more buds.

One day, a friend stopped by and Charlie proudly ushered him to the rose bushes to see his three prized beauties.

But Charlie said he was a little puzzled. "You know," he told the friend, "there's something funny about these roses. They feel like artificial ones."

The friend moved closed to inspect them and let out a laugh. "Charlie, they ARE artificial!"

Charlie wasn't buying that. "You can't grow artificial roses," he retorted.

"I know you can't," the friend agreed. "But these are artificial roses. Believe me!"

Artificial roses on live rose bushes!

No!

Yes!

And here's how:

Charlie's wife, Betty, knew how badly he wanted to see some roses on those special bushes. And also was getting a little tired of him stomping into the house after watering them daily and reporting: "No roses!"

So, she took over while Mother Nature continued to drag her heels.

One day when Charlie was off playing golf, she bought three natural looking artificial roses and carefully wired one to each of the three bushes, deftly camouflaging the wire so no one could detect it.

When his Ames St. neighbors heard about it, they started to kid him. Whenever he stepped out into the yard, they would yell over: "Don't forget to water the roses, Charlie."

But he took it all in stride.

And, today there are roses on the bushes in his yard.

"And they're the real McCoy," he says proudly.

He gave us a photo he took of them as evidence.

SWEENEY

And if you happen to be in the neighborhood he invites you to stop by and see for yourself.

But, the kidding still goes on.

One of his early morning walking buddies at the Plaza looked at the photo and asked:

"Charlie, are you sure this time those real roses aren't on artificial bushes?"

This rose story apparently has no ending.

ONLY 50 VALID signatures were required to get on this year's election ballot but at least three candidates far surpassed that number in an apparent early display of strength.

Councillor at-large candidate Joe Finn led the parade with a reported 2,000 signatures; mayoral challenger Bill Phelan was next with some 1,700 and Bryan Connolly, candidate for the Ward 4 council seat, turned in nearly 1,000. Mayor James Sheets was satisfied with something like 850.

Connolly, incidentally, says he collected every one of his signatures himself going door-to-door in South and West Quincy. And, by hoofing it himself, he says, it gave him the opportunity to talk about issues and concerns with those who signed.

FORMER CITY COUNCILLOR Mike Cheney has retired from the MBTA after 23 years of service where he was foreman in charge of diesel mechanics.

And may be thinking of returning to the political arena.

He is now director of the Transition To Trades School, a free pre-apprentice program for those over 18 years of age, sponsored by the Quincy & South Shore Building and Construction Trades Council AFL-CIO. Classes start in September in downtown Quincy.

Any political thoughts?

"Well, I had 13 years in the City Council" Cheney says. "And I was the council president and got some pretty good time in as acting mayor when Jim Sheets was out of town."

"With all the experience I had doing that I think I'd be a great mayoral candidate."

Mike was smiling when he said it. But you got the feeling he was somewhat serious.

FUND-RAISING IS stepping up along the political front, especially among candidates facing preliminary election contests Sept. 11.

Rodophele, Dockham Bow Out As Candidates

Two names were listed in last week's Quincy Sun as having filed nomination papers for this year's city election but did not.

John Rodophele, Jr. of Newport Ave. and Dennis Dockham of Elm Ave. had nomination papers out for Ward 3 councillor and school committee respectively, but did not file them by the July 23 deadline.

Thirty one candidates did file their nomination papers.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1942 postcard showing the floats of the Wollaston Yacht Club. All the boats at that time were made of wood and many were homemade, especially the skiffs and small rowboats. There is one powerboat shown on the left but there were not a lot of outboard motor boats. Gas rationing during the war pretty much curtailed its use for pleasure anyway. In the days before private marinas there were hundreds of small boats in Quincy Bay. Every night in the summer sailboat races were held by the yacht clubs. Popular classes of boats were the Hustlers, Indians, 110's, Thistles and Turnabouts, among others.

Grateful For Support During Tragic Loss

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On Saturday, June 9, my husband William "Bill" Kennedy was tragically killed in a motorcycle accident on Hobart St. in Braintree.

I would like to thank the Braintree Police Department, the Braintree Fire Department, and the EMT's for all of their efforts.

There was a nurse that lived across the street from the accident who gave him CPR. Although he died on impact, her efforts are greatly appreciated.

This woman made sure my husband got instant care and was with him until the Police and Fire Departments arrived. I will be eternally grateful to her for that.

I would also like to thank all our wonderful family and friends for all of their support and prayers at this difficult time in mine and my children's lives.

The support from everyone has been overwhelming.

Even strangers have sent cards, called, sent over food, and expressed their sympathy in ways I will never forget.

My children's friends are just the most awesome kids I have ever met. The support that they have given is unreal.

There were so many kids, ranging from ages 13 to 20, who came over, pitched in, cleaned, went and did errands for me, bought and cooked food, and were so helpful to all of our family that words just aren't enough to express our appreciation. If anyone has anything negative to say about Braintree kids, come and see me. I know first-hand what wonderful, loving, and caring people they are.

I tried to thank everyone personally but I don't have all of the addresses. I want everyone to know how much that you have touched our lives and that all your good thoughts, prayers, and support do comfort us.

With Sincerest Gratitude,
Nancy, Billy Jr., Daniel, and Colleen Kennedy

Navajo Code Talkers Deserve Military Honors

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

A newspaper in the Boston area showed a Navajo Code Talker receiving a Congressional Gold Medal from President Bush. This medal is the highest civilian honor the nation can bestow since these Marines, all 29 of them living on reservations, joined the corps and with their native tongue confused the Japanese and saved thousands of lives in the Pacific.

Since the Code Talkers were Marines, why weren't they awarded the Distinguished Service Medals retroactive to their date of discharge? Why wait for 50 years to award them a civilian award? That does not make any sense. Veterans, today, are still receiving past due military medals. Are the Navajo any different?

I believe Senator Jeff Bingaman (D-New Mexico) was entirely out of order. Is discrimination still showing?

USS Quincy Reunion Here Aug. 23-26

All hands who served aboard the heavy cruiser USS Quincy during World War II will hold a reunion on the weekend of Aug. 23-26 at the Sheraton Braintree Hotel.

Mayor Jim Sheets of Quincy will present a plaque honoring Admiral Elliot M. Senn, the captain of the Quincy, during ceremonies at the museum aboard the USS Salem in the Fore River Shipyard where the Quincy was built.

The Quincy was in on the invasions of southern France and Normandy and conveyed President Roosevelt to and from the Yalta Conference before ending the war in Tokyo Bay.

After being mothballed few years, the ship was recommissioned and served in the Korean War. She was then retired a second time and finally scrapped.

For further details on the reunion, write Al Levesque, 46 Foster St., Pawtucket, RI 02861-0110 or call him at 401-728-3063.

Ho Jo's Honors 191 Employees

By PAUL HAROLD

Some 191 employees of the Howard Johnson Company were honored at a retirement dinner at the Neighborhood Club, hosted by company president Howard B. Johnson. The combined number of years of the retirees added up to 1,800. They were from the Old Colony (Wollaston) candy factory, the Quincy meat plant and the Brockton commissary.

The Howard Johnson Company started on Beale St. in Wollaston in 1925 by the current president's father and had grown to 630 restaurants and 125 motor lodges nationwide.

RECORDS SHATTERED AT TRACK MEET

Records were shattered at Veterans' Memorial Stadium at the fifth annual Quincy Junior Olympic Track Meet sponsored by the recreation department.

Peter Zoia of Montclair Playground, a member of the prominent NQHS sports family, established a new record in the 50-yard dash.

Nancy DeVincentis of the Kneeland Playground set a new softball throwing record of 182 feet.

The Cranch Playground junior relay team, consisting of William Calabro, William Van Riper, Thomas O'Connell, and Thomas Conway, set a new record in the 200-yard relay.

CARDS FROM KENNEDY CAMPAIGN CREATE CONFUSION

City Clerk John Gillis fielded hundreds of calls from angry voters asking why they were dropped from the voting list.

In fact, the voters' names were not dropped, but postcards sent out by the Edward Kennedy campaign for U.S. Senate, urging them to register to vote, created confusion among voters across the city. The Kennedy campaign apologized for the mistake that apparently occurred when out-dated lists were used for the registration effort.

QUINCY-ISMS

Superintendent Mrs. Frank Harris announced that the Interior Department asked Congress to enlarge the Adams National Historic site by adding the adjacent Beale estate to the Adams property. Built in 1792, the house was owned by Dr. Esther Bartlett. Among its prior occupants was George Beale who designed the seal for the town of Quincy when it separated from Braintree. . . A three bedroom house was advertised for sale at $13,900, requiring $400 down. Taxes were $19 a month. . . Paul Mayo of Angelo's Barber Shop in Quincy Square figured that over 45 years he had given 230,000 haircuts, amounting to 28,000 pounds of hair. . . Leo Antonelli was commander of the Cavanagh DAV Chapter with Henry McCaul as vice commander. . . Adam Trubiano was ticket chairman for the Democratic City Committee's dance at the Quincy Yacht Club. . . Ernest Montilio hosted visiting Rotarians from Nancy, France. . . At a special meeting the city council considered the sale of 47 acres of city owned land on Quarry St. to Herbert Duane who wanted to develop it for single family homes. . . Arthur McGilvray announced the closing of the Granite St. drug store because of lack of parking. He said all prescriptions would be handled by the store at Hancock and Depot Sts. The Granite St. store had been there for 40 years, while the store adjacent to city hall had been there 45 years. Arthur McGilvray, Sr. established the first store in Quincy Point. Grace Guinchiglia, the mayor's secretary, was the speaker at the Kiwanis Club meeting at the YMCA. Her talked was entitled, "The Boss-Secretary Team." Planning Director James Lee was the speaker at the Rotary Club. . . Abraham Tolpin, West Quincy auto parts dealer, died this week, never having recovered from a gunshot wound he received when thieves tried to rob his auto parts yard. . . A surprise 40th anniversary party was held at the Winter St. home of Mr. and Mrs. Habab Elias. . . Forrest Neal, president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, was on hand for the ribbon cutting of the Presidential Nursing Home on Old Colony Ave. . . At Quincy City Hospital, a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Donahue of California Ave. . . Alfred Kaufman of Dale Ave. was elected a director of Congregation Adas Shalom. . . The license board granted a pin ball license to Greer's Grill on Washington St. . . An estimated 350 attended the Taleb Grotto's eighth annual outing at Nelson's Grove in Kingston. Carl Flipp and Phil LaBrecque of Leighton's Catering of Quincy were the bakersmasters.

Summer Storytellers Continues Aug. 7 With George Capaccio

The 15th annual Summer Storytellers Series continues with storyteller George Capaccio Tuesday, Aug. 7 at 7 p.m. in the large meeting room of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Square.

The series is for families with children ages five and older and is sponsored by the Quincy Arts Lottery with a grant from the Massachusetts Cultural Council.

Capaccio tells tales from Italy, the world, and his imagination.

The Summer Storytellers Series concludes Tuesday, Aug. 14 with Karen Glickman and Tony Toledo.

GEORGE CAPACCIO

A JAPANESE DRUMMING concert will be presented on the Thomas Crane Public Library lawn in Quincy Center Thursday, Aug. 9.

Elizabeth Bondaryk In MDC All-Star Band

The Metropolitan District Commission has selected Elizabeth Bondaryk of Quincy to participate in the MDC All-Star Band for the 2001 summer season.

The All-Star Band is comprised of 34 of the top high school musicians from the Greater Boston area.

Bondaryk attends Milton Academy, where she is a member of the track and field and swimming teams. This will be her second season playing the piccolo for the band. She also plays the flute and piano.

Joseph M. Brogan will

again be the band director. Brogan, music director for the Dedham public schools, will be returning for his seventh year. Brogan has selected many popular songs and medley's for the 2001 concert series, including "The Right Stuff," "Paul Simon Medley," and "West Side Story Medley."

The MDC All-Star Band will be performing at various MDC facilities, as well as special events throughout the summer. It will be in concert tonight (Thursday) at 6 p.m. at Weymouth Town Hall.

For more information call 617-727-9547, ext. 532.

Taiko Group Concert On Library Lawn Aug. 9

Odaiko New England (ONE) will present a concert of Japanese drumming on the lawn of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center, Thursday, Aug. 9, from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m.

Odaiko New England respects taiko traditions, but creates a unique, contemporary and distinct regional style. Concertgoers are welcome to bring lawn chairs, beach blankets, picnics. In case of inclement weather the concert will be held in the library atrium. The concert, funded in part by the Quincy Arts Council, is free.

Taiko, the Japanese word for drum and a growing art form in the United States, has a history that spans centuries. Ensemble drumming, however, is a very recent Asian-American occurrence. It is a powerful art form that is exciting to watch as drummers in their flowing happi coats, swirl and move in unison, drumming as one voice.

Odaiko New England,

Elaine Fong artistic director, has a busy performance schedule. The group has appeared at events throughout New England and the East Coast, including First Night, King Richard's Faire, Washington, D.C., the Black Ships Taiko Festival in Rhode Island, and the Chinatown Festival.

Odaiko New England concludes the library's summer concert series. Series concerts from November to April will be held in the library's Atrium.

Museum Of Science Presents 'Reptiles' Aug. 6 At Crane Library

The Museum of Science

Save Gas and Money returns to the main library of the Thomas Crane Public Library Monday, Aug. 6 at 10:30 a.m. with the science show Reptiles.

A presenter from the museum will bring two or three live mystery animals to the library and tell audience members about them.

Sorry, but no touching of the animals will be allowed.

Beechwood Seeks Books For 'Read Together' Project

Pre-schoolers and seniors who actively participate at Beechwood on the Bay are seeking donations of books for resale in a special summertime project entitled "Read Together."

Proceeds of the project will benefit "at risk" seniors who need Beechwood's special services such as the Elder Home Repair Program, Alzheimer's Association, Stroke and MS Support groups.

"We are inviting everyone to donate books, hard cover and paper back," said Frances Smith and Mary Hennessey, senior volunteers at the center.

"We're receiving and selling great books, mostly adults books: novels, histories, autobiographies, mysteries, self-improvement, nature, recipe books and more."

The seniors and kids have finished their early summer gardening, scrubbed out wheelbarrows and have stationed them at the center's entrance, full of books for resale.

Twenty-five cents buys a paperback best seller; one dollar buys a "gently read" hard cover book.

For more information call 617-471-5712.

Kids Safety Safari At Wal-Mart Aug. 9

The third annual Ernie's Safety Safari, a national photo ID and fingerprinting event to promote child safety, will be held Thursday, Aug. 9 from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the Wal-Mart Center, 301 Falls Blvd.

Parents of children attending the safari will be provided with photo IDs and fingerprints of their youngsters in the event that the kids are ever lost or missing.

"The single most valuable tool in helping to find a missing child is a good current head and shoulders photograph, but most parents don't have a suitable photograph," said Ernest Allen, president of the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children.

Ernie's Safety Safari is sponsored by the Keebler Company.

Rex Trailer Performs At Arts In The Park

By JOHN NOONAN

The locale was ideal for another evening of summer entertainment sponsored by the city of Quincy Arts in the Park special events program.

The stage was set on which Rex Trailer and his two sidemen were to perform at O'Rourke Field.

Clusters of neighborhood friends, families, and children sat in a semi-circle on beach chairs or on the newly mowed green grass. Off in the western horizon the lazy, hazy summer sun was slowly setting.

To add to the festive occasion, Quincy Park and Recreation personnel were busily engaged inflating and distributing colorful balloons free of charge to tiny tots.

On stage Trailer performed song and patter, dressed in his familiar western attire, strumming an electronic guitar with backup sound effects from his sidemen. His repertoire included many familiar songs such as "Home on the Range," "Mule Train," and "Deep in the Heart of Texas."

Trailer invited several youngsters to come on stage to assist him in a rendition of "Old MacDonald Had a Farm." The audience appreciated the various animal sounds emitted by the young boys and girls.

During his longtime career, Trailer has come across aspiring singers with special talents who later became successful in the entertainment field. He called upon two Quincy teenagers to take center stage and perform.

ane Purdy Workshop Theater sang a lilting rendition of "You Are My Sunshine."

Crystal Foster, backed up by her own CD, with a strong distinctive voice sang a contemporary rock song.

Trailer predicted these would be stars who will be heard from in the not too distant future.

Another evening highlight was a citation -- signed by Sheets, COA Director Thomas Clasby, Jr., and COA Chairman John Noonan -- presented to Trailer during the program. The citation reads:

"Certificate of Appreciation presented to Rex 'Boombtown' Trailer by the City of Quincy and the Quincy Council on Aging in recognition of bringing decades of entertainment to the Quincy people of all ages through your popular WBZ-TV Boombtown program and frequent visits at First Night, Arts in the Park, and Sidewalk Sales days.

"Quincy is not only a historical city but a city of great diversity and many cultures. You have added much to our understanding and appreciation of Western American culture, music, and folklore."

Trailer will appear at other Arts in the Parks programs as follows: today (Thursday) at LaBrecque Field, Houghs Neck; and a cancelled Bradford St. program which will rescheduled for a later date.

The purpose of Arts in the Parks is to bring cultural activity to Quincy neighborhood parks throughout the city. The shows allow families an enjoyable evening of entertainment in the city's beautiful park system, said Mayor Sheets.

The Quincy Parks and Recreation Department sponsors the show and there is no charge for admission.

Mayor Backs Bill To Lower Reduce Speed Limits In Neighborhoods

Mayor James Sheets has extended his full support for a bill currently appearing on the House calendar that would allow cities like Quincy to reduce the speed limit in residential areas below the current state requirement of 30 miles per hour.

"You really need to be able to reduce the speed limit below 30 miles per hour," said Sheets, who added his 16 years as a ward councillor had convinced him of the importance of the issue.

Sheets said the power to regulate speed limits should be subject to local authority, since it is impossible for a state regulator to have the greatest sense of community awareness.

"Asking the state to accurately and adequately have knowledge about neighborhood traffic is like the impossible dream," Sheets said. "Each community is different and Quincy should be allowed to address its concerns about speeding locally with the input of residents."

The mayor indicated that, if enacted by the state, the bill would be the first step toward remedying a major problem the city faces, that being vehicles cutting down side streets to avoid traffic signals on the main arterial roadways. Passage of the legislation would enhance police enforcement capabilities and would allow for a more potent response to counteract the problem.

The mayor cited White, Cliff, and Connell Sts. in West Quincy and Franklin St. in South Quincy as areas which could possibly benefit from reduced speed limits.

In addition, he said, the action would upgrade the level of safety in every neighborhood for each resident, especially the city's most valuable asset, children, playing near home. Pedestrians and motorists alike, Sheets added, are affected by traffic issues every day and many of these concerns can be traced back to speeding vehicles.

The legislation has received approval from the Legislature's Joint Committee on Public Safety and currently awaits House approval. Once endorsed, it must receive Senate approval and the signature of Governor Jane Swift to become a law.

Sheets said he has contacted the legislative leadership, including House Speaker Thomas Finneran and Senate President Thomas Birmingham, and has expressed his support and concern. He has requested that both leaders and the members of Quincy's delegation use their position to help guarantee quick and favorable consideration of the proposal.

Julie Berberan Candidate For Councillor At-Large

Julie Berberan, 14 Riverview St., Houghs Neck, announces her candidacy for councillor at-large.

Berberan said her goals are "to protect the schools, environment and taxpayers."

Committed to environmental matters, she was among the citizens who successfully stopped the construction of a new Quincy High School on the former Bethlehem Steel industrial dump on Quincy Ave. When strong community opposition defeated that plan, she campaigned to prevent the new high school from being built on what she called the "contaminated and dangerously situated DPW site."

A proponent of maintaining the historical and architectural gems in Quincy, Berberan said she favors using Department of Education reimbursement funds to restore and maintain the present large, historic Quincy High School and Central Middle School and devoting park department funds to repair and preserve the Quincy Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Berberan, who describes herself as a "constant advocate for the environment," said she "decries the recent destruction of over 1,000 trees in Merrymount Park and the overzealous and incorrect trimming that has destroyed numerous trees throughout the city." She is calling for better forestry practice, environmental concern and maintenance from the Parks Department.

She said the Massachusetts Department of Marine Fisheries suggests that stop logs should not be installed in any estuary for recreational purposes. Berberan said the practice of installing stop logs under the Greenberg Bridge every summer must be discontinued, "to protect the fish and delicate forms of life, which spawn and live within the constant ebb and flow of the brackish water."

Berberan criticized the Department of Public Works, claiming "the tattered awnings, broken and blackened windows and large, pungent piles of refuse at the Department of Public Buildings are a reflection of the poor quality of care the DPW gives to the entire city." She said the Veterans Memorial Stadium has been in need of masonry work for over 10 years. She also said the lack of DPW oversight and communication, the use of defective steel and inaccurate utility maps have created problems with the cross-town connector road project.

Berberan also took issue with the city's decision to sell the former JFK Health Center to a developer for a low price. "Now the Department of Inspectional Services rent expensive space below the movie theater (at Quincy Fair.) Many streets are patchworks of poorly repaired potholes. Taxpayers deserve better quality maintenance of city properties and streets and careful oversight of building projects," she said.

Berberan said she believes ward councillors should not be responsible for coordinating the DPW's road paving. "As in well-maintained towns, the DPW should have an orderly schedule to repave each street once every ten years. At the same time," she continued, "gas, sewer, and water pipes should all be examined and scheduled for repair before a street is opened. To beautify this historic City of Presidents, the possibility of lowering cable, telephone and electrical lines underground should be investigated and carefully considered in every neighborhood."

Berberan said "it is time to stop the senseless waste of taxpayers dollars that Quincy's Department of Public Works has devoted towards building a smaller high school on contaminated and wetland sites." She maintains "the $70 million high school will be too small before the first shovel hits the ground."

If elected a councillor at-large, Berberan said she would hope to achieve restoration of the present spacious and well-built high school and to beautify the present large campus with shade trees, soccer and lacrosse fields and a community garden.

Raised in Quincy, Berberan is one of 10 children of John and Jane Deery of 25 Edgemere Rd. Her mother Jane is the elder of the 10 O'Neil girls famed for their appearance in Boston's Easter Parade.

A graduate of Quincy schools and Bridgewater State College, she is married to William Berberan, a lifelong Quincy resident. They are the parents of three daughters and a son.

Finn Calls For Openness At Elder Housing Corp.

Joe Finn, candidate for Councillor at-Large, is calling for Elder Housing Corporation, Inc. (EHC) to adopt "a more open attitude" regarding their financial records.

In a statement issued Monday, Finn said he addressed his concerns in a letter addressed to Helen Murphy, executive director of the non-profit charged with overseeing the affordable housing for the elderly located at Naval Terrace in North Quincy.

The letter was prompted by Finn's discovery, upon checking their file at the Attorney General's Division of Public Charities, that the agency has not filed any financial reports since its initial registration in May of 1998.

"This could be a simple oversight," Finn noted. "I am more disturbed by an opinion of the agency is expressing before the City Council and those they serve that because they are a nonprofit they owe no one any disclosure regarding their financial operation."

Finn, the former executive director of Father Bill's Place, said he has spent most of his professional life in nonprofit management. "By their very definition as 501(c)(3) entities, nonprofits have very serious disclosure responsibilities toward the public," Finn said.

In his letter to the agency, Finn outlined nonprofits' obligations to provide upon request information related to an agency's application for exempt status and for their annual information returns.

Finn notes in his letter that, although EHC is not operated by a governmental entity, their non-profit status as a federal 501 entity does subject them to a number of obligations regarding disclosure.

Specifically, tax-exempt organizations under the provisions of federal regulations (26CFR301.6104) are required to allow public inspection of their applications for tax exemption and their annual information returns.

"From what I have heard," Finn said, "the agency has not been forthcoming with such information."

Finn said he supports the concept of affordable housing for the elderly. "I think it is great that this opportunity exists, but I fear that a perceived sense of secrecy or lack of openness could impede future fundraising and development efforts."

"Someone has to stand up for the persons in housing at Naval Terrace who feel afraid and vulnerable at the moment. Why are they refusing to disclose to their tenants this most basic information?"

Finn closed his letter with a call for the agency to change the tone of recent discussions and to adopt an open policy toward financial disclosure.

"As a candidate for public office and as a citizen who lives very close to this housing, I am very concerned about the tone that the recent discussion has taken."

"I support your mission very much and believe that affordable housing for the elderly is a great public good. I also believe that your Board of Directors is made up of people of good faith and incredible community commitment."

"However, the tone of secrecy and the view of Elder Housing as a 'private enterprise' threaten the long-term viability of this effort. I call on you and your Board of Directors to adopt a more open stance regarding organizational and financial issues both with the elderly tenants and the larger community you serve."

Murphy, who said she has yet to receive Newton's letter, responded that EHC, being a private non-profit, was "not under the auspices of the City Council" and that the council had no role in the corporation's operations or budgets.

As for EHC's handling of the rent increases, which came under some criticism, most notably from Sheets himself, Murphy said that the controversy, to her knowledge, had not arisen from the tenants themselves.

"We have a very open dialogue with the tenants," said Murphy, who added that EHC has committed to a 60-day notification through both certified and hand-delivered mail to inform residents when and if a date for the rental increase is set.

Reached for comment Tuesday, Sheets reiterated an earlier position that possible rent increases were a matter for the Department of Housing and Urban Development

(HUD) but that the notification process had been handled poorly.

"It's extremely important that each tenant be met with individually," said Sheets, adding that potential rent increases or new leases must be "explained fully."

Under HUD guidelines, the mayor said, the maximum rent a tenant can pay is 30 percent of 80 percent of his or her annual income.

Coughlin Kicks Off Ward 3 Campaign

Kevin Coughlin, candidate for Ward 3 City Councillor, officially kicked off his campaign recently at the Greater Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall.

Coughlin outlined his vision of a proactive councillor for Ward 3 being "a bridge between the problems and the solutions."

"People don't have issues; they have problems they want corrected, concerns they want heard, needs they want addressed, and dreams they want to fulfill. Government at its best is people helping people and people helping people to help themselves."

"The problems, concerns, needs, and dreams I speak of today as a candidate," noted Coughlin, "are the same that I have worked with for the last 22 years working with children, youth, and families in the court system and the last decade as a community volunteer and activist: working with and supporting our teachers and our schools, reaching out to young parents with children and senior citizens alike who want to be able to live safely, securely, and affordably in this wonderful city of ours, maintaining the integrity of our neighborhoods, repairing infrastructure, streets and sidewalks, sewer and storm drains, maintaining public safety and mitigating traffic on our streets.

"These are just some of the quality of life concerns that I hear as I visit with residents in our area and the concerns I share as a 46 year resident of this ward with three children on one end of the spectrum and two senior parents on the other." Coughlin pledged, "I won't simply make promises, I will make a difference."

Those in attendance included state Sen. Michael Morrissey, state Rep. Bruce Ayers, Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti, Norfolk County Register of Deeds and City Council President Paul Harold, Councillor at-Large Timothy Cahill, Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott, School Committee Vice Chairwoman Jo-Ann Bragg, and School Committeeman William Phelan.

Gutro Endorsed By Norfolk Labor Council

The Norfolk County Labor Council AFL-CIO unanimously voted to endorse the candidacy of Doug Gutro for Ward 5 City Councillor in the coming election.

"We were impressed by Doug's understanding of the issues and his strong commitment to working families," said NCLC President Robert Rizzi. "We believe he'll be a strong voice on behalf of working families and he deserves our support."

Gutro thanked the council for its endorsement. "The unions that comprise the Norfolk County Labor Council represent thousands of working families in Quincy and throughout the South Shore," said Gutro. "I consider it a privilege to receive their support and look forward to serving as a reliable voice for working families throughout the city."

At Marina Bay

'The Wallet Was Loaded With Money And Charge Cards'

(Ed Spargo of Sherman Street, Wollaston, is a retired newspaperman who found himself in the middle of a little news story at Marina Bay last week. And, couldn't resist reporting it.)

By ED SPARGO

My tired, 93-year-old heart started to beat like a trip-hammer when my daughter, Nancy, shouted:

"Wow, the wallet is loaded with money and charge cards. The woman is apt to go into cardiac arrest when she discovers her loss. And, to complicate matters, she lives in Del Ray Beach, Fla. What are we going to do, notify the Quincy Police?"

"No," I replied. "First thing we do is notify the manager at Amelia's restaurant because I found the women's handbag and wallet on this bench and, if we can't locate the owner at Amelia's, we will then call the police."

Almost daily daughter, Nancy, and I visit Amelia's at Marina Bay for a light meal and, with our vivid imaginations, pretend we are dining out on the deck of a restaurant on Cape Cod with a relaxing nautical setting.

And, so we followed the exact same procedures on Wednesday last, with Nancy dropping me off outside Amelia's as usual and I rested on a bench outside the restaurant while Nancy parked the car.

Just as I got comfortable, I noticed a large bag with a strap and figured it was either a woman's handbag or a camera. I sat there transfixed for a couple of minutes wondering how in blazes anyone could walk away and leave the bag behind, for the black bag was plainly visible. I didn't wish to open the bag until Nancy came back to join me. I pointed to the bag and she exclaimed, "Haven't you checked it?"

"No, I want you to do the honors," I responded.

Whereupon she searched the contents and came up with the startling discovery that the contents were exceedingly valuable and added that the owner was an elderly lady from Florida. As I suggested, we informed the manager at Amelia's of our find and sat at a table outside the restaurant for our customary light meal in an attractive setting, with a lovely water view and a panoramic glimpse of the Boston skyline.

As we started our meal and told our waitress about our surprising find, Nancy suddenly called out:

"Dad, there's the lady who owns the wallet and bag."

"How in heck do you know that," I asked.

"It's very apparent she's the lady for I saw her picture on her driver's license."

So we called her over, greeted her and handed over her bag and wallet. Needless to say, she (Myrna Wolfe, 86) breathed a sigh of relief and proceeded to hand me a substantial award, which I refused, saying her delight in recovering her property so far from home was ample reward.

But when she kept insisting and wouldn't take "No" for an answer, I accepted a $10 gift . . . and my life got back to normal.

Maryann Mahony Candidate For Ward 6 Council Seat

Maryann Mahony of Hummock Rd., Squantum, announces her candidacy for the Ward 6 City Council seat.

She also announced her committee is comprised of her husband John "Moe" Mahony as campaign manager, Steven L. Canty, treasurer, and Judith Barnes, secretary.

In her announcement, Mahony noted that she "has been active in the community for 39 years and committed to making the community a better place."

She said, as councillor, she would "be a strong voice and presence in City Hall to help the community achieve the changes needed to make Ward 6 a better place."

She said her priorities have been and continue to be public safety, education, "and making sure our tax dollars are being spent wisely."

She also said she was concerned with the cleanliness of Wollaston Beach.

Mahony said while campaigning door-to-door she has learned more about the concerns of residents and business owners from North Quincy to Squantum.

They are, she said, taxes, public safety, and traffic problems on Hancock, Kendall, and East Squantum Sts. and Quincy Shore Drive leading into Squantum. Business owners, she said, are also concerned about parking problems around their businesses.

She noted she has spent considerable time collecting petition signatures opposing the sale of beer and wine at a local convenience store and has attended public hearings to speak out on issues concerning the community.

Mahony cited as other concerns in the ward: lack of repair to sidewalks and streets, inadequate lighting in various sections, and the need for pruning trees to prevent loss of electricity and telephone service during a storm.

She noted she helped found the Citywide Parents Council and has worked for the betterment of students at North Quincy High School. She has also worked in the campaigns of a number of elected city officials.

Mahony is president of the Quincy Foundation for Excellence in Education, a member of the Atlantic Neighborhood Association, and a member and former vice president of the Ward 6 Democratic Committee.

She and her husband have been married 43 years. They have a son, Jack, and two grandchildren.

She is employed at Boston Gear as a customer representative and manager at the former Best Buy store on Quincy Shore Drive.

A fundraiser for her candidacy will be held Aug. 8 from 6 to 9 p.m. at The Gazebo at the Adams Inn, Hancock St., North Quincy. For more information, call (617) 328-9627.

Greg Puricelli Receives Dean College Degree

from Dean College in Franklin.

John Barron To Attend University Of Notre Dame

John Barron of Quincy has been accepted into the University of Notre Dame in Indiana and will enter its College of Engineering as a first-semester junior for the 2001 fall semester.

Barron recently completed four years of coursework in three years at Stonehill College. A Dean's List student, he was inducted into two national honor societies -- the Sigma Zeta Honors Society for Math and Science and the Lambda Epsilon Sigma Honor Society -- during his academic career at the college.

As a result, he was one of only two students accepted into the "3-2" program run jointly by Stonehill College and Notre Dame University. The program allows Barron to earn both a degree in Computer Science from Stonehill and a degree in Computer Engineering from Notre Dame.

A resident of Sturtevant Rd., Barron is the son of Quincy Firefighter William Barron, Jr., and Nancy Barron. He is the grandson of (Ret.) Quincy Deputy Fire Chief William J. Barron and Doris Barron as well as John and Elizabeth Latini.

Local Realtors Participate In 'Legislative Day On Beacon Hill'

More than a dozen members of the Plymouth and South Shore Association of Realtors (PASS) recently participated in the 16th annual "Legislative Day on Beacon Hill" activities conducted by the Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR).

The local realtors met with state Senators Michael Morrissey, Robert Creedon, and Robert Hedlund and state Rep. Vinny M. deMacedo to discuss a number of bills in the Legislature that will affect property owners and the real estate industry.

In particular, the Plymouth and South Shore Association members urged local lawmakers to approve legislation that would mandate the escrowing of rent when landlord-tenant disputes arise over alleged violations of state sanitary code.

The realtors said they supported the mandatory escrowing of rent because it would protect a tenant's right to withhold rent due to defective or unsanitary conditions on the property while also promoting the upkeep of apartments since landlords would be reasonably assured of receiving all rent they're entitled to if they properly maintain all apartment units.

"There is an urgent need for a mandatory rent escrow requirement in our state because increasingly tenants are abusing existing law to avoid paying rent," said PASS President Elizabeth Rowe. The problem, according to Rowe, is that unscrupulous tenants are utilizing a provision in the current law that allows for an alleged violation of the state sanitary code as a justified reason for withholding rent.

Furthermore, the courts can only require rent payments to be held in an escrow account after a hearing on all facts of an eviction case occurs, a process that can take months and often results in financial hardships for many small property owners.

"This legislation is essential to helping relieve the heavy financial burden placed on owners of two- and three-family owner-occupied housing units who are unnecessarily faced with the possibility of foreclosure when a tenant deliberately withholds the rent for inappropriate reasons," Rowe added.

Another measure which realtors supported was H.3156, which would create a uniform code for the state's Title 5 septic system regulations. Most recently revised in 1995, Title 5 applies tough, new operating standards for on-site sewage disposal systems which must be met before a home is sold or enlarged. Nonetheless, state officials have found that as many as 125 communities in Massachusetts have imposed local septic rules that exceed the state's Title 5 requirements, including regulations that prohibit the use of alternative technologies approved by the State Department of Environmental Protection and others that dramatically expand the amount of land required for operation of a septic system.

"We strongly support a uniform code for Title 5 because it will help ensure enforcement is based on science and not arbitrary guidelines, and it will prevent communities from using the septic regulations for reasons other than public safety, such as setting zoning and minimum lot size requirements," explained Rowe. "A state-wide uniform code for Title 5 will go a long way toward protecting homeowners from over-regulation at the local level and the excessive costs associated with compliance."

The substantial costs that property owners often face to upgrade or repair septic systems have also prompted local realtors to advocate for changes in the technical guidelines of the state's Title 5 tax credit which would permit owners of non-owner occupied buildings, including secondary residences, multi-family homes, and commercial properties to apply for the credit.

At present, the law allows for a credit of up to $6,000 or 40 percent of the cost to upgrade or repair a system, whichever is less, to be taken over a five-year period, but the tax credit is only available to single-family homeowners for septic repair and replacement work completed at their principal residence.

"Title 5 is an issue for all property owners in non-sewered communities and we believe there should be equity concerning the types of property owners who are eligible to receive this tax credit," Rowe said. "Title 5 does not discriminate and neither should the state tax code."

Separately, the Massachusetts Association of Realtors has also filed legislation to increase the state's lead paint tax credit from $1,500 per unit to $2,500 per unit. In the past decade, MAR said, the costs to remove or encapsulate lead-based paint to comply with state law have risen substantially, yet the current $1,500 tax credit has not been increased for more than half a decade.

The Plymouth and South Shore Association supported the move, stating that efforts to make the lead abatement process financially feasible for homeowners and landlords are essential to ensuring that the Legislature's goals for the Commonwealth's lead paint program are achieved.

Finally, the Plymouth and South Shore Realtors urged their legislators to repeal the state's Urea Formaldehyde Foam Insulation (UFFI) disclosure law, a statute that requires homeowners, regardless of age, experience, or knowledge to investigate for and disclose to prospective homebuyers and real estate brokers whether or not UFFI was used in the home.

Notably, realtors said, the

First-Time Homebuyer's Workshop At Crane Library

Neighborhood Housing Services, an MHEA- and HUD-approved First-Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will hold a free informational First-Time Homebuyer's Workshop in partnership with Massachusetts Co-Operative Bank.

The partnership was established to better serve the needs of the local first-time homebuyer.

This workshop will be held Thursday, Aug. 30, from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40

Washington St., Quincy.

Agenda will be comprehensive as well as individualized. The focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process, including how to locate a property within budget, how to make an offer and determining the best mortgage program for your needs.

Each participant will have the opportunity to meet individually with a mortgage professional from Massachusetts Co-Operative Bank and receive a free mortgage pre-qualification. Participants will learn how they can purchase property with little or no money and how to best utilize local down payment and closing costs grants now available across the South Shore.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited. For more information or to register for the workshop, contact Debbie Edgerly at Neighborhood Housing Services at 617-770-2227, ext. 31.

Finding Help When Buying A Home

(NAPS)—When putting a roof over your head, some expert advice may help keep the process from giving you a headache.

There's a lot involved in buying a house and the decisions are multiplied when it's a brand new home constructed by a professional home builder.

The challenges can start from the ground up, if you first have to acquire the lot then build on it. Determinations can include:

- Lot size, shape and position
- Architecture
- Builder selection
- Number of floors/amount of floor space

- Codes/covenants/restrictions
- Completion time table
- Trade-in possibilities
- Prices
- Subdivision or customized home
- Neighborhood features and amenities

To help make such decisions in an informed manner, many homebuyers consult Accredited Buyer Representatives (ABRs), who, as members of the Real Estate Buyer's Agent Council (REBAC), receive specialized professional training in the new homebuying field.

REBAC offers a customized training program that covers subjects such as builders and their products; evaluating lots, homes, locations and builders; proper handling of documents; and contract issues.

ABRs can suggest features that may enhance future marketability of a property, such as installing an energy-saving heating system, and they can alert the buyer to important details in transactions from offering to building to closing.

ABRs are equally well schooled in assisting clients in the purchase of existing properties; providing assistance in preparation and presentation of offers; negotiating price, terms and conditions; acquiring financing and attending to pre- and post-closing details.

For a free homebuyer's kit or to locate an ABR anywhere in North America, visit www.rebac.net or call 1-800-648-6224.

Conway Quincy Office Agent Earns Bermuda Trip

Patrick Mulhern of Jack Conway & Co.'s Quincy sales office recently returned from an all-expense paid trip to the Grotto Bay Beach Resort in Bermuda as part of the firm's "Seminar in the Sun" incentive program.

Each year, the company hosts an educational seminar in a tropical location for its top-producing sales agents and managers. More than 50 sales agents and guests traveled on this year's trip, which featured four days of sightseeing and shopping, as well as sales-training courses and workshops on financing and zoning codes.

Richard Cahill is president of Jack Conway & Co.

and Carol Cahill is a sales agent in the firm's office on Beale Street.

Founded in 1957, Norwell-based Jack Conway and Company is the largest independently owned real estate company in Massachusetts, with more than 600 agents in 37 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

Local Realtors Participate In 'Legislative Day On Beacon Hill'

sale of UFFI has been banned in Massachusetts since 1979 and government research, as well as recent testing by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, has found no substantive evidence that the vapors once emitted from UFFI during its hardening process exist in homes today.

"We fully support the prohibition against the use of UFFI as an insulating material in homes and respect current laws mandating the disclosure of material defects in the sale of all property," said Rowe. "However, there are no studies or scientific data available to suggest that this product remains a public health threat.

"The need to require disclosure of UFFI has simply dissipated with time and, rather than adding to the confusion and costs that buyers and sellers face in the property transaction, we believe it is time to repeal this obsolete statute."

LIVING ON MAIN STREET

While those living on Wall Street may have recently been shaken by market fluctuations, those living on Main Street find life to be relatively stable. In fact, economists are finding a lot to like about the housing sector given today's economy. Recent statistics show that the median price of a home stands at $138,000. This is good news for those who want a median home and live in a median market. More significantly, the Affordability Index recently came in at a two-year high, standing at 144. This means that the average family can afford 144% of the median price. With interest rates in a downward trend, those in the market for new homes have every reason to intensify their searches.

Are you currently renting? With interest rates dropping, this is a good time for you to investigate home ownership. At ERA CENTRAL REAL ESTATE, our goal is to make the home buying process stress-free and enjoyable. We can sit down with you to review your income, savings and wish list of home features. The Multiple Listing Service allows us to show you homes in virtually any town. In addition to locating the home, we provide you with the information about the local schools, activities and houses of worship. Call us at 617-328-1312, or visit us at 128 McGrath Highway. We list residential and commercial properties.

HINT: Armed with realistic expectations, prospective buyers should not allow generalized economic fears to inhibit their desire for new homes.

Granite Can Clinch Playoff Berth With Win Over Clinton

Defeat Boston To Post 4-0 Mark

By CHRIS POISSON

On the final play of this game, there were no crossed fingers, chewed off nails, clenched fists or dripping foreheads from anyone on the visitor's sideline.

Instead, the Quincy Granite calmly waited for the final seconds to tick away last Saturday afternoon so they could celebrate a perfect month of July with their fourth straight victory to open the season.

Facing the Boston Cowboys (0-3) for the second time through the first four weeks of the season — taking the first meeting, 13-6, in a game that wasn't decided until the last play — the Granite erased a 14-9 deficit early in the fourth quarter with three straight scores en route to a 30-20 victory at Boston English High School.

"It was a huge win," said head coach Ken McPhee. "They're a scrappy team and plus it was over there. We've now beat them twice this year. We stepped up. Offensively we scored 23 points. That's better than we did in the past. In the first game we scored only 13. We needed to make a statement and we did."

Quincy will look to make a louder statement Saturday as it tries to become the first team in the EFL to clinch a playoff berth this season. Quincy tackles the Clinton Irish Blizzard (1-1) at 7 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium. After opening the season with a 41-0 rout of Central Maine Storm, Clinton faced stiffer competition last week, falling to Marlboro, 40-13.

"We're going to have to be patient on offense and stingy on defense," McPhee said. "They're huge. They're way bigger than us. They played Marlboro pretty tough. Marlboro scored three times on special teams, so their defense did a good job."

Against the Cowboys, Quincy got on the board first when quarterback Liam Higgins (8 for 19, 151 yards, 2 TDs) connected with wideout Dwayne Williams for a 24-yard TD pass. Matt Kulesza's extra point was blocked.

Boston evened the score at 6-6 before halftime on wideout Derek Wright's 1-yard TD reception from quarterback Clarzell Pearl.

In the third quarter, Kulesza drilled a 24-yard field goal — the first field goal in franchise history — as Quincy regained the lead, 9-6. Boston answered in the fourth on Pearl's 1-yard TD run, giving the Cowboys their first lead, 14-9, after Bob Devoe ran in the two-point conversion.

Their lead, however, was short-lived.

Troy Parks returned the ball 80 yards for a touchdown on the ensuing kickoff and Kulesza nailed the extra point to make it 16-14. Higgins and Williams hooked up again, this time on a 7-yard TD pass for a 23-14 lead. First-year running back John Morant busted loose for a 31-yard TD run for Quincy's final score.

Boston added a late touchdown against Quincy's reserves when Pearl tossed his second TD pass of the game.

Defensive back John Skabeikis, who had three interceptions against Hyannis in Week 3 to earn EFC Defensive Player of the Week honors, picked off his fourth pass of the season. He led the league last year with 11. Linebacker Ryan Craig also had an interception, his second of the season.

"Defensively, we played well enough to win," McPhee said. "It was the most points we have given up this year, but the last one was garbage points late in the game."

by Tony Centorino, Kevin McGroarty and Bill Starkie
4-WHEEL AND ALL-WHEEL-DRIVE

A traditional 4-wheel-drive system begins as rear-wheel-drive. A gear set (called a transfer case) inserted between the gearbox and rear driveshaft transfers some power to a second driveshaft that runs forward to a second differential in the front axle. Unless each differential is equipped with limited-slip, a 4-wheel-drive vehicle actually has one driven wheel in the front and one driven wheel in the rear under slippery conditions. Part-time 4-wheel-drive is really intended for low-speed driving on slippery surfaces. You drive on the pavement in two-wheel drive, then shift into 4-wheel-drive off-road. All-wheel-drive is a little different. All-wheel-drive engages power to all four wheels without the driver shifting anything. All four wheels are driven, all the time. 4-wheel and all-wheel drive systems are becoming very popular, even in family sedans. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO at 258 Quincy Ave., E. ## Montclair, Squantum Win Recreation Softball Titles

The Recreation Department recently held a citywide softball tournament made up of all-stars from each of the city's four districts.

The tournament was divided into two age groups: juniors (ages 8-11) and seniors (12-16).

In the senior division, Steve Reardon of Montclair fired a four-hit shutout to lead District 4 to the championship with a 5-0 win over District 3. He racked of tournament MVP honors.

For District 3, Ryan McCarthy of Fore River pitched well but a handful of errors led to five unearned runs.

In first-round action, District 4 knocked out District 2 with a 4-2 win, as Reardon allowed just the two runs over five innings. His teammates manufactured two runs in the second inning and two more in the fourth.

In the other game, District 3, led by the pitching of McCarthy, cruised to a victory over a young and inexperienced District 1 team.

In the junior division, District 1, led by co-MVP's Billy Kiley and Tom Conley, both of Squantum, jumped out to a 3-0 lead as it defeated a gritty District 2 team to capture the title.

Kiley silenced District 2's bats, which had scored nine runs in earlier action, and he was a force at the plate, scoring all three times he reached base. Conley drove him in all three times.

In first-round action, District 1 dispatched District 4, 9-5, as Dan Richards and Conley each smashed grand slams. District 4 went down fighting as it rallied in the final inning, but it couldn't recover from the early deficit.

In the other game, District 2 held on for a 9-7 win over District 3. Thanks to timely hitting and poor fielding, District 2 overcame a 6-4 deficit in the fourth inning with five runs. District 3 threatened in the final inning, but it left the tying run in scoring position.

McDermott Brothers Accept The Pan-Mass 194-Mile Challenge Again

Quincy City Councillor Patrick McDermott and Quincy Police Patrolman Chris McDermott have accepted the challenge once again — the Pan Mass Challenge (PMC).

In its 22nd year, the PMC is a 194-mile bike ride from Sturbridge to Provincetown that will be held this weekend, Aug. 4 and 5. A physical, mental, financial and emotional challenge, the PMC serves as the largest, single fund-raiser for the Jimmy Fund of the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, having raised over $55 million for cancer treatment and research.

The McDermott brothers will hold a fund-raiser tonight (Thursday) from 6 to 8 p.m. at The WaterClub at Marina Bay, Quincy. Any donation will be accepted. For those who cannot attend but would like to join the PMC team in its battle against cancer, checks can be made payable to "PMC/Jimmy Fund" and forwarded to Councillor Patrick McDermott, 146 Taylor St., Quincy 02170.

This will be Patrick's 10th and Chris' ninth Pan Mass Challenge. Councillor McDermott continues to see the ride as an opportunity for self-rehabilitation, having undergone double-hip replacement surgery in 1998, and said it serves as an inspiration for total recovery.

"I was grateful to hear that cycling plays an important role in the recovery from hip replacement surgery," he said. "I made it my own personal challenge to be back in the ride every year. To know that some patient is sitting through a chemotherapy treatment, struggling for his or her life, makes my own recovery seem quite normal. I ride for them."

Together the brothers have raised over $30,000 in their participation in the PMC. In order to participate each rider must raise a minimum of $1,800.

"This event is truly remarkable," Councillor McDermott said. "Over 2,000 riders, 75,000 sponsors and countless volunteers make PMC weekend a unique event."

The McDermott brothers dedicate their ride every year to their mother, Patricia, who died of cancer in December 1989.

"There has been no greater pain in our lives than the loss of our mother," Councillor McDermott said. "Our family faced a very difficult time, but together we made it through the pain of her loss by honoring her memory through this ride."

"Cancer does not discriminate," Officer McDermott said. "It hits people of all ages and races. I unfortunately have seen first-hand the devastating effect this disease has on families. I just want to try to do my part to see the day when we can declare a full victory over this disease."

They Can't Hang Up Help For Elderly People Targeted By Fraud

ELDERLY TARGETS OF FRAUD NEED TO KNOW THAT:

- * Illegal telemarketing is a crime, and that fraudulent telemarketers are criminals.
- * The FBI reports that there are an estimated 14,000 illegal telemarketing operations bilking consumers every day;
- * As much as $40 billion per year is lost to fraudulent telemarketers.
- * You can't tell by the tone of someone's voice if the caller is legitimate.
- * Legitimate companies don't pressure people into sending money immediately.
- * It's illegal for contests or sweepstakes to require payment to enter or claim a prize.
- * Legitimate marketers are willing to send written information about the products or services they're selling.
- * Giving money to a fraudulent telemarketer usually means losing it forever.
- * Reporting suspected telemarketing crime is essential to stop it.

AND THEY NEED TO KNOW they can protect themselves from being targets of fraud by:

- * Telling the caller that they want to check it out and asking for a number to call back. If the caller refuses to give a number or insists on an immediate decision, it's a "RED FLAG" of fraud.
- * Calling the NCL's National Fraud Information Center at (800) 867-7060 is important.

WARNING SIGNS THAT AN ELDERLY PERSON MAY BE A TARGET OF FRAUD

IF AN OLDER PERSON IS:

- * Receiving lots of junk mail for contests, "free" trips, prizes and sweepstakes.
- * Getting frequent calls from strangers offering valuable awards or great money-making opportunities, or asking for charitable contributions.
- * Making repeated and/or large payments to out-of-state companies.
- * Having payments picked up by private courier service.
- * Receiving lots of cheap items such as costume jewelry, small appliances, pens, pencils, beauty products, water filters, etc. (often purchased in order to win supposedly valuable prizes, or these were prizes that they received.)
- * Getting calls from organizations offering to recover money that they have paid to telemarketers. FOR A FEE.

Then, he or she may be a target of fraud.

The National Fraud Information Center, the oldest non-profit consumer organization in the United States, has professional counselors who will let callers know if an opportunity seems to be a typical telemarketing scam. The center can also advise friends and relatives of older people who were concerned that they might be actual or potential victims of fraud. They have free material about different types of telemarketing fraud. Their toll-free number is (800) 876-7060.

Charlie Sacchetti Memorial Golf Tourney At South Shore Country Club

The ninth annual Charlie Sacchetti Memorial Golf Tournament will be held Monday, Aug. 6 at the South Shore Country Club in Hingham with a 7:15 a.m. shotgun start.

A clambake will be held after the tournament for all participants at the Torre di Paseri Social Club, 252 Washington St., Quincy Point.

Cost of the tournament is $90 per person. For those who wish to sponsor a hole, the cost is $100. Proceeds from the tournament are donated to the Morrisette Post Scholarship Fund. In the previous eight years, over $20,000 has been donated.

To participate, visit the Triangle Service Station at 15 West St., West Quincy, or call 617-472-9517.

Girls Relay Team In State Hersey Track Meet

The girls ages 11-12 relay team from the Quincy Recreation Department qualifying meet are the state champions in the Hershey's National Track and Field Youth Program.

The team of Nicole Affannato, Kelsey Brennan, Eileen Deasy and Melissa Mendell led an outstanding group of over 30 participants to the state finals after qualifying by winning the local meet sponsored by the Recreation Department. Over 230 boys and girls took part in the two-day local meet at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Hershey Youth Program, for boys and girls ages 9-14, was founded in 1976 and held its first national competition in 1978. The youth compete in three age groups (9-10, 11-12, 13-14). The program encourages participation by limiting each participant to take part in only three of seven events for each age group.

"We are fortunate to have such wonderful opportunity for the youth of our community," said Recreation Director Barry Welch. "The youngsters have fun and meet many other participants as they advance through the levels of the program. The state champions are forwarded to the New England region and the top teams are awarded an all-expense paid trip to the national championship. Although not selected for the nationals, the young Quincy team had a great showing at the state championship."

"I would like to thank Geoff Hennessy of the Quincy Track Club for acting as meet director and the recreation leaders who officiated the local meet. Congratulations to all the local champions."

The local champions and their results at the state meet are as follows:

Nicole Affannato (11-12): first place relay, 12th place

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Headaches: Their Causes And Treatment

By Dr. MARTIN RIGBY

Although painful and troublesome, most headaches are minor health concerns and can be easily treated with aspirin or another analgesic. If they are severe, recur frequently or are attended by other symptoms, additional steps may need to be taken, as it is not healthy to continue taking analgesics over a long period of time. Extended use of oral pain medication can lead to gastrointestinal distress or liver problems. Use of the pain-killing medication may relieve symptoms temporarily, but does little to address the underlying cause of the headache.

Headaches are categorized according to their underlying causes. Muscle contraction or tension headaches make up one common group. Vascular (blood-vessel) headaches are another common category; it includes migraine headaches. A third group consists of headaches caused by sinus problems.

Tension headaches afflict almost everyone at one time or another. They bring on a dull, persistent, non-throbbing pain that can make your head feel as if it's being gripped by a tight band. Neck muscles may be tight and knotted, and certain areas of the head and neck may be sensitive to touch. Nerve endings in the head and neck that have been irritated by tight muscles or immobile neck joints are the chief source of pain. Tension headaches can be short-lived and infrequent, or they can be enduring and chronic.

Migraines are the most debilitating of headaches; they can be completely incapacitating. For some sufferers a migraine attack is preceded by a warning sign called an aura. This warning may include visual disturbances, such as flickering points of light, blind spots, zigzag lines or, more rarely, numbness in a limb or the smelling of strange smells.

Whether the warning signs are present or not, a migraine will usually begin with an intense, throbbing pain on one side of the head. This pain may spread and is often accompanied by nausea and vomiting. A migraine can last from a few hours to three days and can cause oversensitivity to light, odors and sound.

All of the various symptoms of migraines seem linked to changes in the diameter of blood vessels in the head. The blood vessels constrict (or tighten) during the initial stage and dilate (or widen) when the headache pain begins. These changes may be due to imbalances in brain chemicals. Hormones can play a role; there is a strong correlation between changes in estrogen levels and migraines.

Sinus headaches are characterized by pain in the forehead, nasal area, eyes and sometimes the top of the head. In some cases they also produce a feeling of pressure behind the face. Inflammation or infection of the membranes lining the sinus cavities can give rise to such headaches. The headache pain may also stem from suction on the sinus walls, which occurs when nasal congestion creates a partial vacuum in the sinuses.

Headaches strike for many reasons. Stress is the most common trigger for tension headaches. The stress may stem from anxiety about work or family life or it may derive from some physical factor, such as persistent noise. Eyestrain, poor posture, too much caffeine or teeth clenching at night can also lead to tension headaches.

Migraines are more mysterious. Evidence suggests the constriction and swelling of blood vessels is involved, but some researchers believe migraines are primarily neurological in origin. Migraines run in families, so genetics appear to play a role.

In any event, a wide range of factors can trigger an attack. Among them are excessive caffeine, various foods or scents, naps, dry winds, changes in altitude or seasons, hormonal fluctuations, birth control pills, missing a meal or stuffy rooms. Migraines can also be triggered in the aftermath of intense emotions such as excitement or anger. Exercise, sexual activity or very cold foods can also jump-start a migraine.

Sinus headaches typically result from hay fever or other seasonal allergies, or from a cold or the flu.

Conventional treatments for headaches differ depending on the cause of the headache. Sinus headache sufferers may benefit from antibiotics and decongestant therapy. A wide variety of medications are prescribed for migraines. Your doctor may recommend a preventative medication schedule if you have migraines three or more times per month. Most of these medications work by reducing constriction in blood vessels.

Relief for tension headaches may be obtained from aspirin or other analgesics. If you get a tension headache frequently, then it is suggested that you seek a different form of treatment. Continued use of these pain-relieving pills can cause gastrointestinal tract problems, including bleeding ulcers and liver damage.

Natural forms of treatment can offer relief for headache pain without potentially harmful medications. My suggested treatments for tension headaches follow.

Stretching exercises to help reduce the contraction of tight muscles. In addition, manipulation of immobile neck joints relieves the muscle strain and allows normal motion to occur. In studies, spinal manipulation has been shown to have longer lasting effects than medication and it causes no side effects, unlike medication. Other headache triggers may need to be modified such as: improving posture, making changes in one's workplace environment or learning stress management strategies.

There are numerous types of headaches and each has different causes. Do not simply take medication to mask the pain symptoms. Instead, try to find the cause of the headache and address the cause itself. Otherwise, it will continue to be a chronic condition requiring more and more potentially harmful medications. Please remember headaches are not caused by a medication deficiency.

Bully-Proofing Our Community

By ALAN JACOBSON
Licensed Psychologist

Bullying is a growing problem in communities all across the nation. And it often accompanies more serious issues such as delinquency, violence, childhood depression and school failure. The results can be devastating. Who can forget the incident at Columbine High School where two boys who were bullied by their peers went into their school with guns?

However, recent studies

have suggested that we can reduce this problem in our communities by following a few simple suggestions that can be implemented anywhere there are groups of children, such as schools or camps, to help minimize the devastating effects of bullying.

Types of Bullying

Often when people think of bullying they conjure up an image of one child pushing or shoving another child or forcing them to give up their milk money. While this may seem harmless, it can have devastating effects on the child who is being bullied. One way to start combating bullying is to understand the different types of bullying. They include:

- Physical Bullying — This is physical intimidation or aggression by the bully for the purpose of humiliating the victim or taking something away from them. This can involve pushing, shoving, hitting, slapping or another type of negative physical contact.
- Verbal Bullying — This includes teasing, verbal humiliation or any other intentional infliction of hurt through words.

- Relational Bullying — This type of bullying always happens in a social context, and involves demeaning a person in front of others, shutting someone out of a group or lowering someone's status. For example, a group of children might tell a friend they are no longer welcome in their group because they are not popular enough.

Once a group understands the different types of bullying, they can go about designing a written anti-bullying policy, which should include a "zero tolerance" statement. Zero tolerance means that there is no situation where bullying is okay and it should never be overlooked or tolerated.

How to Ward off Bullies

Another step in combating bullying involves giving children several ways to ward off bullies. Some suggestions for children include:

- Telling a friend what is happening.
- Walking away.
- Staying calm and not giving the bully the reaction they're after.
- Thinking up an unexpected reply, such as agreeing with the bully or asking them to repeat what they just said.

'Polar Expedition' At The Lord's Planting

The Lord's Planting (Evangelical Church of the Atlantic, Quincy Foursquare Church), 65 Newbury Ave., North Quincy, invites children to participate in its "Polar Expedition" program.

"Our 'Polar Expedition' program will provide fun, memorable Bible-learning activities for kids of all ages," said Pastor Bill Donahue.

"Each day, kids will sing catchy songs, play teamwork-building games, nibble tasty treats from Igloo Eats, dig into Bible adventures, and create Cool Crafts they'll take home and play with all summer long," Donahue said.

"Polar Expedition" is an exciting way for kids to discover that Jesus' love is cool," Pastor Bill said. "Kids will join nearly a million children in North America and take part in a hands-on mission project that will reach needy children across the globe.

"We'll conclude each day with a festive Ice Station Celebration that gets everyone involved in celebrating what they've learned. Family members and friends are encouraged to join us daily for this special time at 8:30 p.m."

Polar Expedition begins Thursday, Aug. 2 and continues Thursday through Aug. 30. "Explorers" will meet at the Lord's Planting, 65 Newbury Ave., each Thursday in August from 6:30 to 8:45 p.m.

For more information, call 617-847-4444.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Thomas A. Kempis in one of his books made this statement: "In the judging of others, a man labors in vain, often erring, but in judging and examining himself, he always labors fruitfully."

Have you ever noticed that when the other fellow acts irritable, he's UGLY; when we do, it's NERVES... When others are set in their ways, they're OBSTINATE; when we are, it's just FIRMNESS... When your neighbor doesn't like your friend, he's PREJUDICED; when we don't like him, we are simply being a GOOD JUDGE OF HUMAN NATURE... When the other fellow takes time to do things well, he's a SLOWPOKE OR LAZY; when we act the same way, we are DELIBERATE AND CAREFUL... When our neighbor gets rid of his money in a hurry, he's a SPENDTHRIFT; when we do, we're GENEROUS... When someone finds flaws in things, he's CRANKY AND CRITICAL; when we do, we're DISCRIMINATING...

Any thoughts on this or any other thought you read here are most appreciated and most welcome.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A misunderstanding tests the temperament of the sometimes headstrong Aries. But instead of blowing your top, take time for a pleasant diversion while things cool down.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A workplace problem could make the divine Bovine see red. But talk it out before you begin walking out. Some surprising facts emerge that change your earlier focus.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You face a choice between ignoring your uneasy feelings about your relationship with that special person, and demanding explanations. A close friend offers wise counsel.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A change you'd been hoping for carries an unexpected complication. Stay the course, and things will work themselves out. Be sure to make time for family and friends.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Aspects favor spending time with loved ones. On the job, new ideas are generally welcomed. But, some demands for changes could cause problems. Be ready to defend your choices.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Good news. That workplace problem is close to being resolved with results that should please everyone. Take time off to indulge your love of fun and games.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Most of the time you are the most unflappable person around. But be ready to be thrown off-balance in the nicest way when Cupid takes aim in your direction.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) It's not often when someone tries to "sting" the sharp-witted Scorpion. But it can happen. Continue to be skeptical about anything that seems too good to be true.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your strong sense of self-esteem helps you serve as a role model for someone who needs personal reassurances. Your efforts pay off in an unexpected way.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Someone close considers revealing a painful secret. Withhold judgment. Instead, open your generous heart, and offer dollops of your love and understanding.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your talents as a peacemaker are called upon once more as an old problem re-emerges with new complications. Move cautiously to avoid falling into hidden traps.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your artistic side is enhanced with the reception given to your new project. Use this success as encouragement toward fulfilling your larger goals.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your natural sense of leadership is combined with a deep sense of responsibility. People trust you to give them both guidance and understanding.

Finding A Home Care Aide

By Roger G. Nicholls, Jr.,
Executive Director
Welch Home Care, Inc.

If you have come to the point where you need to find a home care aide, the following tips may help you in your selection:

Use an agency in which the home care staff member has had a background check, a full physical, and up-to-date immunizations.

Ask about staff training and any special skills the home care aide may have.

It is helpful to also ask the following questions: How long has the aide been working, and how long has the agency been in business? Does a clinician evaluate the patient if personal care services are required? How are workers supervised?

Inquire about the insurance in force. Also, determine if the agency has liability and workers compensation insurance.

Determine if the agency has a means to provide a back-up aide if your regular aide becomes ill or is otherwise absent.

At first, the task of finding a home care aide may seem difficult, but by asking certain questions early in the search process, you can receive the safest and highest quality care available.

A funeral Mass for Christine Florence (McIntyre) Kennedy, 72, of Quincy, a retired telephone operator, will be celebrated (tomorrow) Friday at 9 a.m. at St. Mary's Church.

She died Monday at Quincy Medical Center.

Mrs. Kennedy was a telephone operator for 40 years. She was a member of St. Mary's Church.

Born in Boston, she had lived in Quincy since 1964.

Wife of the late Francis J. Kennedy, she is survived by two sons, James Kennedy and Michael Kennedy, both of Quincy; a daughter, Georgette Thompson of Quincy; and four grandchildren. She was also the mother of the late Robert Francis Kennedy.

Burial will be private. Visiting will be 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. today (Thursday) at Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy Center.

Donations may be made to the American Heart Association, 20 Speen St., Framingham 01701-4688.

Eleanor W. Doyle, 80

Retired Bookkeeper

A funeral service for Eleanor W. (Williams) Doyle, 80, a retired bookkeeper, will be held today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. at Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Mrs. Doyle died Sunday at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston.

Formerly of South Boston, she had worked for Mahoney and Wright Insurance until her retirement in 1986.

She joined Phillips Congregational Church in South Boston in 1935, where she was a secretary for over 50 years.

She is survived by two nephews, James Reynolds of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Paul Williams of Arizona; three nieces, Patricia MacDougal and Peggy Daly, both of Randolph, and Janet Hunt of Norwell; several great-nephews and great-nieces; and several great-grandnephews and nieces.

Burial will be in Forest Hills Cemetery.

Visiting was scheduled 4 to 7 p.m. Wednesday at the funeral home.

Bully-Proofing Our Community

Increasing adult supervision when it can be predicted that bullying might take place can also be helpful. Another step is instituting a reporting system, such as creating a "bullybox." This is a mailbox located where victims or witnesses of bullying can place anonymous reports of these incidents. The reports can be specific, such as a description of the incident, or general, such as reporting a place or time where bullying is happening.

When bullying happens, sometimes all that is needed is a simple conversation with the bully. The conversation should be direct ("I know you did it") and clear ("Bullying is not tolerated here"), and should provide a warning ("I will be watching to make sure it doesn't happen again") and consequences ("If it does happen, here's what will be done").

Also, there are creative ways to deal with bullying, such as:

- Mediation — Whereby an adult helps the children resolve their differences.
- Buddy Systems — This is when older children volunteer to help younger ones.
- Peer-Led Education — Where older children can use their influence as powerful role models.

All of these types are simple and easy, and can lead to truly meaningful reductions in bullying. In turn, this can dramatically decrease the emotional hurt and more devastating long-term problems that bullying inflicts.

Sophia Karpinski

Taken Prisoner By Germany In WWII

A funeral Mass for Sophia "Babe" (Adamowicz) Karpinski of Quincy will be celebrated Friday at 10:30 a.m. in Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Sea St.

Mrs. Karpinski died Sunday after a long illness.

Born in Poland, she was taken prisoner during World War II and held in Germany for five years. After the war, she lived in England for several years before moving to Boston in 1958.

She enjoyed cooking, gardening and reading classic Polish novels.

Wife of the late Bernard

Karpinski, she is survived by two sons, John Karpinski of Auburn, N.H., and Terry Karpinski of Quincy; a daughter, Elizabeth Maloney of Quincy; nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Burial will be in St. Paul's Cemetery, Hingham.

Visiting hours are 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. today (Thursday) at the Dolan Funeral Home, 460 Granite Ave., Milton.

Donations may be made to St. Elizabeth Ann Seton Parish, 227 Sea St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Arthur Whitehead, 97

Retired Engineer

A funeral service for Arthur F. Whitehead, 97, of Quincy, a retired engineer for Pneumatic Scale Corp. in Quincy, was held Sunday at Alfred D. Thomas Funeral Home, 326 Granite St., Milton.

Mr. Whitehead died July 26 at Quincy Rehabilitation & Nursing Center.

He worked for Pneumatic Scale for 45 years, retiring in 1973.

He graduated from Northeastern University in 1926 with a degree in engineering.

He was born in Quincy and was active in the Boy Scouts during his youth.

Mr. Whitehead was a resident of Wollaston for the past 62 years.

Dependable Cleaners Presents New Bicycles To Two Local Students

Two Quincy youth, Patrick Fernandes, 11, and Katherine McKinnon, 9, are two of the winners in the final week of Dependable Cleaners' "Read to Ride" summer reading incentive program.

Patrick will be entering fifth grade at Lincoln Hancock School in the fall. His winning entry form was Arthur for the Very First Time by Patricia MacLellan.

Katherine will be going into the fourth grade at St. Anne's in Wollaston. She read Karen's Toy by Ann M. Martin to win her bike.

The two will receive a $250 gift certificate for a new bike and helmet. Additionally, their names will be announced on Radio Disney throughout the week and will appear on AT & T Broadband's Weather Channel crawl at regular intervals.

"Read to Ride" provides students, ages 6-15, with an opportunity to win a bicycle each time they read a book by submitting an entry form during the months of June and July. The program recently concluded with eight winners being drawn.

"Read to Ride" is a community service project sponsored by Dependable Cleaners in conjunction with Quincy Cycle, Farina's Bicycle Center, The Patriot Ledger, and Radio Disney.

A 'Beach Blast' At Germantown

The Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission and the Drug Education Program of the Quincy Housing Authority recently sponsored a Beach Blast off Palmer St. in the Germantown neighborhood.

"It's was great to see people back in the water," said Leo Kelly, chairman of the QBCC, adding that the event was part of the more general "Back to the Beaches" program.

The event featured a barbecue, a DJ, and Pinewood and Powderpuff Derbies featuring both Boy Scout and Girl Scout racers.

Similar summer events are being planned for beaches across the city, Kelly said.

BRIAN SHIELDS, age 11, uses a bucket to catch small fish during the neighborhood Beach Blast in Germantown.

Harold, McCauley Differ With Sheets On Sewer Rehab Fund $525,000 Transfer Issue

By CRAIG SALTERS

Council President Paul Harold and Councillor at-Large Frank McCauley will ask the City Council to reconsider its June 18 action which transferred over $5,200,000 from accounts with year-end surpluses to accounts with deficits at year's end.

At issue is a transfer of $525,000 from the Sewer Rehabilitation Fund into the city's General Budget.

Harold and McCauley contend that funds in the Sewer Rehabilitation Fund are "restrictive in nature" and can only be used for the specific sewer issues outlined in the Home Rule Petition which set up the Sewer Rehabilitation Fund in 1986.

But Mayor James Sheets, who as a Ward 4 Councillor authored the Home Rule Pe-tion making developers pay one percent of estimated construction costs into the special account, said the $525,000 was used specifically to pay debt service on sewer loans and was therefore within the range of acceptable uses.

The council will take up the issue tonight (Thursday) at its special meeting scheduled for 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers of City Hall.

Iacobucci Withdraws Leaves Three School Incumbents Unopposed

Ronald Iacobucci has withdrawn from the School Committee race, leaving three incumbents unchallenged for re-election.

Iacobucci said he feels that issues that motivated him to run have been resolved.

In a letter to City Clerk Joseph Shea, Iacobucci requested that his name be withdrawn from the ballot for school committee.

He had until today (Thursday) at 5 p.m. to withdraw.

Iacobucci said he will devote his time in the immediate future to heading up an effort to build a Mini-Fenway Park here now that original plans for a Little Fenway Park by former Boston Red Sox infielder Tim Lincecum failed to materialize.

Iacobucci's departure from the school committee field leaves incumbents JoAnn Bragg, Ronald Mariano and Michael McFarland without opposition in the Nov. 6 final election.

For awhile it appeared there would be two other challengers in addition to

Health Dept. Orders:

No Paper Sludge For Capping Quarry Hills Landfill

Citing issues of public health, the city's Health Department has ordered Quarry Hills Associates not to use Short Paper Fiber (SPF) in the loam layer landfill cap on the Quincy section of the Quarry Hills golf course project.

Use of the paper sludge, which has been known to cause odor problems when used incorrectly, became an issue recently when Milton officials objected to the approval of the cheaper loam substitute by the state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP).

The Health Department's order was communicated in an Aug. 6 letter sent by Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue to Charles Geilich, president of Quarry Hills Associates, Inc. which is nearing completion of its 27-hole golf course built upon former quarry landfill located in West Quincy and Milton.

Gallahue's letter cites several "concerns" with SPFs — including lack of adequate regulations, testing, and monitoring of the topsoil substitute in its "Type 1" form — and concludes "that no SPFs should be used on any portion of the site in Quincy" because "the presence of these products for reasons stated constitutes a public health nuisance."

Mayor James Sheets, who said he asked Gallahue last week to address the issue, agreed with Gallahue's decision that no paper sludge should be used to cap the landfill.

"We are not going to use short paper fibers in Quincy," said Sheets, who said the paper fibers may initially meet state standards but violate those standards as they decompose.

Also concerned is Council President Paul Harold, who wrote a letter dated Aug. 1 to DEP Commissioner Lauren Liss on the matter.

Referencing a July 27 report in the Milton Record-Transcript which he said raised many "serious issues," he tested with a flow of water which could result in rusty water for the residents.

Kennedy said if persons see testing in their area that they should run the cold water for two or three minutes until the water is cleared.

He said the day testing is

Harold limited his questions for Liss to the use of sludge and the process by which the change was made from use of a topsoil cap to use of a "modified loam cap."

Public process, Harold said, was a priority. "This is something of such significance that public officials should be notified and the public should be allowed to comment," Harold said.

The former quarry sites and landfills are in the process of being filled with fill from the Central Artery Project.

Fire Department Testing Hydrants

For the next three weeks, the Quincy Fire Department will be testing fire hydrants throughout the city Monday through Friday from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

According to Lt. James Kennedy, the hydrants will done in your area is not the day to put a white wash in the washing machine.

He said the reason testing is done, is because in some areas, fire hydrants are not in use, and the rust builds up thus the flow of water.

Phelan Urges Residents Scrutinize Mayoral Candidates Rhetoric

Mayoral challenger William J. Phelan is calling on Quincy residents to scrutinize the rhetoric and actions of both candidates and hold them, their advisors, and staff more accountable.

Misrepresentations are being circulated throughout the city, said Phelan, and the citizens of Quincy should be told the truth.

"My campaign for mayor is committed to straight talk with the people of Quincy and a pledge for sound fiscal management," Phelan said in a statement released Tuesday. "The citizens of Quincy deserve no less."

Phelan's statement made the claim that "DPW Commissioner David Colton continues to double talk as he did when attempting to defend locating a new high school on a toxic waste dump."

Phelan cited a letter in The Patriot Ledger and a newsletter mailed to Quincy residents in which, he said, Colton attributed the Sheets' administration's track record for road repairs on a decrease in state funding and presented a recent bond issue of $950,000 for roads and sidewalk as "the good news."

"This is the good news?" asked Phelan. "This administration is patting itself on the back for borrowing an additional $1 million dollars in long-term debt to pay for basic city services and at the same time was forced to use $700,000 in community grant money for neighborhood improvements to pay off defaulted shipyard loans."

WILLIAM PHELAN

And that's supposed to be good news?"

Reached for comment Tuesday, Colton responded that state funding for road repair had decreased from a high of almost $1.5 million to a low of around $480,000 and that it was not an excuse but fact. He added that the city had paved 250 streets in the last decade at a cost of $19 million.

Colton, who emphasized road repair was one part of a puzzle which included such items as water mains, seawalls, and school buildings, also said the mayor's advocacy was responsible for much of the state funds earmarked for projects in areas such as North Quincy and Quincy Point.

As for the bond issue, Colton maintained that "it was absolutely the right thing to do" for the city.

"There's a basic misconception about the rightful place for bonding," said Colton, who said nine out of 10 municipal experts would favor bonding capital investments with a lifespan of 20 years.

Responding to the claims of poor judgment at the Fore River Shipyard, Sheets said his decision to commit federal funds was "a prudent risk" predicated on President William Clinton's commitment of $238 million to the project and a revitalization plan with both state and federal backing.

"It was made very clear to me that if state and federal funds were being invested in the project, then the city of Quincy would have to invest in the project," Sheets said.

Sheets further added that the 135-acre shipyard was "75 to 80 percent complete," more attractive to corporations seeking an industrial site, and would return the city's investment once the legal issues involving bankrupt shipyard owner MHI had been resolved.

"The mayor's office stands on its record," said Sheets. "This administration has been open and honest for 12 years and will continue to be so. We will continue to work on issues to move this city forward and not be turned aside by campaigning."

"We will let the voters decide."

Harold Urges: Transfer Dorothy Quincy Homestead To National Park Service

By TOM HENSHAW

The City Council will be asked tonight (Thursday) to urge the MDC and the Colonial Dames to begin negotiations for the transfer of the Dorothy Quincy Homestead on Butler Road to the National Park Service.

The Homestead, which is owned by the MDC and leased to the Dames, has been open to the public by appointment only for the past two years as the Dames have had difficulty finding caretakers to live there during the tourist season.

The 100-year lease expires in 2004.

Council President Paul Harold, who will file the resolution, said he became aware of the problems at the Homestead two years ago when The Quincy Sun, making up its annual historic supplement, found it was closed to the public.

"The Dorothy Quincy Homestead has national significance," said Harold. "The Quincys are contemporaneous with the Adams family. There is an appropriate tie-in."

The National Park Service maintains and conducts tours of the Adams National Historic Site, which includes the Adams Mansion on Adams Street and the Adams Birthplaces on Franklin Street.

Harold said the National Park Service is in favor of taking over the Homestead but the site superintendent, Mary Ann Peak, as a federal employee is forbidden to lobby for it.

"David Balfour, the MDC commissioner, is willing to give up the Homestead and the Colonial Dames say they are willing to suspend the lease," said Harold.

"It is traditional that the MDC never gives up an acre of land but the Homestead doesn't fit in with its function. Long term preservation and availability to the public would best be done under the National Park Service."

Harold said he has a pledge of $10,000 from Secretary of State William Galvin to train and hire tour guides to escort visitors around the Homestead for the remainder of the 2001 tourist season and explain the significance of the house to them.

The house, parts of which were built in 1685 by Col. Edmund Quincy on land granted to another Edmund in 1638 and enlarged by yet another Edmund in 1706, is one of the oldest in the city.

The words "You I Love and You alone," scratched with a diamond ring by the patriot John Hancock and addressed to his future wife, Dorothy, can still be seen on a window pane in the Homestead.

Sheets Would Name W. Quincy Fire Station For Malvesti Family

Mayor James Sheets has placed a resolve before the City Council proposing that the West Quincy Fire Station be renamed in honor of the Malvesti Family.

The council will consider the resolve tonight (Thursday) in Council Chambers at City Hall.

"This is a great old Quincy family," said Sheets, who said he wanted to include councillors in paying tribute to a family which has contributed so much to the city's public life, including: brothers Joseph, "Nick," Louis, and Anthony Malvesti, all retired lieutenants of the Quincy Fire Department; fifth brother John Malvesti, Sr., a retired sergeant on the Quincy Police Department; Lt. Thomas Malvesti of the Quincy Police Department, son of Nick Malvesti; and Fire-fighter John Malvesti III, grandson of John Malvesti, Sr.

"It was quite a surprise," said Joseph Malvesti's daughter Joan on the proposed renaming. "It is cer-

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

FIRMLY ANCHORED

For patients interested in the strongest and most natural tooth-replacement technique, there is the dental implant. It consists of a small titanium post that is surgically implanted in the jaw to serve as a replacement tooth root. A dental prosthesis is then affixed to the implant to act as the actual replacement tooth. Intended to replace the root of the missing tooth, implants can serve as anchors for various types of dental prostheses, including single crowns, bridges, or partial or full dentures. Implants are firmly anchored into the jawbone through a process known as "osseointegration," is a natural process in which bone integrates with the implant to create a stable anchor for overlying replacement teeth.

If you have any questions about your chances for replacing lost teeth through the latest techniques such as implants, call us at 617-479-6220. Always feel free to discuss your dental concerns with us. We can provide you with implants, dentures, bridges, or crowns. We offer complete dental health services for the whole family. We want you to look and feel your best. For a happy, healthy, a good-looking smile, we urge you to have a check-up soon. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

'Are You Okay?' TRIAD Program Available For Seniors

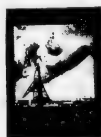

The Quincy Council on Aging announces that senior citizens and people with limited restrictions can make use of the "Are You OK?" program, part of the city's recently formed TRIAD partnership.

The "Are You OK?" program is a voluntary computer/telephone service reassurance system that checks on a person's well being. There is no cost and no equipment to purchase; the only requirement is that a person have a phone and be willing to fill out an application and waiver form.

Once a person completes the application process, he or she will receive a pre-programmed call everyday at a time requested by the person.

If there is no answer, a second call is placed five minutes later. If there is still no answer, a call is made to a designated friend or family member and, if none are available, the police are contacted to send a car to the residence.

TRIAD is a partnership recently formed between the city and Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti's office in an effort to improve the quality of life for senior citizens. Primary goals of the partnership are to reduce the criminal victimization of older citizens and enhance senior awareness of support services. TRIAD also works to increase senior participation in crime prevention and detection programs.

Today And 56 Years Ago

Time, as they say, really changes things.

Like today, for example.

A concert of Japanese drumming by the Odaiko New England taiko group is scheduled for noon on the lawn of the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center.

Today happens to be Aug. 9 -- coincidentally the 56th anniversary of the dropping of the second atomic bomb on Nagasaki that ended World War II.

And the man that dropped it is retired Air Force General Charles W. Sweeney, who grew up in North Quincy.

Sweeney, who piloted the plane over Nagasaki also flew in the first atomic bomb mission over Hiroshima three days earlier.

He is the only pilot to fly both missions.

And here in his hometown of Quincy today there is a Japanese drumming concert being presented and, no doubt, will be enjoyed. Few, if any of those attending, will think of Aug. 9, 1945.

Fifty six years ago just the thought of a Japanese concert here would have been unbelievable, unthinkable. Never!

But time really does change things.

One thing it apparently hasn't changed, however, is Sweeney's feelings about the Hiroshima bomb and the one he dropped on Nagasaki.

"I would do it again -- under the same circumstances," he has said in the years since.

There are critics today who say we shouldn't have done it. But they weren't out there in the Pacific at the time. Those who were out there, line up with Sweeney on the issue.

The bombs were justified, they feel, because they saved thousands of American lives that would have been lost in an invasion of the Japanese mainland. And Japanese casualties would have been heavy or even heavier.

Veterans of the Pacific war point to the fierce fighting and heavy losses in the invasions of Iwo Jima and Okinawa as a preview of the heavy toll an invasion of Japan would have taken.

The Japanese were fanatics about fighting to the death throughout the war and even more so on Iwo Jima and Okinawa.

Iwo Jima is about 750 miles south of Tokyo and capturing it, the Japanese well knew, would give the U.S. a strategic air base from which to attack the mainland.

The invasion and battle for Iwo Jima in February, 1945 was one of the bloodiest and most costly of the war: 21,000 American casualties -- 4,500 killed.

Among those to give his life was Marine Pfc. William R. Caddy of Quincy, who pounced on and smothered a Japanese hand grenade to save the lives of his fellow marines. He was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor posthumously for his heroism. And, the William R. Caddy Detachment, Marine Corps League here in Quincy, was named in his honor in 1946.

Then came the battle for Okinawa in March only 350 miles from Japan's doorstep. The price of that real estate came even higher: lives of 12,500 Americans and over 36,000 other casualties. The Japanese paid an ever higher price to lose it: 110,000 killed. And 7,400 captured.

I was on a destroyer (USS Cogswell) assigned to radar picket duty between Okinawa and the Japanese mainland. Our job, and that of other destroyers, was to pick up on radar, Japanese planes coming in from Japan to attack our forces on Okinawa where the fighting was still raging. We would alert our forces,

A YOUNG Charles Sweeney with time out for a cigar in a B-29 around August, 1945

We had been with the aircraft carriers most of the war and they were the main target of Kamikaze (suicide) planes.

Now the destroyers on picket duty were the ones they were diving on, trying to knock out the radar warning network.

A number of destroyers were hit. One of them was the William D. Porter, our radar picket partner June 10. A Kamikaze roared down out of the sky that day and the pilot had to pick one of us as his target. He got through all the gunfire and crashed onto the Porter. The explosive impact sank her. Miraculously without loss of life, it was reported, except for the Japanese pilot.

The Japanese knew that Okinawa was the last stepping stone to their homeland. And they were ready to die to keep us from reaching there.

So when the news of the first bomb at Hiroshima and a description of its awesome power reached us, there was no one aboard our ship saying, "Gee I don't think we should have done that."

And I'm sure there wasn't anyone on any ship in the fleet saying it. Or any soldier or marine on Okinawa or Iwo Jima and any other Pacific island saying it.

The war would soon be over we felt. And when Sweeney dropped the second bomb, that did it.

Before the formal surrender was signed, I was in a scouting party that landed in Yokosuka, south of Tokyo.

There we got an idea as to what an invasion would have been like. In caves we found hidden suicide speed boats. With -- we were amazed to see -- 1935 or 1936 Chevrolet engines.

The Japanese planned to load these boats up with explosives and ram U.S. ships in an invasion that, fortunately, never took place thanks to the two atomic bombs.

It would have been a costly invasion we thought as we examined the boats. And wondered what these suicide boats could have done to the Cogswell and the other destroyers with hulls so thin they are affectionately nicknamed "tin cans."

The Cogswell was anchored in Tokyo Bay, just a few yards away when the Japanese formally surrendered to General Douglas MacArthur aboard the battleship USS Missouri Sept. 2.

We wondered, if there had been an invasion, would we have been alive and there that historic day.

I have yet to hear anyone who was out in the Pacific say we should not have dropped the two bombs.

The fact that it took not one -- but two -- A-bombs to make the Japanese surrender gives you an idea of how ready and willing they were to fight on and to die.

Critics continue to argue it was wrong. But were they out there to see what it was really like?

Maybe some of them wouldn't even be around today to criticize if there had been an invasion. Their fathers or grandfathers-to-be could have been among those who would not have come home. Though I hardly think the offspring of many Pacific war veterans are among those critics.

You seldom hear them mention Pearl Harbor when they argue about Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

I always wonder if they ever think of the more than 2,400 Americans killed and over 1,000 wounded in that infamous sneak attack, Dec. 7, 1941. And of all those sailors still entombed in the battleship Arizona at the bottom of Pearl Harbor.

Those who fought in the Pacific felt back then that under the circumstances of that time, the two bombs were justified. They still feel so today. And, never hope those circumstances rise again.

Those critics will continue to disagree about bombing Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

They're entitled to their opinion.

But when they do speak out on Hiroshima and Nagasaki let's also remember Pearl Harbor.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS POSTCARD is a 1920 view from Great Hill at the end of Houghs Neck. In the left distance is Raccoon Island on which the buildings were used by the Stigmatine Fathers for a summer school and camp. In the right center can be seen an electric trolley approaching the turnaround at the foot of Sea Avenue. Most of the houses were summer cottages at this time as attested by the closed shutters on the windows.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Della Chiesa, McIntyre Clash Over Agenda

By PAUL HAROLD

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa charged that City Council President James McIntyre was playing mayoral politics in refusing to place on the council agenda the west-of-the-tracks development project.

Aug. 9 - 15
1959
42 Years Ago

McIntyre was challenging Della Chiesa in the fall elections and exercised his power as council president to set the agenda for the special council meeting.

Della Chiesa said that by delaying consideration of the $700,000 appropriation item, McIntyre was "playing with Quincy's economic future."

GEAR WORKS UNION VOTES CONTRACT

Nine hundred workers returned to the Gear Works plant in North Quincy following a 7 a.m. meeting at the NQHS auditorium where the new contract was unanimously accepted.

The new two-year contract provided for a six cents an hour raise. The terms were reached following a final nine-hour session with state and federal conciliators. Local 4335 of the United Steel Workers (AFL-CIO) was the bargain unit for the employees.

BASS HOUSE WOOD RESTORES THAYER HOUSE

Wide boards and interior trim from the Bass House, one of the oldest houses in Quincy was being used in the restoration of the Sylvanus Thayer House in Braintree, one of the oldest houses in that community.

The Thayer House was recently relocated from Braintree Highlands to Washington St. opposite town hall. Materials from the Bass House were sought because it was of the same era as the Thayer House.

The Bass House on Granite St. was built in 1711 and was the home of Quincy's earliest and most prominent families. One Bass family member was Ruth Alden, the daughter of John and Priscilla Alden of Plymouth.

The old home was vacant for many years. It was owned by the Grossman Company.

Constanzo Pagnano of Phipps St. was re-elected president of the Granite Workers International Association of America.

READERS FORUM

Quincy Medical Center Deserves Praise And Credit

Editor, The Quincy Sun: Unfortunately, the Quincy Medical Center does not receive the praise and credit, which it rightfully deserves.

As a patient for 25 days at the Quincy Medical Center, I want to express my thanks and gratitude to the doctors, nurses, nurses aides and therapists, who all helped to get me back on the "road to recovery," and to one "special nurse" who brought to my room so much laughter and wonderful smiles to my face, and gave me that little extra "TLC" to help lighten my "Gloom and Doom" existence.

I am ever so grateful for each and every one of these individuals, who touched my life in special ways and who gave me the emotional encouragement, strength and perseverance to make me feel alive again.

Again, thank you from the bottom of my heart and God Bless you all.

Largest Turnout Ever For Chris Peter Blood Drive

Editor, The Quincy Sun: On behalf of everyone connected with the Chris Peter Memorial Blood Drive, we would like to thank you and The Quincy Sun for the coverage you gave us.

We had the largest turnout we have ever had. 151 people came out to donate and 35 units of blood were collected. That may not sound like much, but it is 30 more than our average year.

It is wonderful that The Quincy Sun would give us coverage every year since we have been running the drive. Without you we would still be running the blood drive, but being able to get the word out to the community through your paper helps us to be more successful. By being more successful we can help more people, and that is what it is all about. People reaching out to help other people by giving something that only can come from one person to another.

We enjoy reading your paper and look forward to being in touch with you next year.

Again, thank you for your continued support.

Mayor's Commission On Status Of Women Deserves Credit For Creating After-School Child Care

Editor, The Quincy Sun: The Aug. 2, 2001 edition of The Quincy Sun gave undue credit to the Mayor's Commission on the Family as helping to create Quincy After-School Child Care, Inc. in 1988 during Mayor Frank McCauley's administration.

In fact, it was the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women that researched the need for after-school child care and played a primary role in the founding of Quincy After-School Child Care, Inc.

Quincy women serving on the Commission gave generously of their time and talent to create not only that program, but DOVE, Inc. as well. They deserve tremendous credit for helping to found programs that are successful, highly regarded by the community, and long-lived.

The Commission on the Family was created by Mayor

Sheets and approved by the City Council in 1994. The successes of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women are an inspiration to us as we work to bring new services to families in Quincy.

MR. and MRS. EUGENE RAUX

Mr., Mrs. Eugene Raux Celebrate 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene J. Raux of Quincy, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently with an anniversary Mass at Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy, performed by their son, Lt. Col elect Redmond Raux of the U.S. Air Force.

The celebration was hosted by their four children, Mary Ellen Raux of Atlanta, Ga., Eugene R. Raux of Bay Shore, NY, Rev. Redmond Raux of Cheyenne, WY., and Christine Putnam of Pasadena, Md.

Refreshments were served in the church hall after the ceremony. A dinner followed at the Inn at Bay Point for relatives and friends.

The couple were married June 30, 1951 at Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy, and both are life-long residents of Quincy.

After 44 years, Mr. Raux retired from Hancock Paint Co. where he was executive vice president. He is a life member of the Reserve Officer Association of the United States, a member of the Knights of Columbus and the Sacred Heart ushers club.

Mrs. Raux was employed at the Thomas Crane Public Library for 57 years as a children's librarian retiring in 1999. She is a Prefect at the Sacred Heart Ladies Sodality, a member of the North Quincy Catholic Club, and the Mass Library Association.

Both supervise the Monday night Bingo at Sacred Heart. They also have 10 grandchildren.

Mr., Mrs. William Brownlow Parents Of Son

Michelle Lynch Wed To Stephen Lombardi

A reception at the Ramada Inn, Rockland, followed the recent wedding of Michelle Lynch and Stephen Lombardi, both of Quincy. The Rev. James Robertson performed the ceremony in Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy.

The bride is the niece of Jean Holbert and Paul Wasage, both of Quincy. The groom is the son of Barbara Lombardi of Quincy.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle. Mark Lombardi was Best Man for his brother.

The bride graduated from North Quincy High School and Bridgewater State College. She is employed at State Street.

The groom is a graduate of North Quincy High School and Associate Technical Institute. He is employed at Ellsworth Supply Co., Dorchester.

After a wedding trip to Las Vegas and Hawaii, the couple are living in North Quincy.

CHRISTINE LUCERO and John Stanwich, park rangers at the Adams National Historical Park, 135 Adams St., will take part in the Civil War Days program Aug. 12. The program, which features costumed interpreters and historical re-enactors, is free to the public.

Adams National Historical Park To Host 'Civil War Days'

The Adams National Historical Park will host Civil War Days Sunday, Aug. 12 between the hours of noon and 4 p.m. at its 135 Adams St. location.

The free program offers the public an opportunity to experience what life was like for soldiers and civilians before and during the American Civil War with costumed interpreters and historical re-enactors. Participants can return to the 1860's, cast their lot with the Union or Confederacy, and find themselves in either blue or gray preparing for battle.

Visitors can also meet the members of the 1st Massachusetts Battalion, made up of units from the 1st Massachusetts Cavalry, the 22nd Massachusetts Infantry, and the 54th Massachusetts "Glory!" Brigade, at their camps.

Confederate forces, represented by the 5th Alabama Fife & Drum Corp, will also be on hand.

Festivities for the day will include military skirmishes, Civil War era games, period music, historical photography, and an address by President Abraham Lincoln.

Brian McNamee Candidate Councillor at-Large Not One of the Crowd

Special Interests get heard at City Hall...
But, who speaks up for the rest of us?

Taxpayers in Quincy have a right to be concerned when city hall policies benefit a favored few at the expense of our city's long-term financial interests. We need someone who will represent our interests not special interests.

The current agenda has proven too costly for Quincy...purchasing a hazardous waste site for $3.5 Million to build a new high school, losing $74 Million on a failed shipyard restart, and paying $32 Million to get someone to buy Quincy Hospital. Eventually, we all pay for poor decision making because monies are now not available for basic city services.

It's time to get our city's priorities back on track.

I'll fight for:

- Excellence in our schools at all levels.
- Stabilization of our real estate taxes
- Long overdue street and sidewalk repairs citywide
- Maintaining city services to all neighborhoods
- More citizen involvement in the development of the city
- Comprehensive traffic planning for the city

Quincy College President Gives Workshop At National Conference

Quincy College President Sean Barry delivered a workshop to college administrators at the recent 15th annual National Conference on Student Retention and Recruitment in New Orleans, La.

Scott Conlin, director of Marketing and Research, joined Barry.

More than 100 administrators, most from two-year institutions, attended the presentation where Barry highlighted improvements at the college that were developed from ideas at last year's conference.

"We were honored to be invited to participate and to have our success story presented to colleagues," Barry said. "The college can only benefit from national exposure and interaction with others in similar institutions. We were as pleased to meet them as they were to learn of our experiences."

Barry said the conference not only provided workshops and insights as to what works in higher education, it is also an opportunity to network and collaborate with peers.

The presentation included an analysis of the four top priorities among older students, those over 28, who are typically the Quincy College student. Barry said research conducted by national retention experts Noel-Levitz confirmed many assumptions at Quincy, but provided a more scientific framework for improvements during the past year. Barry also spoke of the creative process at Quincy College where new programs and courses are developed.

"Our fine arts and our medical assistant programs are examples of this new process," Barry said.

Quincy College sent Barry, Conlin, Vice President Robert Baker, who oversees Enrollment Services and Admissions, and Tom De Santes, executive director for Marketing and Recruitment, to the conference. They attended advising, recruiting, retention and Web site development programs while in the "Big Easy." Parts of the expenses were covered by federal grant monies for professional development.

"We were particularly interested in retention efforts, and how other two-year colleges worked through that issue with part-time students," Barry said. "Our marketing team wanted to learn about Web sites and student advising as retention tools. We came away from the program with a full list of ideas and hope to incorporate those concepts into our planning for this year."

Some of the stereotypes of two-year colleges have been shattered, Barry said.

"We're not just career training and professional programs, we have exceptional liberal arts programs with our graduates transferring to four-year institutions at rates higher than national averages," he said. "Even more remarkable are the numbers of students who take more than three courses at Quincy and transfer those credits to their own college or university."

"There are many 'types' of Quincy College students," Barry explained. "Those who earn a degree or certificate, and those who come to us for a few courses. To try and characterize us as 'just a nursing school' or 'computers and business' is selling us short. Any potential consumer can come to Quincy College and find a multitude of high-quality, affordable programs."

However, Barry is quick to note that support for these professional development programs comes from the Quincy College Board of Governors.

"President Barry, from the first moment he assumed the presidency, has committed the institution to the values of a learning organization," said Theresa Lord-Piatelli, chair of the Quincy College Board of Governors. "Every employee has been challenged to develop their skills and to seek out learning opportunities."

"For individuals early in their careers, these skill-building exercises can be life-shaping and enormously valuable. As a board, we believe that when our employees make presentations at national conferences, or participate in training with colleagues from higher education, Quincy College's reputation is enhanced, and, more importantly, we highlight our values as an institution."

A Rooming House Or Apartment LaRaia Property To Be Re-Inspected By Board

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

A missing letter, a question of whether or not a building on Washington Street is a rooming house owned by Joseph LaRaia, and an alleged disgruntled ex tenant's complaint all added up to the License Board scheduling another inspection at the site.

LaRaia, who originally was going to attend an assessor's seminar in Amherst, but said he decided to go to the License Board meeting instead.

He said that the subject has become a "run away horse" with coverage from the media.

He explained to the board that he has only six persons living in the house, which he does not refer to as a "rooming house". Thus he said he did not think that meant having to have a sprinkler system.

A letter from Chairman Joseph Shea to LaRaia dated April 5 never arrived according to LaRaia. Shea gave him a copy and signed it again at the meeting.

In the letter Shea said the License Board would be agreeable to any solutions that the board and LaRaia could agree to.

Shea said the whole subject of sprinkler came up when he received a complaint stating that the rooming house was unlicensed and forwarded the complaint to the Fire Department. Capt. Tom Lyons, of the Fire Prevention Bureau conducted an inspection, one in which LaRaia said there was no permission from the tenants.

LaRaia said the disgruntled tenant was evicted after living at his place for three weeks. LaRaia said he extended himself by suggesting she go to Fr. Bill's Place. He said the answer she gave him "floored him" when she said "I've been barred from Fr. Bill's Place."

The bottom line through all of the discussion was whether or not LaRaia should have had a sprinkler system installed at the premises.

Shea cited a 1993 adoption of requiring a sprinkler system where more than six persons unrelated are living.

According to LaRaia, there are two separate apartments in the two family home on Washington Street and that does not require a sprinkler.

Health Inspector Jane Gallahue said the board has to have a definition of what constitutes a rooming house. Gallahue said the Health Department responds to all complaints within four or five days.

Board members all agreed to go on another inspection with Lyons. When asked when it was convenient, LaRaia said as early as next week would be available.

At one point when LaRaia wanted to cite the "real reason" for all of this, Shea stopped him short to defend the actions of the Fire Department who conducted the inspection. Shea read correspondence back and forth from him and LaRaia as well as when the adoption of the sprinkler law went into effect. LaRaia, who said he was "defending my reputation" said if the license board deemed it necessary to have a sprinkler he would it would "double my income" but then added he has plans to sell the building.

LaRaia also accused another assessor of harassing him because his assessment went up $125,000 and LaRaia's did not.

Shea said public officials are "under scrutiny" more than other individuals and that he could relate to LaRaia's concerns.

Denis Tardo Candidate For Councillor At Large

DENIS TARDO

Denis F. Tardo announces his candidacy for City Councillor-at-Large.

Tardo, a member of the Quincy Board of Voter Registrars, said that, if elected to the seat on the open at-large council, he would represent all the people of Quincy and plans to serve as an arbitrator between residents and the bureaucracies of city government.

Tardo said his priorities include the serenity and quality of life for Quincy's seniors. He said he advocates "tenancy for life leases" for all seniors living on fixed income.

"We must provide affordable housing for every resident, but most importantly for the senior members of our community," HE said, "some have sold everything they own, including their family home, and I plan to advocate on their behalf."

Other issues he plans to address he said, include the professional inefficiencies of the new enhanced 911-phone system, the staffing and equipment of the police and fire departments, the cleanliness and condition of city streets and sidewalks, the placement of a new high schools, downtown and neighborhood revitalization as well as increased usability and function of recreational facilities throughout the city.

In his official announcement Tardo said:

"The City of Quincy is a community rich in history, enhanced with the finest people in the world, diversified with numerous neighborhoods, Quincy is unified with a superior educational system and has limitless potential for practical improvements.

"The perseverance and enhancement of the quality of life must be a priority of city government. The proposals I deem to be necessary are possible are cost effective.

"When we address affordable housing for example, we should start with extended term leases. As a practical matter a one-year lease is an enticement to negatively alter the relationship of the parties. For our senior housing residents we should have a lease for life available, with a locked in rental fee based on the fixed income of the tenant.

"We need to adjust the building code to allow owner occupied residents to obtain the permits required to add in-law apartments to the family home. This will allow families to remain together and continue to reside in Quincy.

"The planning department must be reorganized to reflect the growing need of development in the city. It is imperative this agency be organized to implement and coordinate all new development and improvement. This would include the continuing need to revitalize downtown, attract business and make improvement to our neighborhoods.

"Increased development mandates traffic alterations. Population expansion also mandate overhauling city services. We must address the needs of the public agencies within the city. The danger of fire department ment apparatus and personnel is essential.

"Street repairs are necessary throughout the city. These problems must be addressed. The Department of Public Works' administrative decision to let street and sidewalk problems linger until they become so large we become eligible for state or federal funds, is not conducive to the quality of life we expect. We are a city of pride, not deficiency.

"To improve the cleanliness of our streets we must review the trash collection contract. We must put into effect a plan for same day trash pick up. This plan will delay trash collection until after morning traffic and allow residence to place trash barrels out for pick up between the hours of 7 and 9 a.m. the same day of collection.

"The future of our city and country is dependent on the youth of our community. As generations before them, our young citizens deserve the resources and tools needed to grow to healthy adults.

"Outdoor recreation facilities must be updated to include bicycle and skateboard course. I plan to establish an advisory board comprised of the elected student body officers to contribute the ideas and wishes of the youth.

"In the search for a site to locate a new high school, I recommend the land on Southern Artery on the corner of Pond Street. This land is adjacent to the Pond Street Playground and accessible to Washington Street. This site would expedite the construction process and would qualify for the 90 percent reimbursement from the state.

"Let's move forward together. Let's combine our history with a positive vision for the future. Let's work together to elect me as one of your three councillors-at-large and let me be your friend on the council."

Second Bid For Restaurant License Fails

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Despite a unanimous vote in the spring made by the License Board to deny the request for a common victualer license to Carols Rocha, owner of the Copacabana Self Service, 134 Washington St., Atty. Tom Williams appealed to the board to approve the license.

Chairman Joseph Shea, in giving background on the request stated that even the Chamber of Commerce and Quincy 2000 was "taken back by our vote."

Shea said he didn't think anything had changed since the last meeting. At that time board members cited traffic and lack of parking.

Williams said the site has 18 parking spaces and said he was at the X & O Restaurant over the weekend where 200 persons attended and there "were no parking spaces."

Williams said Rocha has spent $32,000 to "clean up a dump" renovating the former Pizza place and has paid $1,700 a month rent for seven months.

The owner of the building, Michael DiStasio said he was "surprised at the board's vote" since the site has been a restaurant for more than 30 years.

He said he needs to have a restaurant there in order to meet his hefty tax bill of $25,000 a year.

He said the last tenant owed him $9,000 and said he doesn't believe that traffic is the issue since there has never been an accident there.

He asked the board to reconsider their decision and grant the license.

Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue said that when a business opens and then "can't seem to survive", the place usually begins to deteriorate as she said is almost a "pattern throughout the city."

Shea said there have been many complaints of cars double parking in the area.

Since no motion was made by the board, Shea concluded the meeting, thus automatically rejecting the request.

Iacobucci Withdraws

Iacobucci, associate director of the South Coastal Work Force Investment Board.

Both Mary Collins, a top vote-getting former school committee member and county commissioner, and Dennis Dockham took out nomination papers but decided not to file them.

In his statement explaining his withdrawal, Iacobucci said:

"I was running for the School Committee because of my concern for several issues that included the location of the new Quincy High School and the selection of a new school superintendent. With the recent decisions of the Mayor and School Committee, these issues, whether you agree or disagree, have been resolved. Therefore, I am withdrawing my candidacy for School Committee at this time.

"My campaign committee will remain active and it will continue with fund-raising efforts so that if issues that I feel strongly about present themselves in the future, I will not hesitate to speak out and to run."

"I am grateful to all those who have expressed support for my candidacy for School Committee and especially for the endorsements of the AFL-CIO Norfolk Central Labor Council and the South Shore Building Trades Council," he said. "However, without the demands of a campaign, I can now look forward to spending more time with my wife, teen-age daughter and two young sons."

Technology Is No Replacement For Face-To-Face Customer Service

By CAROL BULMAN,
President

Conway Financial Services

My husband, Michael, recently attended a leadership program sponsored by his employer, Citizens Bank. As he shared his thoughts with me, I realized some of what he learned there can be applied to my own business of mortgage financing.

The seminar talked about how e-mail and other technologies have become a huge part of how we communicate with our customers and our co-workers today. Although we would all agree technology is great, the speaker pointed out that we cannot lose sight of the importance of personal communications in our daily business dealings. Personal communications would include both face-to-face contact as well as telephone contact.

Think about you own business. Maybe you are trying to please a customer, and, in doing so, you need something from an individual in another department. You call the person and they are happy to help. Think about why that person wants to assist you. Is it because they really want to help that customer? Maybe, but more than likely they want to please you. They know you. They have worked with you for years. They like you. They want to help you do a better job.

These types of relationships with our co-workers come as a result of getting to know one another at the water cooler, sharing a personal story at the company picnic, working through a stressful deal together. These relationships are not built through the printed word (via e-mail) because the emotional intent cannot be accurately conveyed or received.

Have you ever found yourself in a situation where you have sent an e-mail that was incorrectly interpreted by the recipient because they "read it wrong"? If that has happened to you, chances are it will happen to your customers as you attempt to e-mail your needs and wants. There can be no smile, except for the smiley faces that we attempt to draw with colons and parentheses on our keyboard. There can be no laughter, except for the "lol" (laughing out loud) abbreviation some people use in email. There cannot be empathy or understanding unless you are amazingly articulate with the written word.

This is not to say we should discount the use of e-mail in our dealings, but it does point to the need for physical and personal contact in order to build successful business relationships.

So, how does this apply to the mortgage business?

An article I recently read outlined the results of an online survey of 1,005 Internet users who obtained or refinanced a mortgage in the year 2000. The survey found nearly three-quarters of them used the Internet to check interest rates; 66 percent used it to obtain information; 55.5 percent used it to obtain information about getting a loan; and 32 percent found a lender online. But of that number, just 17.1 percent applied for their mortgage online, and a low of 7.1 percent actually closed the loan online.

Why is that number so low? This study shows that customers today will utilize the Internet for gathering information about the mortgage transaction and studying interest rates and mortgage programs. They may even fill out the mortgage application online when it is convenient for them, but, ultimately, the mortgage process still calls for personal consultation and communication.

I use e-mail frequently, but if there is a need to talk to someone about something delicate, complicated or consultative, there is nothing like an old-fashioned, face-to-face conversation. And from what the statistics show, our customers require the same when it comes to one of the largest and most emotional moves of their life — buying a home.

So, I urge you to visit our Web site, www.conwayfinancial.com, and study our rates, find out about mortgage products and maybe even fill out your mortgage application. But shortly after you click that "submit" button, expect a phone call from us saying, "Thanks for thinking of Conway Financial, and can we talk?"

Scituate resident Carol Bulman is chair of the Massachusetts Mortgage Association, the trade organization of the Bay State's mortgage brokers. Bulman also is president of Norwell-based Conway Financial Services. If you have any questions about home financing issues, call CFS at 781-681-9400 or 888-831-1181.

Tackling Termites: Advice From The Experts

(NAPS) — A new video is educating homeowners with prevention tips and treatment options for termite infestation. The video features experts and information from the University of Georgia's Structural Pest Control Training Center.

According to the tape, termites cost Americans approximately $1.7 billion a year — and your home may be a target.

Most infested homes are attacked by subterranean termites. These highly social insects live in organized colonies. On average there are 13 to 14 subterranean termite colonies per acre, which means that a typical home may easily have three to four colonies situated around it.

Problems arise when homes are constructed on land that has been inhabited by termites for centuries. Termites need to feed on wood for survival and see homes as a feast in their search for the ultimate dining pleasure. Extreme destruction occurs when termites swarm, an effort that perpetuates the species, and results in the devastation of homes.

Dr. Harlan Feese, entomologist and vice president, technical services at Orkin Pest Control applauds the video. "Whether they are building a new home or evaluating their current home treatment, people should be aware of the many kinds of construction practices that perpetuate termites," he said. "To protect your investment, turn to this video for some solid reminders that a determined termite could be eating away at your future."

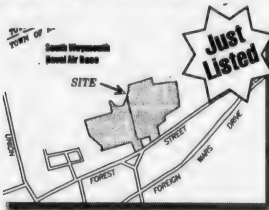

The video demonstrates some of the following tips:

- Move firewood away from the home;
- Eliminate excessive moisture in and around crawl spaces;
- Investigate concrete slab construction around plumbing areas;
- Beware of the common practice of filling porches with dirt/debris; and
- Consider a bait and monitoring system in addition to barrier treatment.

The video, "Tackling Termites: Advice from The Experts," is available by calling 1-800-563-HOUSE or by visiting the ORKIN Website at www.orkin.com.

Over 800 Attend FoodFest Raises Over $200,000 For Fr. Bill's Place

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE on the dessert table is the attraction for these attractive women at the annual FoodFest & Auction for Father Bill's Place.

JACK CONWAY (left) founder and CEO of the real estate company, and Dick Cahill, the president of the firm, flank Father Bill McCarthy at the FoodFest & Auction for Father Bill's Place.

The 7th annual Food Fest & Auction brought more than 200,000 very welcome dollars to Father Bill's Place, the emergency shelter for the homeless in Quincy.

"We're still trying to figure out how much," said John Yazwinski, the shelter director. "There should be over $200,000 when expenses are deducted. Last year it was $175,000."

"This comes at a very critical time when we are faced with state budget cuts. The $200,000 could not come at a better time. This is our big fund-raiser of the year."

The state annually provided about 60 per cent of the funding for Father Bill's Place which nightly offers a warm meal and shelter for 130 homeless men and women on a budget of $500,000.

More than 800 people turned out for the foodfest, which was highlighted by culinary creations served from booths set up by some 35 South Shore restaurants.

A car, a 2001 Midnight Blue Ford Taurus LX valued at $22,000 was raffled off with 1,000 tickets sold at $50 apiece. It was won by Howard Crowley of Quincy.

The centerpiece of the auction, which brought in $50,000 or $10,000 more than last year, was a rare photo of Ted Williams helping Frank Sinatra into a Red Sox jacket.

The photo was taken in 1983 by Quincy photographer Harry Brett, who has never permitted it to be published. In it, Williams is shown wearing a tie, a rare occasion in itself.

The photo sold for $4,500.

An extra large sneaker, worn and autographed by 7-foot Shaquille O'Neal of the Los Angeles Lakers, went for $950 and dinner with Uncle Sam Rounseville anywhere in Massachusetts drew $650.

Last year it was auctioned off for $1,100 but it turned out to be a simple donation.

"Nobody wanted to go with me," said Uncle Sam.

The event was held at the Summer House in Marina Bay with Scott Wahle of Hingham, the WBZ-TV Channel 4 Morning News anchor, as honorary chairman and auctioneer.

RARE PHOTO of Ted Williams (wearing a string tie) and Frank Sinatra, taken in 1983 by Harry Brett, is displayed by Uncle Sam for Scott Wahle, the honorary chairman of the FoodFest & Auction for Father Bill's Place. The photo brought $4,500 at auction.

A 250-POUND white cake in the shape of a lobster, enough for 1,000 servings, is the centerpiece of the dessert table at the FoodFest & Auction for Father Bill's Place. It was baked for the occasion by Montillo's Bakery.

City Joins TRIAD Senior Safety Program

Quincy recently became the 24th Norfolk County community to sign a TRIAD agreement, bringing the senior citizen safety program to the city.

With 55 senior citizens in attendance at O'Brien Towers in Germantown, Sheriff Michael Bellotti announced the program and signed an agreement with Mayor James Sheets, Acting Police Chief William Falco, Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, Council on Aging Director Thomas Clasby, and Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond.

TRIAD is a national organization run locally by county sheriffs in cooperation with local police and fire departments as well as community leaders and support services such as the Council on Aging.

There are approximately 800 TRIADs in operation across the United States.

Bellotti began the Norfolk County Sheriff's program in January, 2000 and gives $1,000 in start-up money to each community that signs a TRIAD agreement.

After signing the TRIAD agreement Bellotti presented a check for $1,000 to the city of Quincy.

Each TRIAD community organizes a volunteer senior citizen group called a "SALT Council" (Seniors and Law Enforcement Together) to run the program.

In Quincy, TRIAD will operate as a subcommittee of the Council on Aging. John Molloy has been named chairman of Quincy TRIAD.

TRIAD is a three-way partnership between senior citizens, law enforcement, and senior support services that works to reduce the victimization of seniors and enhance their awareness of community services.

TRIAD offers safety programs such as "Are You O.K.?" telephone reassurance, "File of Life" emergency medical cards, "Flashing Beacon Light" home identification, home visits for shut-ins, and Crime Prevention seminars.

O'BRIEN TOWERS in Germantown was the site of the recent signing of a TRIAD agreement between the city of Quincy and Norfolk County, with the Sheriff's Office donating $1,000 in start-up funds for the program. ## City Joins TRIAD Senior Safety Program

Quincy recently became the 24th Norfolk County community to sign a TRIAD agreement, bringing the senior citizen safety program to the city.

With 55 senior citizens in attendance at O'Brien Towers in Germantown, Sheriff Michael Bellotti announced the program and signed an agreement with Mayor James Sheets, Acting Police Chief William Falco, Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, Council on Aging Director Thomas Clasby, and Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond.

TRIAD is a national organization run locally by county sheriffs in cooperation with local police and fire departments as well as community leaders and support services such as the Council on Aging.

There are approximately 800 TRIADs in operation across the United States.

Bellotti began the Norfolk County Sheriff's program in January, 2000 and gives $1,000 in start-up money to each community that signs a TRIAD agreement.

After signing the TRIAD agreement Bellotti presented a check for $1,000 to the city of Quincy.

Each TRIAD community organizes a volunteer senior citizen group called a "SALT Council" (Seniors and Law Enforcement Together) to run the program.

In Quincy, TRIAD will operate as a subcommittee of the Council on Aging. John Molloy has been named chairman of Quincy TRIAD.

TRIAD is a three-way partnership between senior citizens, law enforcement, and senior support services that works to reduce the victimization of seniors and enhance their awareness of community services.

TRIAD offers safety programs such as "Are You O.K.?" telephone reassurance, "File of Life" emergency medical cards, "Flashing Beacon Light" home identification, home visits for shut-ins, and Crime Prevention seminars.

O'BRIEN TOWERS in Germantown was the site of the recent signing of a TRIAD agreement between the city of Quincy and Norfolk County, with the Sheriff's Office donating $1,000 in start-up funds for the program. ## New Effort Underway For Mini-Fenway Park Project

Former Boston Red Sox infielder Tim Naehring's plan to build a Little Fenway Park, complete with a Green Monster, on MDC parkland in Quincy, announced with such fanfare three years ago, is dead.

But all is not lost. The idea is being revived by Mini-Fenway Park, Inc., an affiliate of the South Shore and Neponset Valley Community Foundation.

Naehring, whose baseball career ended with an injury, said the injury and his departure from Boston to work for the Cincinnati Reds has rendered impossible to work on the Little Fenway project. "When this project began," he said, "I was in the heart of my professional baseball career with the Boston Red Sox."

"With careful review and much consideration of the magnitude of this project, we decided in the best interests of all those involved and the betterment of the project, not to build Little Fenway at that time with my absence."

Naehring said he is excited that another group may be able to jump start the project.

Mini-Fenway Park, Inc., headed by Ron Iacobucci, president of the South Shore and Neponset Valley Community Foundation, has already hired an architect, Sheskey Architects of Quincy, and expects a rendering of the new plan in a matter of weeks.

Right now, said Iacobucci, the group is seeking authorization from the legislature to lease 12 acres of MDC land, the same authorization that had been given to Athletes Reaching Out, Naehring's non-profit organization.

Given the delays, it's unlikely that work on the project will begin at the earliest in 2003. It may cost as much as $5 million, said Iacobucci. He declined to discuss the possible source of the funding.

Iacobucci said he is hopeful that, if a new Fenway Park is built in Boston, some of the current features (dugouts, bullpens, etc.) will find a home of the Mini-Fenway in Quincy.

He said the size of the playing field, which will serve the boys of the area as a baseball field and the girls as a softball field, will be about half the size of the real Fenway.

"This is actually going to be a complete replication of Fenway Park," he said. "It's going to serve all the kids in the area. It's something that's going to make a big difference."

Mayor James Sheets said the city still wants the project to be built.

"To be very honest with you, after word came down that Naehring was leaving, I felt it would be difficult for him, given the fact that he wouldn't be living in Quincy or Boston," he said.

"Interest just began to wane. There was no formal or official ending of the plans. I'm very angry about it. I wish it hadn't happened but I understand it."

"The story is that Naehring's group has not done anything," said Sen. Michael Morrissey. "They never really got off the ground. They never consummated the lease."

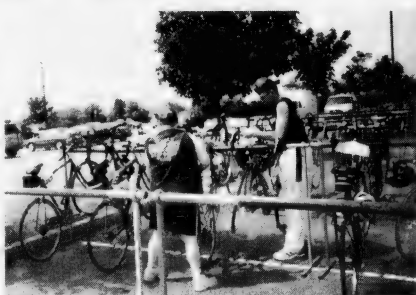

"It doesn't mean the idea's bad. It just means that the group that sought to do this has either lost interest or has moved on to other projects."

Quincy Emergency Management Commended For Assisting Mass Getaway MS Bike Tour

The Director of Volunteers for the Central New England Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society has commended the Quincy Emergency Management Agency for its efforts at the recent Mass Getaway MS Bike Tour.

The bike tour, which had 1,064 cyclists participating, raised $1 million to benefit MS research, which is dedicated to finding the cause and cure for MS, and will fund superior Chapter programs that are available to individuals and families coping with MS.

cyclists, racked 1,064 cycles or unloaded 2,000 pieces of luggage without all of your help. You and your group are unbelievable. What a dedicated and hard working group of young men and women.

"This is an organization that you have to be very proud of. I know that I am. No matter what the group was asked to do, they always responded in a very polite manner and always with a smile. I had a great time working side by side with everyone. Even in the pouring rain while getting pelted by hail."

"Again, thank you very much for making this year's Great Mass Getaway a huge success. This was the biggest and best tour in our chapter's history. The tour could not have happened without you. I look forward to working with you again."

Double Sessions For NQ Boys Soccer Start Aug. 27

Double-session practices for the North Quincy High School boys' soccer team will begin Monday, Aug. 27 at 8:30 a.m. at Bishop Field.

Previous soccer experience is not mandatory, but a reasonable level of general athletic ability is required.

All freshmen interested in playing, who have not yet been contacted, should call head coach Robert Dano at 617-773-9087 immediately.

All players must have a current physician's examination on file in order to practice or play. School-sponsored examinations will be offered today (Thursday) at North Quincy High School, with a make-up Monday, Aug. 13 at Quincy High School. In both cases, athletes should report to the nurse's office between 8 a.m. and noon.

Cowboys Disband From Eastern Football

The Eastern Football League's Boston Cowboys were granted an emergency leave of absence for the remainder of the 2001 EFL season, league officials announced Sunday.

"Citing concern for his team's safety due to low player numbers, [head coach] Bob DeVoe expressed sadness at the need to request, but is looking forward to rebuilding the team during the offseason and coming back full-force in 2002," the league explained in a one-paragraph press release.

John Flibotte Graduates From Harvard College

John Joseph Flibotte of Quincy recently graduated from Harvard College with a bachelor's degree, magna cum laude, in biology.

Flibotte, who attended Boston College High School, is the son of Joseph E. Flibotte and Eileen A. Flibotte of Quincy.

He was active in extracurricular activities at Harvard, including An Evening with Champions.

The disbandment now leaves 12 teams in the EFL, six in both the Eastern and Northern conferences. There were supposed to be 14 teams this season when the EFL added the Eastern Mass. Mavericks in the offseason. But the Mavericks dropped out before the start of the regular season.

The Cowboys had an 0-3 record this season in which they were outscored, 82-39. Two of their those losses came against the Quincy Granite. Quincy hung on for a 13-6 victory in the season opener and then defeated Boston, 30-20, in Week 4.

Running Game Focus For Perfect, Play-off Bound Granite

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy Granite could not have painted a better scenario than this: A perfect record and a playoff berth heading into this week's bye.

However, as they prepare for a more difficult second half of the season — two games on the road against the Middleboro Cobras (4-1) and Mass Havoc (2-1) — there are still a lot of improvements to be made.

Case in point: Last Saturday's anything-but-pretty, 16-13 victory over the Clinton Irish Blizzard (1-2) at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Thanks to a 16-point second quarter, Quincy was able to hold on for the postseason-clinching win, despite a slew of penalties, an anemic offense and a fourth-quarter collapse.

"Tough game," said head coach Ken McPhee. "We didn't play well at all. We didn't generate any offense. We had about 50 total yards. But, hey, we found a way to win. Defensively we played well. Bottom line is we scored enough points to win. We're 5-0 and in the playoffs."

And the Quincy franchise has made the playoffs all three years in existence. In its inaugural season of semi-pro football in 1999, it reached the Division Championship game as members of the New England Football League. In its first year with the EFL last season, it lost to Middleboro in the first round.

This season, the Granite would like nothing better than to win a few more games to avoid drawing a powerhouse in the opening round. But if they turn in offensive outings like last week, then it will be a long second half to the season.

"We have to run the ball a lot better," McPhee said. "We were missing some players on the offensive line and when they're back I think we'll be OK."

In the Clinton game, quarterback Mike Thomas returned from an ankle injury and split time with Liam Higgins, alternating quarters. Thomas, who hadn't played since the win over the Boston Cowboys in the season opener, took the snaps in the second and fourth quarters.

In the second, Thomas provided the only offensive spark on the night, tossing his third TD pass of the season, a 35-yard strike to wideout Dwayne Williams (5 TDs) for a 7-0 lead.

Quincy is fortunate to have two solid, capable signal-callers on the sideline, something most teams in the league would die for. Remarkably, there is no controversy as both players have put their egos aside and will continue to split the duties.

"They both deserve to play," McPhee said. "Right now, they'll be splitting time and they're both comfortable with that. But if there is a situation where one of them gets a hot hand, then we'll go with him."

Cornback Troy Parks intercepted a pass from Clinton quarterback Stacy Moore and returned it 58 yards for a touchdown to increase Quincy's lead to 13-0. Matt Kulesza's extra point was blocked. The league took notice of Park's spectacular play, rewarding him with EFC Defensive Player of the Week honors.

Parks has been playing like Primetime lately, not only shutting down opposing receivers, but he has also scored a touchdown in three straight games. Three weeks ago he raced 60 yards for a score on a pass from Kulesza off a fake punt and two weeks ago he had an 80-yard kickoff return for touchdown.

Quincy had an excellent chance to score another touchdown in the second after it recovered a fumble at the Clinton 20, but the offense couldn't produce in the red zone and Quincy had to settle for Kulesza's 30-yard field goal and a 16-0 lead at the half.

In the second half, while the Granite continued to struggle to move the chains, Clinton was able to hang around and it finally got on the board in the final frame. Moore scored on a 1-yard run and then he tossed a 16-yard TD pass to wideout Jamal Chatman to pull within three, 16-13. Todd Daskowski missed the extra point.

Clinton almost pulled off an amazing fourth-quarter comeback on its final drive. Luckily for Quincy, a wide-open receiver dropped the go-ahead touchdown in the end zone and the tying field goal went wide left as time expired.

"They were strong defensively," McPhee said. "Their linebackers flew around like wild banshees. By far, they are the best team we have faced so far this year."

Travel All-Star Team Reaches Tourney Final

Quincy Youth Baseball's 9-year-old Travel All-Star Team recently finished runner-up at the "Li'l Blues Tournament" in Canton.

Having completed their last year in QYB's Junior Farm League, the 9 year olds are dreaming about being drafted by their favorite Little League team next year. Led by coaches Dan Cahalan and Kyle Ainsley, they hope to polish their skills with a great summer of games.

Quincy couldn't have asked for a better start. It made a great run to reach the finals of the Canton tournament, where it ultimately fell to Norwood National in a rematch from earlier round action.

Quincy started the tournament by waiting out a heavy downpour and repairs to the field, but showed grand gamesmanship by focusing all the way through an easy opening round and a hard fought, second-round win.

Game 3 was a little wild with a critical come-from-behind win charged by heads-up play, great hustle on the base paths and challenging the other team's readiness. Game 4 brought a tough challenge as Norwood National jumped out to an early lead, but Quincy, backed by excellent pitching and smart fielding, showed great courage to pull out the win.

Throughout the tournament, Quincy received outstanding pitching from John Ainsley, Steve Cahalan, Joe Edgerly, Sean Harrington and Kevin Magoon. Slick infield play was led by Tommy Cooper, Devin Hudson, Ryan Louis, Ryan O'Toole, Ainsley, Cahalan, Edgerly, Harrington and Magoon. Brendan Deasy, Brian Donaghey, Dillon Duncan, John Hanley and Evan Verhault made some big time, heads-up plays in the outfield.

Travel A Team Receives Verizon Grants

The Quincy Youth Baseball 11-year-old Travel A Team received two grants for the sum of $1,000 from Verizon Foundation, the philanthropic arm of Verizon Communications, as part of its Volunteer Incentive Program.

The program recognizes Verizon employees who volunteer at non-profit organizations in their communities. Assistant coaches Tom Conley and Stephen Connolly, employees at Verizon, each received a $500 grant for their volunteerism with Quincy Youth Baseball.

"Our Volunteer Incentive Program encourages and rewards employee participation in community affairs and provides much-needed support for non-profit organizations," said Soraya Rodriguez, director of employee and community volunteerism for Verizon Foundation.

CLEANING YOUR WHEELS

While alloy wheels are light and attractive, they require some maintenance. If road grime and brake dust are allowed to accumulate, alloy wheels may become stained and discolored. On anodized wheels, which exhibit a form of metal plating that leaves a colonized patina on exterior surfaces, the damage caused by lack of maintenance can result in permanent damage. With this in mind, vehicle owners are advised to hose down their alloy wheels with cold water, on a weekly basis, using a spray-on wheel cleaner specifically formulated for the type of wheels they have. If necessary, scrub with a soft cloth or brush. Do not spray chemical cleaners or cold water on hot alloy rims. Allow them to cool before washing. It is important to keep your car clean and in top operating condition. If you need maintenance or repairs, don't hesitate and bring your car to us. At LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO we want you to be well informed about every system in your car. Our friendly, professional, ASE Certified service staff here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550) will gladly answer all your questions. Give us a try. We'll earn your trust! We're "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." We are also your local source for propane for grills, motor homes and converted vehicles. Sunoco and most major credit cards honored.

HINT: While brake pad dust shields may cut down on brake dust buildup on alloy wheels, they may cause the brakes to overheat and, consequently, warp rotors.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Walking To Fitness: A Resolution To Get Fit

Every day, over 70 million Americans lace up their sneakers and take to the roads, walking off pounds and into a healthy life. Starting and maintaining a personal exercise program is not always easy, especially if you aren't used to working out. But it is well worth the effort.

Your health will improve in a number of ways: you'll lose weight, lower your blood pressure, and build up your immunity and physical endurance.

For many, it is a daunting task to find an exercise program they will enjoy enough to continue and eventually reap the benefits. Walking is undoubtedly the most sensible and use-friendly exercise option out there. Anybody can do it, and it costs next to nothing, just a solid pair of walking shoes and the motivation to better your personal health.

Experts at Spaulding Rehabilitation Hospital in Boston have some useful advice to those considering designing their own exercise program.

Fitness Evaluation

If you have been relatively sedentary for a good portion of your life, it would be to your benefit to have a stress test and fitness evaluation prior to starting any consistent physical activity. Both of these tests will give you a better sense of your current physical status and determine the most appropriate exercise program for you. To participate in either of these tests, you can consult your primary care physician or go to a local rehabilitation hospital or a university's physiology department.

How Much Is Enough?

If you are serious about starting a walking program and losing weight is one of your goals, it is recommended you walk at a brisk, vigorous pace to attain an effective cardiovascular workout. Spaulding therapists suggest that you walk three to four miles, five times weekly, at your target heart rate. The average walker can complete three miles in approximately 45 minutes. Again, this is the average; for beginners, it is better to start off walking one mile in 15 minutes until you build up your strength.

Measuring Your Fitness

While exercising, you should also be aware of your target heart rate and your pulse rate (the energy you expend). To determine your maximum heart rate, you can perform a simple calculation: subtract your age from the number 220 (what experts say is the absolute maximum heart rate for any person). If you're 40 years old, your maximum heart rate is 180 (220 - 40 = 180). Typically, to be most productive, the intensity of your walk should be between 60 and 80 percent of your maximum heart rate (180 x .60 = 108; 180 x .80 = 144). By achieving a heart rate between 108 and 144 beats per minute (bpm), this 40-year-old individual would burn a large amount of fat and build his cardio strength.

The best intensity indicator is your pulse rate, which should be taken during and after your workout. Pulse rate monitors are available to obtain an accurate assessment of your heart rate, but a cheaper method is to do it yourself. Take your pointer and middle finger and place it either on your wrist or right below your jawbone to feel your pulse. Count the beats for 10 seconds and multiply this number by six to get your bpm. Measure this number against your target heart rate and you can get a sense of how effective your walk was.

What Is The Best Time To Exercise

There is no definitive time during the day at which you must go walking. Ultimately, it comes down to what is best for your schedule. One thing most experts agree on is that you should wait up to four hours after a large, heavy meal, as the digestion process uses blood supply necessary for your muscles. After a lighter meal, wait around 90 minutes to two hours. Other factors to consider are the weather conditions in your area and the goals of your exercise program. If you want to lose weight, it has been recommended to walk later in the evening, as there is proof that it counteracts weight gain.

Keep Yourself Motivated

When you first begin your personal walking program, you may find it difficult to keep yourself motivated enough to continue. There are some little things you can do to keep your spirits up and your feet moving.

- Set realistic goals. Make sure they are things you know you are capable of accomplishing. There is no sense in setting yourself up for failure. You will find your motivation increasing as you approach and achieve each goal.

- Seek out the support of family and friends.

- Try to find a walking buddy.

- Practice relaxation techniques before you go out for your walk.

- Find interesting and scenic places to walk: parks, forest trails, quiet neighborhoods.

- Set aside 30-45 minutes every day for your exercise; as you continue the program it will become part of your daily routine.

Physical Activity, Better Eating Key To Good Health

Would you like to have more energy, reduce stress and tone your body? Feel good and improve your health in many ways by moving more and eating better, say experts from the National Institute of Health.

When you start moving more, make sure you fuel your body with healthy foods. As you begin to make small changes in your eating habits, try these time-saving tips:

- Buy foods that are easy to prepare, like pasta, tuna or rice and beans.
- Plan ahead and cook enough to last. Leftovers say time and money.

- Buy frozen or canned vegetables and canned fruit packaged in juice.

For more information on fitting healthy habits into your hectic family schedule, call 1-877-946-4627. Some brochures are written specifically for young women and mature women.

'Polar Expedition' At The Lord's Planting

The Lord's Planting (Evangelical Church of the Atlantic, Quincy Foursquare Church), 65 Newbury Ave., North Quincy, invites children to participate in its "Polar Expedition" program.

"Our 'Polar Expedition' program will provide fun, memorable Bible-learning activities for kids of all ages," said Pastor Bill Donahue.

"Each day, kids will sing catchy songs, play teamwork-building games, nibble tasty treats from Igloo Eats, dig into Bible adventures, and create Cool Crafts they'll take home and play with all summer long," Donahue said.

"'Polar Expedition' is an exciting way for kids to discover that Jesus' love is cool," Pastor Bill said. "Kids will join nearly a million children in North America and take part in a hands-on mission project that will reach needy children across the globe."

"We'll conclude each day with a festive Ice Station Celebration that gets everyone involved in celebrating what they've learned. Family members and friends are encouraged to join us daily for this special time at 8:30 p.m."

Polar Expedition meets Thursdays Thursday through Aug. 30, from 6:30 to 8:45 p.m., at the Lord's Planting, 65 Newbury Ave.

For more information, call 617-847-4444.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Today we are constantly assured that we have more leisure time than our "production-oriented" ancestors, most of whose waking hours were supposedly spent in gathering the wherewithal to sustain their families. It must be so, but then why are we always rushing so, abbreviating everything in order to gain time?

At our Funeral Home, we cannot make time stand still, but we have tried to create an atmosphere of unhurried graciousness reflected of the solemnity of the ritual for which it was created.

Our world is so much better when someone cares. There's no substitute for caring and experience in a matter as complex as funeral service. At our establishment, we have extensive experience with all the countless details that comprise unlimited assistance. At time of need, someone cares at the Deware Funeral Home.

Tree-Identification

Guide Book Available

"What Tree Is That?" a pocket guide for identifying trees, is available from The National Arbor Day Foundation.

The 72-page guide helps identify 135 different trees found in the eastern and central U.S.

Well-known tree species include: oaks, maples, spruces and pines. Also species such as horsechestnut and mockernut hickory, sasfras and shadbush, persimmon and pawpaw and pagodatree and pecan. Dozens of drawings illustrate the trees' leaves or needles and their acorns, berries, seed pods, cones, and other identifying features. "What Tree Is That?" is organized to make it easy to identify trees in a simple step-by-step fashion. To obtain a tree ID guide, send your name and address and $3 to "What Tree Is That?", The National Arbor Day Foundation, Nebraska City, NE 68410.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You don't like to be kept waiting. After all, yours is the first sign of the Zodiac. But trust me: Don't push for answers quite yet. A little patience now pays off handsomely later on.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The Bull was an ancient Greek symbol for the sea. So, if you've been thinking about taking a cruise, now you know why. Seriously, now's the time to do it. Bon voyage.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might have mixed emotions about confronting someone you care for with those pointed questions. But, ultimately, you know you'll do what's necessary. Good luck.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your efforts to roll with those emotional punches have begun to pay off, as friends rally around. Be careful not to allow yourself to be diverted until everything is neatly tied up.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) While you luxuriate in being lauded for all the wonderful things you are, be careful that all that praise doesn't cloud your judgment. That upcoming decision needs more facts before you act.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Explanations might not come easily to you. You tend to think that you're incapable of causing any misunderstandings. But it can happen. Act quickly to heal feelings all around.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Family celebrations might take up more time than you expected. But enjoy them. You'll come away spiritually refreshed and ready to take on new challenges.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Congratulations. Like the true Scorpio you are, you're back in control of the important situations in your life. Now's a good time to make that long-delayed move.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your love of adventure should help you as you set off on a journey of self-discovery that will lead to exciting, new and challenging opportunities.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You continue to make progress in your newest venture. And, of course, like the Goat of your sign, we all expect you to keep climbing until you reach the top.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) It can be difficult for you to indulge in your own needs if you feel others might be slighted. But be assured, it's the right thing to do, and now's the right time to do it.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Things continue to go swimmingly as the Pisces enters a more positive period. Relationships thrive under your loving care. Career aspects also improve.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have the gift of a generous heart that opens easily to welcome all who seek your warmth, your care and your love.

100th Partnership Agreement Links Marriott Hotel, QHS

The Quincy School-Community Partnership, Inc., recently signed its 100th partnership agreement, an agreement which will link the Boston Marriott Quincy Hotel with Quincy High School.

Attending the celebration at the Marriott Hotel were several members of the Partnership, city and school officials, and several students for the Center for Technical Education (CTE) at Quincy High School.

Mayor James Sheets praised the business community for its overwhelming support for the Partnership's efforts to bring the "World of Work" to the students in the Quincy Public Schools. He also thanked Marriott officials for their specific support to Quincy High School.

School Supt. Eugene Creedon, signing his last partnership agreement -- he has been present for all of them -- said that the Partnership efforts could not work without the complete support of classroom teachers.

Creedon also praised the Quincy Educational Association for its complete operation.

$525,000 Transfer Issue

in 1986," said Sheets of the establishment of the Sewer Rehabilitation Fund, "and, very clearly, when we drafted that legislation, it was our intention to use some of that (account) for larger projects by paying debt service.

"It was written generally enough to cover all uses on sewer projects and it was intentionally written that way."

The city, the mayor explained, takes out no-interest or low-interest loans for major sewer projects. By using funds from the Sewer Rehabilitation Fund to cover principal and interest, the city can keep sewer rates down for residents.

Sheets compared the fund to the newly created hotel/motel tax, which created an Open Space Fund through hotel/motel occupancy taxes, saying that the city could purchase open space by issuing a large bond and pay the debt service with monies available in the Open Space Fund.

But Harold and McCauley disagree, arguing that the six-section act makes no mention of such a use.

"It's not in there," said

McCauley, who wrote a letter to Sheets dated June 26 opposing the transfer. "They took the money to close deficits in accounts that have nothing to do with sewer rehabilitation."

McCauley's letter also suggested that the mayor present a financial order to the council transferring funds back to the Sewer Rehabilitation Account from the Stabilization Fund. The mayor refused the request.

Harold, who along with McCauley questioned the transfer at the June 18 meeting, added that the city had already incorporated the sewer debt service into the budget, warning that spending bond money for operating money sends a "red flag" to those who issue city bonds.

According to council rules, a motion to reconsider must be made by a member of the previous majority at the meeting immediately following the action. If councilors vote to reconsider the motion, McCauley will further propose that the $525,000 figure be stricken and that an equal amount be taken from the "Snow and Ice" figure of $1,415,000 to balance the transfers.

McCauley repeated that he had reviewed the act carefully and saw no authorization to use Sewer Rehabilitation Funds to pay principal and interest on sewer loans.

Section 1 of the Act states:

"The purpose of such fund is to provide revenue for the funding of engineering, testing, construction and rehabilitation of the sewage pipes, lines, facilities and systems located within the city of Quincy and to provide revenues to do all things necessary to correct, remedy, repair, prevent, and prohibit any and all forms of infiltration or inflow from ground water and other sources of water into pipes, lines, facilities, and systems."

In defending the mayor's decision, Auditor Michael McFarland pointed to the very same language. In a letter to Councilor McCauley dated June 28, McFarland explained that he considered a general fund expenditure of roughly $768,000 to be an "eligible cost" -- meaning eligible to be offset by the Sewer Rehabilitation Fund -- because it paid the debt service on the city's nearly $10 million in sewer debt. McFarland's letter states:

"In reviewing the question of the year-end transfer, I would offer the following explanation. The $525,000 was transferred from the sewer rehabilitation fund as revenue to offset these sewer payments.

Since $768,974.26 was eligible for payment from the sewer rehabilitation fund the transfer was actually less than the eligible amount."

McFarland added that year-end reports were in the process of being written and that he would provide a report to the council on the Sewer Rehabilitation Fund, as is required by the act, in the fall.

Generally, transferring funds from surplus accounts to deficit accounts to balance the budget at the end of a fiscal year is considered a routine procedure.

$4.5M Seawall Project To Start Next Spring

By CRAIG SALTERS

A $4.5 million Metropolitan District Commission (MDC) project to repair and rehabilitate the Wollaston Beach seawall near the intersection of Quincy Shore Drive and Rice Rd. has reached the 75 percent design phase and work is expected to begin in early spring of 2002, reports Project Manager Michael Galvin.

The project, which has an estimated completion date of November 2003, would repair the portion of seawall damaged in the coastal storms of October 1991 and December 1992 as well as replace and enhance the stone shore protection, referred to as "revetment," further south closer to the Black's Creek section of Quincy Shore Drive.

The revetment, Galvin explained, is intended to prevent sections of the low lying road from flooding.

Galvin said one potential obstacle to the project was resolved roughly two weeks ago in a consultation meet-

Phelan To Open First Of Two Headquarters Saturday

School Committeeman and mayoral candidate William Phelan will open the first of two campaign headquarters Saturday.

A ribbon-cutting ceremony will be held at 3 p.m. at his Quincy Square headquarters, 31 Cottage Ave., with a reception to follow. The public is invited.

Phelan will open his sec-

In addition, he has launched a campaign web site.

"As we move into the key months of the campaign, it's important that residents from across the city have an opportunity to learn more about me and my positions on the key issues facing the city," Phelan said.

He noted that he has knocked on more than 2,000 doors since he announced his candidacy for mayor.

"By opening headquarters in both Quincy Square and Wollaston, I hope to make it as easy and convenient as possible for people

Harold, McGrath Class Over Reason

Emmanouil Failed Lien Triggers Controversy

Failure to get a lien on the $2.7 million Brookline home of controversial shipbuilder Sotirios Emmanouil has erupted into a controversy of its own involving City Council President Paul Harold and City Solicitor Stephen McGrath.

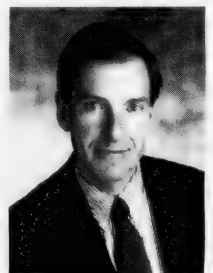

Harold contends city lawyers failed to follow the instructions of the City Council by not acting on a resolve ordering the lien, passed unanimously by the council March 6, 2000 and signed by Mayor James Sheets March 13.

McGrath responded that the Law Department had indeed acted swiftly but had been denied a lien because of a judge's ruling that actions of corporate entities run by Emmanouil are separate from the acts of Emmanouil himself.

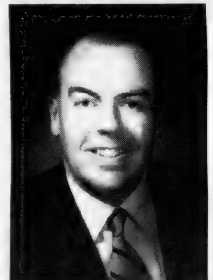

"That's first year law school," said McGrath. "That's why you form corporations."

Since the signing of the resolution, ownership of the property at 130 Goddard Ave., Brookline, has been transferred twice, taking it out of reach of any legal action on the part of the city, said Harold, who is also Norfolk County Register of Deeds.

By not placing the lien, he said, the city has lost "any hope of recovering part of the $7.8 million owed to the city," referring to the city's commitment to the Fore River Shipyard and Emmanouil's now bankrupt Massachusetts Heavy Industries (MHI) in the form of federal Community Development Block Grants (CDBG) from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

In a statement released Monday, Harold said he discovered the sale of Emmanouil's Brookline Home last week when another of Emmanouil's creditors sought to have a lien placed against the shipyard

Josiah Quincy House Given 'Landmark' Status

The Society for the Preservation of New England

Antiquities held a celebration recently to observe the new status of the Josiah Quincy House as a National Historic Landmark.

The celebration included statements by Jane Nylander, the SPNEA president, and Paul Harold, president of the Quincy City Council.

Representatives of the National Park Service, SPNEA members and neighbors looked on as a Landmark plaque was unveiled. Tours were conducted of the house and grounds and the SPNEA staff discussed recent work down on the property.

The Josiah Quincy House was built in 1770 by Col. Josiah Quincy, who is said to have watched from an upstairs window as the British evacuated Boston during the Revolution.

Finn, Coughlin, Gutro Conroy Win Top Spots

Ballot Positions Drawn For Sept. 11 Election

Joseph Finn, Kevin Coughlin, Douglas Gutro and Patrick Conroy will have the top ballot positions in the four preliminary election contests Tuesday, Sept. 11.

The ballot lineup order for city councillor at-large, and the Ward 3, 5, and 6 council seats was determined by lottery Friday at City Hall.

The ballot positions as drawn:

Councillor at-large: Joseph Finn, Denis Tardo, John Keenan, Brain McNamee, Robert Boussy, incumbent Timothy Cahill, Julie Berberan, Jimmy Liang, incumbent Francis McCauley.

Ward 3: Kevin Coughlin, John Cain, David

McGillicuddy, John Garland.

Ward 5: Douglas Gutro, incumbent Stephen Durkin, James Mullane, III.

Ward 6: Patrick Conroy, Maryann Mahony, incumbent Joseph Newton, William Kiley, III.

The drawing was conducted by City Clerk Joseph Shea, Assistant City Clerk Maureen Hallen, William Draicchio, member Board of Voter Registrars, and Nicole Crispo of the city Election Department.

Several of the 20 candidates whose names will be on the Sept. 11 ballot were present and participated in the drawing.

Finn, Gutro and Conroy drew top spots for councillor at-large, Ward 5 and Ward 6. McCauley drew the ninth and last spot for councillor at-large.

Also participating in the drawing were Tardo, Berberan, Cain and McGillicuddy.

Voters Sept. 11 will nominate six candidates for councillor at-large and two each in Wards 3, 5 and 6. They will meet in the final election Tuesday, Nov. 6.

Final day for new voters to register for the Sept. 11 election is Wednesday, Aug. 22. The Election Department at City Hall will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. that day.

Registration, meanwhile, is also being held during regular City Hall hours, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

COUNCILLOR DANIEL RAYMONDI (center, right), recently presented $2,000 in Ward 2 mitigation funds to James McGuire, principal of the Point Webster Middle School, to keep the school's Media Center open Friday mornings in July and August from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. for all Point Webster Middle School students and also Grade 4 students from the Marshall School who will be entering Grade 5 at Point Webster in September. Joining Raymondi and McGuire for the occasion were sixth graders Robbie Page and Stephanie Almario and School Committeewoman Linda Stice, who played a key role in creation of the pilot program in her capacity as executive director of the Mayor's Commission on the Family. ## Swift To Make Education Address Aug. 30 At QHS

The office of Acting Governor Jane Swift is busily preparing for Swift's second annual State of Education address, which will take place Thursday, Aug. 30 at 2 p.m. in Quincy High School.

Invitations for the event are being handled by the governor's office, said

Mayor James Sheets, who played a key role in Swift's decision to make her remarks in Quincy.

There are preliminary plans for a possible reception in the Thomas Crane Public Library following the governor's address, the mayor added.

Sheets said that, although Swift did not indicate what topics she would cover in her address, she did cite the success of the Quincy Public Schools -- including the reduction of class sizes at the elementary level and recent blue ribbon and "exemplar school" honors going to city schools -- as a reason for choosing Quincy over other sites.

Construction To Begin On Black's Creek Bridge

State Sen. Michael Morrissey and Reps. Bruce Ayers and Stephen Tobin announce construction will soon be underway at the Black's Creek bridge on Quincy Shore Dr. between Furnace Brook Parkway and Fenno St.

The project will also benefit the Cunningham Brook-Furnace Brook Drainage Control Project.

"This is a key component of flood control for the Cunningham Brook-Furnace Brook area," Morrissey said. "A contract was approved this spring to allow the Black's Creek project to go forward. The contact bid was approximately $200,000."

The Legislature earmarked funds for this project on three separate occasions. "The governor has vetoed the funding for this project three times," Ayers said. "But we had the opportunity to override the veto in 1999; therefore, we're very pleased that construction will begin soon."

"The drainage improvements have to begin at the Black's Creek basin and go upstream to prevent greater flooding in low lying areas. The benefits from this project will flow all the way down from Merrymount area to West Quincy," Tobin said.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Aug. 15, 1935, American humorist Wil Rogers and famous aviator Wiley Post are killed in an airplane accident near Point Barrow, Alaska. The aircraft, piloted by Post, was in the midst of a promotional journey across the North Pole to the USSR when it crashed shortly after takeoff.

• On Aug. 14, 1945, Japan agrees to surrender unconditionally to the Allies. The decision brought an end to World War II, the most costly war in human history.

• On Aug. 18, 1947, Paris is re-established as the center of haute couture when Christian Dior introduces the "New Look." Dior's trim waistslines and lightly padded full-skirts had a dazzling impact on the clothing industry and revolutionized the girle world.

• On Aug. 13, 1961, East German troops seal off all roads between East and West Berlin and begin laying barbed wire along the border. East Germany hoped to halt the mass flight of its people to West Germany, an exodus that since the division of Germany in 1945 had numbered more than 3 million.

• On Aug. 16, 1977, Elvis Presley dies at age 42. The death of the king of rock 'n' roll brought legions of mourning fans to Graceland, his home in Memphis, Tenn. Elvis recorded 25 gold records.

• On Aug. 19, 1991, Yankel Rosenbaum, a visiting student from Australia, is stabbed to death by an angry mob in the Crown Heights section of Brooklyn. The crowd, consisting of young black men, had been intent on seeking revenge against Jews for the death of 7-year-old Gavin Cato, who had been struck by a car driven by a Hasidic Jew hours earlier.

• On Aug. 17, 1996, Ruth Sando Perry is appointed president of the Liberian Council of State. Perry, a former Liberian senator, thus became the first woman to head an African country.

Sharon And Tax Refunds

What are you going to do with your tax refund? Bank it? Blow it? Or, haven't you decided?

A Sun reader in New York City has a suggestion:

"If you really don't need your tax rebate check, consider giving it to Sharon Paolucci Swatek who truly does."

Sharon, as we reported here in May, is a former Quincy girl now living in Wauwatose, WI near Milwaukee who was suddenly dealt a devastating blow in her young life.

But she is courageously fighting her way back from it.

Sharon came down with a strep throat in February that turned into a living nightmare: a rare and deadly type of Strep A invasive bacteria that led to amputation of both arms and both legs in order to save her life.

Her hospital and medical expenses continue to mount, apparently prompting that tax refund suggestion from New York.

Sharon, 42, is the daughter of Mrs. Rosalie (Kyler) Paolucci of Sumner St., Quincy Point, and the late Albert Paolucci, a Quincy firefighter whose death during the Blizzard of '78 is believed related to shoveling snow on duty. She is a member of the Quincy High School Class of 1976 and a graduate of Johnson and Wales College.

Sharon is married to Lon Swatek, a Wauwatose firefighter and mother of two children, Kelly, 7, and Al, 9 who was stricken with cancer at age 4 and is in remission.

And Sharon is a true "Profile in Courage."

"Don't free sorry for me," she said after her amputation ordeal. "Don't cry over me. I'm going to get better."

Her uncle, retired Quincy Fire Captain John DiPietro has this update on Sharon's status:

"She has been fitted with a left arm and is trying that out. She will soon be fitted with a right arm."

"But she has suffered a setback and is back in the hospital. Skin grafted onto her left knee (in preparation for a fitting) did not take and became infected. She may need more surgery. They are evaluating the situation this week.

"But she is still upbeat. Her spirit is unbelievable."

That reader in New York City, who wishes to remain anonymous, lives on East 64th St. and has been a mail subscriber to The Sun since 1983. She writes in part:

"I still like to know what's going on in Quincy. But when you printed Sharon Paolucci Swatek's heartbreaking story, I have not been able to get it out of my head. What an incredible tragedy. And what an uphill battle she and her family have in store for themselves.

"Thank God she has courage and determination and is a good person. She will need the help of all the angels, day by day by day."

The Sun offers a free up-to-20 words classified ad in appreciation to mail subscribers who renew their subscriptions.

The New York reader renewed hers, and to help Sharon, submitted an ad in her behalf. A 59-word ad with the request it be set in capital letters. And she would pay for the extra 39 words, she said.

"I do not want my name on the ad because it would be meaningless but "Out of Town Subscriber will do nicely," she wrote.

"I want the family and your readers to know my request is that of an outsider deeply touched by this young woman's plight."

Her ad (with no charge for the extra words):

IF YOU DON'T TRULY NEED YOUR TAX REBATE CHECK, CONSIDER GIVING IT TO SHARON PAOLUCCI SWATEK, WHO TRULY DOES. TAKE A TAX DEDUCTION INSTEAD. IT WILL BE THE BEST MONEY YOU EVER SPENT! HER BENEFIT IS SAT. NIGHT, AUG. 18, ST. JOSEPH'S PARISH, WASHINGTON ST., QUINCY POINT. GO AND MAKE IT A GREAT SUCCESS. HELP HER ALL YOU CAN.

(From an Out-of-State Subscriber)

And, she adds:

"P.S. Oh, yes! I'll be sending her my check as soon as it comes in! That's a Promise!"

DiPietro reports that this Saturday night's benefit (7 to midnight) at St. Joseph's parish center is already a sell-out at $25 per ticket.

"The capacity is limited to 500 but we could have sold 1,000 tickets," he says.

However, donations -- including any part of those tax refund checks -- can still be made to a trust fund to help pay Sharon's staggering hospital and other expenses.

They may be sent to:

Sharon (Paolucci) Swatek Fund
c/o Quincy Municipal Credit Union
380 Washington St.
Quincy, MA 02169

DiPietro estimates the fund has reached around $60,000.

But a lot -- an awful lot -- more is needed.

The Wauwatose Fire Department also has a fundraising campaign underway.

But the efforts here and there have a long to go to catch up to the staggering hospital and other medical bills Sharon and her family are facing.

Even though a Wauwatose Fire Department insurance policy covers the family up to $1 million in lifetime medical benefits.

"Her expenses have almost reached that cap," reveals DiPietro.

He says Sharon would like to come for a visit "but not until I can walk."

"She's determined she is going to walk again. And with all that determination and courage, you believe she will."

Meeting Aug. 28 To Form New Quincy Taxpayers' Association

Alan H. Cousin, former candidate for the City Council Ward 3 seat, has scheduled a meeting for Aug. 28 at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library to form a new Quincy Taxpayers' Association.

"Quincy has lots of neighborhood and civic associations, but no taxpayers' association," Cousin said in making the announcement.

"There is no one holding city government accountable to the people who pay the bills."

Cousin noted that there used to be a Quincy Taxpayers' Association, but it was primarily a business association and is now defunct. The new Quincy Taxpayers' Association will be for individual residential property owners and renters, he said.

Cousin said the idea for a new Quincy Taxpayers' Association came to him as he began to run for city council, while he was looking into the issue of building a new Quincy High School. Along with fiscal and management issues, the new QTA would focus on questions like the need for new school construction vs. the desirability of renovation, he said.

The organizational meeting will be held in the meeting room of the library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center. Those interested may also call Cousin at 617-770-4188.

Dunkin' Donuts And The Widening Of Centre Street

Editor, The Quincy Sun: Quincy City Hall is about to widen Centre Street in order to deal with the reported excessive caffeine use over at the Dunkin' Donuts shop near the Burgin Parkway. The project will be financed with money from Home Depot, which recently purchased the closed Raytheon plant by the Quincy Adams T station.

According to news reports, the city of Quincy made unsuccessful attempts to encourage Dunkin' Donuts to buy adjacent property to alleviate the congestion at the drive-thru window. Personally, I think City Hall ought to be a bit more aggressive with Dunkin' Donuts since their doughnut shop is seemingly causing so much traffic congestion.

If the city can ask Home Depot to be a good neighbor and if they ask The Flatley Company to be a good neighbor, perhaps it is time to get Dunkin' Donuts to do the same thing.

Some of the roadwork had to be done regardless of the Dunkin' Donuts problem, anyway, but perhaps now it is time for Quincy City Hall to go higher up the corporate chain.

Perhaps, it might be time to require Dunkin' Donuts to start paying for a police detail during those rush hour times. Perhaps, next time any other Dunkin' Donuts operation in this city seeks assistance from City Hall, we can send them over to the Centre Street doughnut shop for help.

Now is not the time to raise hands and surrender as Traffic Commissioner Jack Gillon seems to have done. If Dunkin' Donuts on Centre Street is part of the problem as everyone seems to have recognized, shouldn't Dunkin' Donuts be part of the solution too?

Ward 4 Councillor Mike D'Amico says the city wants to make the neighborhood safe for everyone. Shouldn't that be the same thing Dunkin' Donuts wants too?

Maybe the city of Quincy hasn't tried hard enough. After all, what national chain wants the bad publicity of being a bad neighbor? They're not just selling coffee and doughnuts on Centre Street, they're selling their name and their reputation.

I'm sure Dunkin' Donuts doesn't want to look less than responsive to the needs of the surrounding community it serves.

I think Councillor D'Amico and Commissioner Gillon should offer the olive branch one more time. I can't believe a place that makes such good coffee could, apparently, make bad judgments when it comes to helping the city of Quincy.

Urges Kennedy, Kerry Vote Against Human Cloning

Editor, The Quincy Sun: On July 31, while many of us were too busy to notice what was going on in the nation's capital, the U.S. House of Representatives passed a bill, by a vote of 265-162, to ban all human cloning.

That was the good news. The discouraging news was that all nine members of our Massachusetts Congressional Delegation — Capuano, Delahunt, Frank, Markey, McGovern, Meehan, Neal, Olver and Tierney — refused to support the ban.

It is unthinkable that human life would be created in a laboratory for the purpose of performing hit-or-miss experimentation on it until its usefulness had ended, at which time that life would be destroyed deliberately, as planned.

The task now is to persuade our senators — Kennedy and Kerry — to vote to ban human cloning when the bill reaches the U.S. Senate, possibly in the very near future.

Quincy's Yesterdays
New Law To End Bay Pollution

By PAUL HAROLD

After 25 years of protesting, the end of sewerage discharge into Quincy Bay would be ended with the passage of legislation requiring the MDC to treat sewerage at a new Deer Island facility.

Rep. William Jenness (R-Quincy) successfully amended a major piece of legislation that would in part require the construction of a deep rock tunnel from Columbia Circle in Dorchester to Deer Island. The tunnel would end the discharge of 40-135 million gallons of raw sewerage that was currently flowing to Moon Island into Quincy Bay.

An MDC spokesman said with the construction, pollution entering Quincy Bay would cease within two to two and a half years.

DESPITE SHORTAGES, HOUSING CONSTRUCTION CONTINUES

Sidney Grossman of the Grossman Company said despite the recent National Production Authority's limitation order on building materials, homes could still be built.

Grossman pointed out the controlled materials list included only steel and copper and that with more efficient designs in plumbing and heating, small and moderate size single homes could still be built.

HEDGES VOTES AGAINST CONVENTIONS

Sen. Charles Hedges of Quincy was the only Republican to vote against the re-instatement of pre-primary party conventions in the state. The Democrats opposed the plan, with Gov. Paul Dever a leading foe.

In the Senate, Democratic Floor Leader John Powers of South Boston said the convention system was "a corrupting influence that destroyed equality of opportunity and allowed for government by intrigue."

QUINCY-ISMS

Councillor David Crowley presented a petition to the council from clam diggers in Adams Shore who wanted the city to take action to resolve the conflict between the diggers and residents of Shelton Rd. Shellfish warden Carmen Morreale said he welcomed the councillor's help in ironing out the differences between the diggers and the residents. . . Robert Zottoli was Red Cross blood donor chairman. . . Quincy resident Kenneth Kelley was re-elected state secretary-treasurer of the Mass. Federation of Labor at their Worcester convention. . . Deputy Sheriff Joseph Hunter of Elm Ave. died while on vacation in New Hampshire. He was in New Hampshire with his wife and Councillor and Mrs. Frank Orcutt. . . Two new comers in the city council race were George Smith, Jr. of Arlington St., an accountant for New England Telephone and Frederick Carson of Hillsboro St., owner of the F.W. Carson Hardware store. . . Quincy District Court Clerk Dennis Ryan announced he would not seek re-election to the School Committee. . . A daughter was born at Quincy City Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Sachetti of Rodman St. . . Bethany's 50-50 Club held a poolside fund-raiser at the North Weymouth home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kent. . . Dyed squirrel jackets were on sale at the Quincy Fur Shop. . . Former WJDA broadcaster Ken Coleman, now with a Worcester station, was in line to be the voice of Holy Cross basketball. . . Three Houghs Neck youths saved an exhausted swimming from drowning. All three lived on Manet Ave.: William Jacobs, age 14; Robert Watts, 10; and Walter Dondero, 11. . . David Sugarman, Bruce Yafee and Arthur Levin were campers at Camp Shalom, the day camp at the Jewish Community Center. . . Some 800 attended the annual field day at the stadium, sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Commission, with all 25 playgrounds represented. Supervisor Recreation General William Bowyer presented ribbons to Judith DellaBara and Bernice Solow, both of Monroe Playground, for winning the girls' broad jump and to Carl Noyes of Baker Playground for the boys' broad jump. . . There were ceremonies at St. Mary's Cemetery at the grave of James Florence Roche, the first leader of the Army Navy Union League. . . Very Rev. John Twiss, pastor of Our Lady of Good Counsel, was elected state chaplain for the American Legion. He was nominated and seconded by Albert Berry, commander of Quincy Post 95 and George Leary, vice commander of the Morrisette Post. . . Under legislation sponsored by Sen. Charles Hedges, a $2,000 reward was offered in the disappearance of four-year-old Robert "Danny" Matson.

Children's Concert Held At Ward 4 Community Center

Students of the summer music program "Blast Off With Choir" recently presented "Children Helping Children," a concert held at the Ward 4 Community Center to raise funds for the Children's Developmental Disabilities Center of Quincy.

The concert, led by Marina Rozenberg of the Marina Rozenberg School of Music in Quincy, was the highlight of a week-long camp which explored the fundamentals of music and encouraged children to make use of their instrument of voice.

While the concert and camp were free, donations were accepted to help the Children's Developmental Disability Center. The singers raised $90 for their efforts.

Rozenberg also serves as conductor of the Quincy Children's Choir, which meets throughout the school year. For more information on the Marina Rozenberg School of Music, call (617) 770-0932.

Bird Watching Sept. 8 At Wollaston Beach

Wildlife biologists Michelle Anderson-Hill and John Hill will host "Bird Watching on Wollaston Beach" Saturday, Sept. 8 from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. as part of the Environmental Treasures of Quincy program.

Those interested in the free event should meet in the Caddy Park parking lot on Quincy Shore Drive.

All birdwatchers, beginning or experienced, are welcome. Binoculars, birding field guide, and sturdy shoes are recommended.

Rain date for the event is Saturday, Sept. 15.

For more information, contact David Murphy at (617) 376-1254.

'Quest' Nature Trail Opens Sunday In Faxon Park

Environmental Treasures of Quincy, a program of the Quincy Park Department, will celebrate the opening Sunday of a new Quest nature trail in Faxon Park.

The self-guiding trail was installed by the Patriot Trail Girl Scout Council, Troop 4991, led by Kathy Shaw, Ellen Humez, and Philomena Lewis.

The public is invited to come meet the Girl Scouts and try out the new trail anytime between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. The trail takes about 30 minutes to complete. Participants should meet at the Overlook Parking lot.

The trail is the first "Quest" trail in Quincy. A "Quest" is an educational treasure hunt that involves following a map and series of clues that will direct the questers to a hidden "treasure box" which contains a stamp, stamp pad, and notebook for questers to record their impressions of the trail.

Questers can stamp the back page of the Quest booklet with the stamp they find in the treasure box.

The idea of Quests came from Devon, England in 1854. Currently, there are more than 15 Quests on the South Shore. Participants in Sunday's program will have the opportunity to learn about the other South Shore Quests. Booklets describing these Quests -- usually $4 -- will be distributed at Faxon Park free of charge while supplies last.

"Quests are great ways for parents and children to appreciate nature together and have fun at the same time," said Sally Owen, chairwoman of the Advisory Committee to the Environmental Treasures of Quincy program. "We are extremely grateful to the Quincy Girls Scouts for all their efforts in setting up this wonderful trail for Quincy residents"

For more information about Sunday's program, contact Owen at (617) 472-0799.

Dorothy Quincy Homestead Tours To Start Saturday

Regularly scheduled tours of the Dorothy Quincy Homestead, led by knowledgeable guides, will start Saturday and continue on weekends through Sunday, Sept. 30, for the first time in two years.

The tours, conducted by rangers from the National Park Service, will depart by trolley from the NPS Visitors Center at 1 p.m., 2 p.m., and 3 p.m..

The NPS rangers were specially trained for the job at the Dorothy Quincy Homestead with an emergency grant of $10,000 provided by Secretary of State William Galvin.

For the past two seasons the Dorothy Quincy Homestead has been closed due to staffing and funding constraints. Congressman William Delahunt, Mayor James Sheats, and City Council President Paul Harold worked with representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and Metropolitan District Commission, who own and administer the historic property, to acquire a grant to provide interpretive tours and promote public access to the home.

The successful acquisition of this grant has facilitated the reopening of the Dorothy Quincy Homestead under the auspices of a partnership between the MDC, the Colonial Dames, and the National Park Service.

"This is the first time the National Park Service has had some control of the Dorothy Quincy Homestead," said Harold.

"I hope this is the beginning of a partnership that will culminate in a permanent National Park Service takeover of the Homestead."

The City Council last week urged that the MDC and the Colonial Dames, the current owners and lessors of the property, begin negotiating with the NPS for just such a takeover.

The Homestead has been open to the public only by appointment for the past two years as the Dames have had trouble finding caretakers to live there during tourist season.

Both the MDC and the Colonial Dames have expressed a willingness to give up possession of the Homestead and the NPS is in favor of taking it over.

Quincy Man Helped Japanese At Hiroshima Three Weeks After A-Bomb

By TOM HENSHAW

A scant three weeks after history's first atomic bomb was dropped on Hiroshima, John O'Malley of North Quincy was on the scene of devastation, doing what he could to help the Japanese survivors of the blast.

And enjoying a reunion with his brother, Peter, for the first time in four years.

John O'Malley, a radar technician aboard the light cruiser USS Oklahoma City, was a member of the all-volunteer "People's Army," the members of which were chosen to help the prostrate Japanese.

"All those chosen had to be more than six feet tall," said John O'Malley's son, Paul, proprietor of O'Malley Hardware on Billings Road in North Quincy. "It was a matter of image."

The American authorities of 55 years ago had little trepidation about sending personnel so soon into the zone of radiation left by the nuclear bomb.

"Some of the men were given cameras loaded with film," said Paul O'Malley, "but they didn't take any pictures. The film was developed later and checked for signs of radiation."

A photo of John and Peter O'Malley taken in Hiroshima a few weeks after the bomb, shows radiation damage in the skyline behind the devastation pictured.

About the same time, John discovered that his brother, Peter, was in Japan with the Army of Occupation and the two met for the first time in four years amid the destruction of Hiroshima.

John died last month at the age of 80. Kid brother Peter, now 76, lives in Concord.

"I think the authorities wanted to show the Japanese how kind and compassionate Americans really could be," said Paul O'Malley. "They couldn't have picked two better guys than my father and my uncle."

JOHN O'MALLEY of North Quincy (right) and his brother, Peter, entertain some Japanese children in Hiroshima after few weeks after the atom bomb was dropped in August, 1945. Radiation damage to the film is clearly visible in the skyline behind the devastated city.

Janet Greene Honored By Northeastern University

Janet Greene of Quincy was honored recently for outstanding achievement by University College, Northeastern University's part-time undergraduate division.

Greene received the Academic Excellence Award for Health Information Administration at the Senior Awards Night held at the Henderson House in Weston.

Greene, a radiology information system coordinator for the Boston Medical Center, received a bachelor of science degree in health information administration

Special Interests get heard at City Hall...

But, who speaks up for the rest of us?

Taxpayers in Quincy have a right to be concerned when city hall policies benefit a favored few at the expense of our city's long-term financial interests. We need someone who will represent our interests not special interests.

The current agenda has proven too costly for Quincy...purchasing a hazardous waste site for $3.5 Million to build a new high school, losing $74 Million on a failed shipyard restart, and paying $32 Million to get someone to buy Quincy Hospital. Eventually, we all pay for poor decision making because monies are now not available for basic city services.

It's time to get our city's priorities back on track.

I'll fight for:

- Excellence in our schools at all levels.
- Stabilization of our real estate taxes
- Long overdue street and sidewalk repairs citywide
- Maintaining city services to all neighborhoods
- More citizen involvement in the development of the city
- Comprehensive traffic planning for the city

Good For The 'Sole' Food

Here is a great recipe I found using fillet of sole with asparagus, or you can use flounder. To prepare this dish, I used skinless pieces which can be purchased at any super or fish market. It's made with a delicious wine sauce that goes over the top.

Wine Sauce

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 tablespoon minced shallots
- 1/4 cup white wine
- 1 teaspoon flour
- salt and pepper to taste

Melt butter or margarine, add the shallots and cook for a couple of minutes. Then add the flour and wine and cook until done. Takes about 5 minutes or so.

Rolled Sole & Asparagus

- 1 pound asparagus

about 1 1/2 pounds sole fillets (cut wide pieces in half lengthwise)

salt a pepper

Rinse asparagus, cut end pieces and discard. Cook the asparagus until barely tender (about 2-3 minutes). Drain.

Lay out the pieces of sole.

Place two asparagus on each one. Roll fillet to enclose the asparagus. On a slightly greased shallow baking dish, place the fish with the seam down. Cover with foil and bake in a 425 degree oven for about 10-15 minutes. Test if done. Spoon the sauce over the fish...it's delicious and healthy too!

P.S. If you don't care to use asparagus, you can also use a favorite bread or other stuffing for the fish.

New Fine Arts Courses At Quincy College

Quincy College will offer an impressive array of courses in theatre arts, music, visual arts and fine arts at its new learning space in Quincy Center.

Quincy College has, since its founding in 1956, been a liberal arts college. Many of its graduates are liberal arts majors, most of whom transfer to four-year colleges after completing studies at Quincy.

According to Martha Sue Harris, Dean of Liberal Arts, success rates for liberal arts majors, statistics that indicated completion of studies at Quincy and transfer to other institutions, is higher than the national average.

"Our students told us they wanted more electives in the arts... more courses for creative and expressive arts," said President Sean Barry. "Harris and I began discussions of these programs more than a year ago. Our faculty members and administrators have developed an impressive range of courses."

Students will find courses such as Music Appreciation; Fundamentals of Visual Arts; Line, Color and Design; Theatre Arts I and II; Photography; Survey of Fine Arts; Basic Drawing; and even a course in the History of Rock.

Barry notes that like most of Quincy College's course offerings, there is no requirement to enroll in a degree program, although some classes have prerequisites.

"We're welcoming traditional college students as well as soccer moms who may wish to enroll in a credit course for enrichment."

"Quincy College attracts many types of students, with many over the age of 28," he added. "Traditional students, fresh from high school are enrolling in courses like 'History of Rock Music,' while others enjoy photojournalism or graphics courses. Theatre and playwriting courses are appealing to students who wish to build confidence in speaking and diction. Painting and drawing courses attract all ages and skill levels."

"It's more about being a well-rounded individual. These courses are less stressful for many, and don't get as competitive so the mood is very supportive, and creativity is stressed."

Tuition for the courses is competitive with area institutions, Barry said, but the program has a much more open enrollment process.

"Many, many talented students want to attend the fine arts colleges and universities in the area, but lack the financial resources or admissions requirements," he said. "We're here for them, to help them along the way and to assist them in building a strong foundation for life."

Mary Lou Clark, an area artist and adjunct instructor at Quincy for more than a decade, stresses the importance of a well-rounded education including the fine arts.

"These skills foster critical and creative thinking," she said.

Clark credited other instructors, Tom Fahey and Tom Boyer, for creating other fine arts programming. She credits Barry with taking the initiative to enhance program offerings.

This past spring Quincy College acquired additional classroom space at the corner of Washington and Temple streets in Quincy Center. The new space features a modern photography lab, art studio and a variety of classrooms.

"When we began a search for additional classroom space, we had these programs in mind," Barry said.

Space is available in many of the courses new for this fall. Interested parties are encouraged to visit the college soon to select their course.

Tardo: New QHS Belongs On Southern Artery At Pond St.

Denis F. Tardo, candidate for Councillor at-Large, wants the city to locate the new Quincy High School on the site of the former Flooring America, 625 Southern Artery, and the abutting land housing the Quincy Ships Brewery, 579 Southern Artery.

"This parcel of land has been an eyesore to the city for at least two or three decades," Tardo said. "This is an opportunity to enhance the Southern Artery area with a positive architectural structure. This is an opportunity to express and act upon our concern and value of the city's youth.

"The acquisition of this land would end an era of distressed commercially zoned property at this location. And, the city would be eligible for the 90 percent reimbursement of this $56 million project.

"By all means this would be a grand slam win for the City of Quincy," Tardo continued. "The proposed site is adjacent to the city-owned Monroe Field allowing an adequate footprint for the building as well as open space for parking and athletic activities. It stretches from Southern Artery along Pond St. to Washington St. allowing easy access to public transportation."

Quincy Man Wins Music Tickets In Car Raffle

You might say that, while Andre Roberts of Quincy didn't win a BMW, he won a BMW in the 13th annual BMW Car Raffle, sponsored by the Big Sister Association of Greater Boston.

Roberts won season tickets to Boston Musica Viva, contemporary music concerts. The winner of the grand prize, the BMW, was Ellen Frawley of Boston's Back Bay.

The car raffle raised more than $100,000 for the Bog Sister Association as 1,500 persons bought $100 tickets to qualify for the BMW or one of 49 other prizes.

D'Amico Seeks To Remove Large Gas, Hazardous Waste Trucks From Ind. Ave.

In a letter dated Aug. 2, Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico updated neighborhood residents on continuing efforts to prohibit large gas and hazardous waste trucks from using Independence Ave.

"The Traffic Engineer suggested removing trucks from Water St., thus removing their access from Independence Ave.," D'Amico's letter states.

"The city does not have the authority to remove trucks. The state does. We have petitioned the state and they have denied our request."

D'Amico's letter also states that he has asked Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon to reapply to the state on the matter.

In a similar letter addressed to Gillon himself, D'Amico called large gas and hazardous waste trucks "a safety hazard for Independence Ave." and said the trucks should use Burgin Parkway.

McNamee Calls For Better Financial Management

Councillor at-Large candidate Brian McNamee says the "poor financial condition" of the city is the biggest problem facing the city.

"There are three things everyone knows about finances and financial strength. First, money in the bank is essential. Second, you need to have good credit so you can borrow for an emergency or buy expensive durable goods. Third, you need to watch your monthly costs so you do not spend beyond your means," McNamee said.

"For a municipality, the General Fund Balance represents money in the bank."

The real estate tax levy limit under proposition 2 1/2 represents your available credit line for borrowing. The city's annual budget and everyone's agreement to spend no more than what's budgeted is how we control over spending," he said.

Control and management of cash reserves, credit, and budgetary expenditures are the keys to our financial strength as a city, McNamee said.

"Quincy has failed measurably in these three areas. With regard to cash in the bank, Quincy's Fund Balance this last fiscal year was seven percent of General Fund Revenues." He noted Brockton's Fund Balance as a percentage of General Fund Revenues, for example, was three times bigger than Quincy's at 23 percent.

"If Quincy's tax levy limit is viewed as our available line of credit, Quincy is currently $117,000 away from its tax levy limit. As a result, unplanned spending requirements could require a proposition 2 1/2 override. Our credit is maxed out," he said.

"Quincy has not been adhering to a plan on affordable living. The budget has had deficits in recent years and over the last 10 years the city's expenditures have increased nearly 50 percent. Clearly, few households can say their incomes have increased 50 percent in the last 10 years.

"To insure Quincy remains an affordable place to live and city services are not cut we need a city councillor that will provide real budgetary oversight instead of rubber stamping every expenditure put before them -- if elected, I will be that city councillor," he added.

$4.5M Seawall Project To Start Next Spring

ing between MDC officials and Quincy Shellfish Warden Andrew Ayer in which Ayer said the project would not impact the clam beds along Wollaston Beach.

"This is a long time coming," said Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin, adding the seawall near Rice Rd. and Fenno St. had been in a state of disrepair for too long.

Although the MWRA sewage outfall pipe is located directly behind the particular portion of seawall, the project is not a sewer rehabilitation project, emphasized DPW Commissioner David Colton, who added a $5.8 million bond issue for sewer improvements is currently before the City Council.

In a description of the project, the MDC said seawall restoration would also improve public access by improving sidewalks and beach ramps and stated that "Wollaston Beach and Quincy Shore Drive will significantly benefit from the rehabilitation alternative providing a long term solution that protects the current beach area and coastal roadway. The negative impacts of the rehabilitation actions are essentially all temporary impacts."

to get the information they need to make an informed decision on Election Day," he said.

Residents will be able to stop by either headquarters to pick up campaign fliers, bumper stickers and other campaign materials. Citizens may also visit the Quincy Square or Wollaston locations to sign up for a yard sign or to volunteer to work on the campaign.

upcoming events, an e-mail link for contacting the campaign and such voter information as polling locations

-- will soon include detailed information on Phelan's positions on such issues as city finances, education, economic development, tourism and community relations.

"I want to make it as easy as possible for people to learn who I am and what I stand for," Phelan said. "I invite everyone to stop by one of my headquarters, visit the web site or contact me directly to discuss my ideas for bringing straight talk and good judgment back to City Hall."

COMPOSITE SKETCH

If you would like the fillings in your back teeth to look as natural as the tooth-colored fillings in your front teeth, consider a composite resin. This tooth-colored plastic mixture filled with glass (silicon dioxide) was introduced in the 1960s. Originally, dental composites were confined to the front teeth because they were not strong enough to withstand the pressure and wear generated by the back teeth. Since then, however, composites have been significantly improved and can be placed in the back teeth, as well. Composites are not only used to fill cavities, but are also used for cosmetic improvements. A smile can be improved by changing the color of the teeth or reshaping disfigured teeth.

We'll be happy to answer any questions you may have on the different composite fillings available. Your smile care needs deserve an exceptional dental office, with a professional care team who provides leading-edge care and more comforts than you ever thought possible in a dentist's office. We want to do more than meet your expectations - we want to exceed them. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we make it a point to get to know you and the specific needs of your family. It's important to us. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. Having nice looking teeth gives a boost to health and happiness. ## Keenan Calls For Expanded Focus On Affordable Housing Issue

John F. Keenan, candidate for city councillor-at-large, proposes the city expand its focus on the issue of affordable housing, and look at initiatives beyond the Inclusionary Zoning Ordinance pending before the City Council.

"The pending ordinance is a start, but it does not solve the problem for Quincy or the region," Keenan said.

Part of the problem, according to Keenan, is that existing government programs cannot keep pace with the private economics of housing. For example, the government will provide assistance to middle-income families trying to buy their first home in Quincy, but, because housing prices are so high, often times those families do not qualify for the government programs.

"To solve this, the federal government has to ease eligibility requirements so that middle-class families can qualify," Keenan said. "The push to do this should start at the local level, here in Quincy and surrounding communities."

Another part of the problem, Keenan said, is there is great profit in market rate housing for developers.

"To get developers to focus on the issue of affordable housing, government has to make it worthwhile for them," Keenan said. He said cities and towns should urge the state government to expand existing grant and loan programs for affordable housing.

"The state does have grant and loan programs in place, and they do work," he said. He pointed to the preservation of affordable rental units at Wollaston Manor as an example.

"At Wollaston Manor, the city, state, a non-profit housing group, and a private developer were able to preserve approximately 160 affordable units," he said.

"Programs that allowed for that success, should be expanded, and the city should play a role in urging the state to expand them."

Keenan also suggested the city urge the state to look at TIFs (Tax Incremental Financing agreements) for the development of affordable housing. Presently, state law allows for such agreements for commercial development, but not for housing.

"If the state was to pass legislation for tax financing agreements for affordable residential development, they could be used at the local level to redevelop old, underutilized buildings for affordable housing," Keenan said.

"Providing affordable housing is a challenge and Quincy cannot solve the problem on its own; however, the city council should take an active role, with other communities, non-profits, the banking community and grassroots organizations in the region, in pressing for more action at the state and federal levels."

Quincy 2000 Will Host Special Business Course

Quincy 2000, 1250 Hancock St., will host a 14-session business course beginning Sept. 20.

Executive Director Joseph Mannarino said the course will combine programs of UMass-Boston Small Business Development Center (SBDC) and the South Eastern Economic Corporation (SEED Corp.).

The course will run for 14 non-holiday Thursdays from 6 to 9 p.m. The full course costs $149 but income-eligible Quincy residents can receive a full tuition refund. SEED Corp.'s two fundamental sessions can be taken free.

Application deadline is Sept. 7. Class size will be limited. Applications are available from Marcia Golden and Dick Mason at Quincy 2000 or by calling 617-847-1454.

SBDC's NxLevel program is a business-training course designed to enhance entrepreneurial skills and assist in creating a comprehensive business plan, Mannarino said. The program was developed to provide instruction targeted to start-up businesses and those in their first three years of operation. Developed by the Western Enterprise Network at the University of Colorado, the materials and curriculum are based on feedback from over 24,000 entrepreneurs in 32 states who have taken entrepreneurial training courses over the past five years.

As such, the course is the nation's state-of-the-art business training program, Mannarino said.

Quincy 2000's NxLevel Quincy enhances the program by starting the course with SEED Corp.'s business and financial fundamentals sessions which have been received with enthusiasm by entrepreneurs throughout southeastern Massachusetts.

"Learn it tonight; use it tomorrow" NxLevel Quincy is designed to help entrepreneurs learn the skills needed to create, develop and strengthen successful business ventures. Unlike other education courses, NxLevel addresses the special needs of the entrepreneur by providing a practical, hands-on, and common sense approach to developing their business, Mannarino said. The course includes prominent business leaders, professionals and lenders as guest speakers, a comprehensive textbook, workbook and resource guide, and free business consulting.

Students will learn how to determine the feasibility of their business, how to write a business plan, how to identify opportunities and markets for their business, and how and where to get funding.

12 Students Receive Special Awards At BC High

Twelve Quincy students recently received special awards at Boston College High School at a Senior Class Night.

The 12 are Daniel J. Cabral, Paul E. Cremin, Michael R. Cusack, Duncan M. Devlin, Kristopher R. Farr, Ryan P. Gannon, Mark W. Giese, Jon D. Morales, Matthew T. O'Malley, Brendan R. Pitts, Daniel E. Pritchard and Kenneth R. Reichel.

The Celtic Culture Club presented Cabral with the St. Columbanus Award for his musical contributions to the club. The National Merit Scholarship Committee awarded Cabral a rating of Commended Scholar for his outstanding score in the National Merit Scholarship Exam.

Cremin received the Excellence Award in Engineering Graphics, naming him best in his class.

Cusack received a Lawrence E. O'Rourke English Award. He also received the Maxima Cum Laude award from the National Council for Economic Education for his score in the National Test of Economic Literacy.

Devlin received an Academic Decathlon Award for representing the school in several academic competitions this year. He won a letter and was awarded a pin for his service as captain of a team that earned finalist honors at the state championship. Devlin also won the Excellence Award for Advanced Placement Computer Science AB, naming him best in his class.

Farr was presented an Air Force Military Academy AFROTC Scholarship. He also won the Excellence Award in Honors Physics, naming him best in his class. He also won the Wentworth Merit Scholarship, Boston University's Dean's Scholarship, and a grant from Northeastern University.

Gannon won the Excellence Award in Pre-Calculus, naming him best in his class.

Giese received the Maxima Cum Laude award from the National Council for Economic Education for his high score in the National Test of Economic Literacy. He received the Excellence Award in Probability and Statistics, naming him best in his class.

The National Merit Scholarship Committee awarded Morales a rating of Commended Scholar for his outstanding score in the National Merit Scholarship Exam.

O'Malley won nine awards: The Eagle Award for his contributions to the success of the school paper; the St. Columbanus Award for his musical contributions on the guitar and penny-whistle; the Stephen J. Collins Modern Language Award for demonstrating enthusiasm and industry in his study of Spanish and Spanish culture.

The National Merit Scholarship Committee also awarded O'Malley a rating of Commended Scholar for his score in the National Merit Scholarship Exam. He received an award for finishing among the top 10 in the senior class, and Excellence Awards in four subjects.

Pitts received the Student Council award. He was president of the Student Council. Pitts also received Fairfield University's Dean's Scholarship.

Pritchard received the Excellence Award for English IV, naming him best in his class.

Reichel received the Model United Nations award for his leadership and outstanding contribution to the club, whose work culminates in a trip to an assembly of the United Nations. He also received the Excellence Award in English IV, naming him best in his class.

Used Car License Request Withdrawn

Peter J. Bongarzone, owner of Granite City Auto Sales, 694 Washington St., withdrew without prejudice, his request for a Motor II License at the former Quin-Oil Co. near the Fore River Bridge.

Prior to his withdrawal, the License Board including acting Police Chief William Falco and Ward 2 Councilor Dan Raymondi opposed the request citing traffic problems

Falco said there would be "unsafe conditions" with cars exiting or entering the area near the bridge.

Citing that a company once requested a license to sell boats in the same area, Chairman Joseph Shea said the area is "too tight for a retail of any kind."

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman advised Bongarzone to try to find another area and told him to withdraw.

Gorman said when the new bridge is built, the traffic pattern would change causing more problems if a business were in the area.

Raymondi said that wasn't his vision of what this corridor should look like approaching the bridge, but wants instead to enhance the "gateway to our city."

He said he had "great empathy for the Quinn family, owners of the building, and said he hoped the city would reimburse them and make the site open space.

Quincy ArtsFest Acceptance Of Entries Friday

All entries for the fourth annual Quincy ArtsFest will be accepted tomorrow (Friday) at the Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway.

Entries will be received from 2 to 4 p.m. and from 6 to 8 p.m.

The Quincy ArtsFest, sponsored by the Quincy Art Association, Quincy Park and Recreation Departments and the Best Western-Adams Inn, will feature a Juried Art Show, Juried Photography Show, Quincy Art Association Members' Show and a Young Artists' Show. Entries in all of these categories will be accepted tomorrow.

The Quincy ArtsFest will be held Saturday, Sept. 15 and Sunday, Sept. 16. All participating artists will also be invited to a Friday evening, VIP show premiere Sept. 14.

"The Quincy ArtsFest has grown into a wonderful display of culture in Quincy's most beautiful park," said Mayor James Sheets. "We have been fortunate to draw the interest of some of the finest artists and photographers in the region. I encourage all who have participated in the past to join us again and those who haven't been part of the Quincy ArtsFest should strongly consider being a part of this fantastic show."

In the Juried Art and Juried Photography shows, there is a maximum of three entries per artist. There is a non-refundable fee of $8 required per entry.

There are nine different categories in the juried shows that will feature $100 prizes for first place, $75 for second place and $50 for third place per category. The Best in Show prize will be $500.

If you do not yet have a "Call for Entries" form, there will be forms available at the acceptance of entries.

For more information, call the Quincy Art Association at 617-770-2482.

D'Amico Supports Buy Back Of Flood-Affected Homes In WQ

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico said he supports a proposal that the state buy back flood-prone homes in the area of Ballou and Sheldon Sts.

D'Amico said he is working alongside state Sen. Michael Morrissey and state Rep. Bruce Ayers to make their proposal to the Legislature come to fruition.

Citing years of flooding in the area and a lack of state funding, D'Amico said it was time to realize the Furnace Brook Flood Control Project was not a viable solution.

"Over 40 years have passed and the problem of flooded properties still exists for dozens of residents who demand and deserve immediate relief," said D'Amico.

Once the properties were purchased, D'Amico said, detention basins could be installed to improve the quality of life for residents in the neighborhood.

Over 200 Attend Workshop On Homebuying Process

More than 200 people planning to buy a new home participated in a recent education series sponsored by the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (MHFA) in partnership with Jack Conway & Co. and Conway Financial Services.

A total of four sessions were held between April and June, reaching potential buyers in the Quincy, Dorchester, Brockton and New Bedford areas.

Each featured an in-depth discussion of the homebuying process that covered everything from choosing a neighborhood to negotiating the offer to preparing for the closing.

Conway Vice President of Sales Denis Lilla presented the homebuying section of the seminar. Carol Bulman, president of Conway Financial Services, and Maureen Moriarty, marketing and training officer of the MHFA, teamed up for the discussion of mortgage options.

Participants were shown how to obtain a free copy of their credit report, as well as how lenders evaluate loan applications. The speakers also explained income and credit guidelines and how to take advantage of special MHFA loan programs for first-time buyers.

"We are very encouraged by the number of people who came out to learn about the homebuying process," Bulman said. "All of those who attended were able to have their questions answered, and many even stayed afterward to speak to a real estate agent or mortgage specialist one-on-one."

Bulman said the forums were especially valuable for those potential home shoppers looking for information on the MHFA's loan programs for first-time buyers.

"The mortgage products offered through the MHFA are among the best for first-time buyers, especially since they have below-market interest rates," Bulman said. "We are very fortunate to have had Maureen Moriarty from the MHFA on hand to explain how these programs work."

Founded in 1957, Norwell-based Jack Conway & Co. is the largest privately owned, independent real estate company in Massachusetts, with more than 600 sales agents in 36 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

MHFA is the state's affordable housing bank, lending money at rates below the conventional market to support rental and homeownership opportunities for low- and moderate-income residents of the Bay State.

MORE THAN HOLDING YOUR OWN

Despite the reported drop in stock markets, the real estate market is still strong. As you know, the real estate market is the only market that has never crashed. Home prices across the country continue to appreciate steadily. According to one estimate, the median home price will rise 4% this year to $144,000. That forecast sits atop last year's 4.9% gain, or $6,500. Over the past five years, the median home price has risen 25.8%, or $28,500. As interest rates drop, putting homes within reach of a greater number of buyers, demand increases. With housing inventories standing at less than half the levels that existed a decade ago, there is good reason to believe sellers will get their asking prices and home prices will remain strong.

With today's interest rates at their lowest in years, it's a great time to purchase a home. ERA CENTRAL REAL ESTATE can show you homes that meet your budget and satisfy your wish list of features. As members of the Multiple Listing service, we can show you literally any home in the area. Call us at 617-328-1312 to arrange a convenient consultation, or visit us at 128 McGrath Highway.

HINT: It is estimated that every 1 percentage-point drop in mortgage interest rates qualifies 250,000 more families for mortgages across the country.

Atty. Michael Covais Named Chairman Of Coughlin Campaign

Kevin Coughlin, candidate for Ward 3 City Councillor, has named Attorney Michael Covais as the chairman of his campaign.

Covais served as campaign legal counsel during former Ambassador and Congressman Brian Donnelly's bid for governor.

Covais, a long time resident of Ward 3 who practices law at 304 Victory Rd.,

North Quincy, said he was happy to serve on Coughlin's campaign.

"It is an honor to work for Kevin," said Covais. "His hard work and dedication to our community are an inspiration for us all."

Covais served 12 years on the Board of Trustees of Sagamore Place Condominiums on West Squantum St., 10 years of which he was chairman. He also served as president of the Board of Directors of the Greater Quincy Child Care Center in North Quincy. Additionally, Covais was the community representative of the School Advisory Council at the Bernazzani School and is currently a parent member of the Council at the Montclair School in North Quincy.

Connolly Addresses Seniors' Concerns At Breakfast Forums

Ward 4 City Council candidate Bryan Connolly recently held breakfast forums in Ward 4 to address concerns of local senior citizens. Held at the Drohan Apartments on Copeland St. and the Bauer House on Water St., the forums gave residents the opportunity to raise issues of concern in Ward 4 and to discuss Connolly's approach to those issues.

Both communities expressed a desire to have their issues heard and to see real results. At Drohan Apartments, concerns focused on traffic and safety. Drohan residents expressed their need for a pedestrian light, re-painting of crosswalks surrounding the apartments, and handicap access to curbs in the area. They also told Connolly of their desire for more police presence in their parking lot at night.

The Bauer House's breakfast forum gave residents a chance to communicate concerns regarding improved quality of life at the community. The residents shared with Connolly their desire for increased activities, as well as expanded transportation services within the city.

If elected Ward 4 councillor, Connolly said he would work together with seniors and all residents of Ward 4 to tackle the city's issues with honesty and hard work.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Donating Blood: Safe, Simple, Life Saver

Only 5 percent of the eligible population donates blood, according to the American Red Cross. This means that tens of thousands of potential blood donors in Massachusetts have never donated. And while the need for donor blood is on the rise and blood donation and transfusion are safer than ever before, the blood supply is on the decline.

Allan Kliman, M.D., chair of the Massachusetts Medical Society's Public Health Section on Transfusion Medicine, encourages all eligible donors to give blood. "Blood donation is safe, convenient, and it saves lives," he said.

First-Time Donors Dwindling

"For a number of reasons there's a fall-off among first-time donors," Dr. Kliman said. "Also, there's been no increase among those who have donated previously to match the increase in blood consumption brought on by surgical advances and an aging population."

Dr. Kliman pointed out that the blood supply had been kept at an adequate level for several decades by donors who are now elderly and less able to donate.

In addition, a recent decision by the American Red Cross to tighten blood donation standards is expected to prevent a small, but very important percentage of donors from giving blood. The restrictions, aimed at lowering the potential risk of spreading mad cow disease through transfusion, apply particularly to people who have spent a total of three months in the United Kingdom during the past five years. The Red Cross, which manages nearly half of the nation's blood supply and is responsible for blood donations in Massachusetts, expects that the new standards will eliminate up to 8 percent of its donors nationally.

Groups Collaborate To Increase Blood Donations

To compensate for the shortfall and to shore up supplies during the times of year when they are normally at their lowest, the Massachusetts Medical Society, the American Red Cross and hospital blood centers in Massachusetts have been working together to encourage prior donors and potential donors to give blood.

The basic standards state that donors must:

- Be at least 17 years of age.
- Weigh at least 110

Shop Locally

pounds.

- Be in good health on the day of donation.
- Have no history of exposure to hepatitis or AIDS.
- Have not donated blood in the past eight weeks.

Additional medical history is taken when you volunteer to donate to make certain that you are a qualified candidate. The Red Cross advises first-time donors to get a good night's sleep, eat a good breakfast or lunch, and drink plenty of liquids before donating and avoid strenuous activities after donating.

The American Red Cross Blood Services-New England Region operates seven donor centers throughout Massachusetts and sponsors blood drives almost daily at various locations. In addition, many hospitals throughout Massachusetts collect blood from volunteer donors.

For a list of the hospital blood donation sites in Massachusetts, visit the Medical Society Web site (www.mms.org). A listing of Red Cross blood donation centers and community blood drives as well as additional information on blood donation can be found at the Blood Services Web site (www.newenglandblood.org) or by calling New England Region Administrative Headquarters at 800-462-9400.

Maintain Your Bright Smile

(NU) - If you love coffee or red wine, you know what damage they can do to your once white smile.

Fortunately, advancements in dental technology allow you to reverse the damage and return your teeth to their original shade. You can give your smile the needed boost by visiting your dentist for a professional bleaching procedure or by using an at-home kit.

To keep your teeth their brightest in between any whitening method, the dental experts from Rembrandt

Oral Care Products offer these tips:

- Maintain good oral hygiene. Brush your teeth at least twice a day and floss regularly. This will help prevent bacteria buildup that can lead to stains.
- Visit your dentist regularly. Schedule an appointment with your dentist twice a year to have your teeth professionally cleaned.
- Moderation is the key. Caffeine and wine can stain your teeth, but that doesn't mean you have to give them up entirely. Instead, try using them in moderation.
- Get a tooth boost. If you already have a whitening mouthguard, try the Rembrandt Plus Refill Kit. The kit contains the same safe bleaching formula used by dentists but in a lower concentration.

For more tooth tips, call 1-800-548-3663.

14-Year-Olds Show Skills In Babe Ruth Regional Tourney

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy 14-year-old Babe Ruth team showed it belonged in the recent New England Regional tournament held at Adams Field not just because it was the host squad, but for its diamond skills.

Seeded eighth in the eight-team, double-elimination tourney, Quincy (0-2) played well as it battled into extra innings in both games, but costly errors spoiled any chances of advancing to later rounds.

In the opener against top seed Stamford, Conn., Quincy rallied from an early 4-0 deficit to even the score after six innings, but Stamford produced three runs in the eighth for a 7-4 victory.

In the second game against Taunton, the Eastern Mass. champs, Quincy held a 5-4 lead after six, but defensive lapses in the seventh and eighth innings enabled Taunton to walk away with an 8-5 win.

"We made key mistakes in key situations," said head coach Paul Bregoli. "Fourteen year olds are going to do that. The teams that did advance made those routine plays. But we were as good as most of the teams in the tourney."

In the final last Thursday, the Portland, Maine, team shut out Stamford, 1-0, to advance to the Babe Ruth World Series beginning tomorrow (Friday) and ending Aug. 25 in Longview, Wash.

All in all, the tournament was a huge success and Quincy Babe Ruth officials believe it has a legitimate chance of hosting the World Series in 2003.

"Right now, I'd say it's about 99.9 percent," said Dick Lombardi, president Quincy Babe Ruth. "We just got an invitation to go on an orientation [in November] on the World Series. Everything I've heard has been positive. I wouldn't say it's for sure, but in my mind I feel we'll get it. We could not have done much better than we did."

The league also thanked the parents for their help, as they housed 90 visiting players for their stay during the six-day tournament. The following parents headed up the housing committee: coordinator Karen Folino, Marianne Marinelli, Marie Sullivan, Kathy Tobin, Debbie Malvesti and Clare

Richardson.

"The most impressive thing was the comments about the host families," Lombardi said. "The parents really came forward and did an outstanding job. This is something we could not have done by ourselves."

"One of the hallmarks of Babe Ruth baseball is that the visiting players must be housed by the host community, and the parents from Quincy rose to the occasion once again," said Peter Williams, vice president Quincy Babe Ruth. "Not an easy task, it was embraced by the Quincy community wholeheartedly."

Opening ceremonies were held prior to Quincy's first game. Patrick White, 10, of the Quincy Junior league threw out the ceremonial first pitch. Lombardi presented White, a Jimmy Fund patient, with a $500 donation for the Jimmy Fund.

In Quincy's first game,

Folino tossed a gem, allowing only three hits and two walks while striking out eight in seven innings.

In the third, Stamford capitalized on Quincy's shoddy fielding to jump out to a 4-0 lead. Quincy answered with a pair of runs in the bottom half. Matt Tobin (walk), Dave Jaehnig (double) and Kevin Richardson (walk) reached to load the bases. Justin Thorley walked to knock in the first run and Dean Sandonato grounded to short to bring home the second run.

Folino no-hit Stamford over the next three innings. In the sixth, Jaehnig stroked a two-run double to right-center to knot the game at 4-4 and eventually force extra innings.

Sandonato relieved Folino in the eighth and Quincy couldn't catch a break. With two strikes on the first batter, Quincy failed to get a called third strike and the next pitch resulted in a double. After a bunt single and an error loaded the bases, a pop-up dropped behind the second base bag with the infield in for the go-ahead run. The next batter bunted over Sandonato's head for two more runs. Sandonato regrouped to fan the final three batters.

Quincy tried to make a valiant comeback, but was unable to bring home runners from second and third.

In the second game, Santon took the mound and allowed two runs on seven hits in four innings. After Taunton scored an unearned run in the first, Quincy responded with two runs in the bottom half on Thorley's and Sandonato's RBI singles.

Taunton scored a run in the third and fourth innings to take a 3-2 lead, but Quincy came back with two more runs in the bottom of the fourth for a 4-3 lead. With the bases loaded, Sandonato scored on a wild pitch and Malvesti scored on an error.

Once again, Taunton evened the game with an unearned run in the fifth. Quincy quickly regained the lead, though, when Richardson walked with the bases loaded to force home Marinelli in the sixth. Taunton escaped further damage when Quincy bounced into an inning-ending, 1-2-3 double play.

Taunton scored another unearned run in the seventh to send the game into extra innings, where it scored two more unearned runs to secure the win.

"Expectations for this group of kids is pretty high," Bregoli said. "It's been that way since Little League. It's unfair to expect them to win every time."

"It was a great experience for them," he added. "They got a chance to measure themselves against other kids from New England. And they're not that far away."

Granite Return To Gridiron Saturday

The Quincy Granite return to action Saturday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium when they clash with the Randolph Oilers for the second time this season.

Quincy (5-0) held on for a 14-12 victory in the first meeting five weeks ago. Randolph (3-1) will look a bit different, having added several players from the Boston Cowboys, which recently disbanded due low player numbers.

Both teams will be well-rested. Quincy is coming off a bye week, while Randolph's game against the Mass Havoc Sunday was postponed due to rain.

"Randolph is playing well right now," said head coach Ken McPhee. "I'm sure they're going to have some payback for us."

MORE BELTED DRIVERS

Americans are buckling up in greater numbers, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. While there are regional discrepancies associated with seat belt use, since 1995, when the government began regular surveys, seat belt use nationwide has increased from 58% to an average 71%. Motorists in the West have the highest rate of seat belt use (80%), and those in the Northeast have the lowest (67%). Seat belt use is highest in those states with tough enforcement regulations. Wearing a seat belt reduces deaths in passenger-car accidents by 45% and in light-truck crashes by 60%. Seat belts are particularly effective in rollover accidents, where they prevent the occupants from being thrown from the vehicle.

Buckle up! The statistics prove the case. For safety sake it is also important to keep your car in top operating condition. Here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, we are small enough to provide friendly, personal service and large enough to have the latest, most modern equipment and outstanding ASE Certified technicians. # Cooperstown Experience Memorable For Local All Stars

The Quincy 12-year-old All-Star Team recently enjoyed a wonderful, week-long experience in Oneonta, N.Y., home of Cooperstown Baseball World.

Coached by Bob Bossart and Mark Jaehnig, the 14 boys finished the Cooperstown Tournament with a 5-3 record, good for fourth place out of 10 teams from across the country.

In addition to the games, they visited the Hall of Fame, attended a minor league game, met former Yankee Clete Boyer and got a taste of college life as they stayed in the Oneonta State University dormitories.

The players represented Quincy well, not only with their hustling play on the diamond, but also with their enthusiasm and fun-loving attitudes as they made friends with boys from all over the country.

The tone for the week was set on a Saturday with all 30 teams assembled around the main field for the opening ceremonies. When mechanical problems developed, Quincy gladly accepted an invitation to sing the National Anthem, which became a trademark as the team sang the "Star Spangled Banner" before each of its games.

The following day, Quincy opened the tourney on fire as Matt Jaehnig retired the first 10 batters en route to a one-hit shutout in a 10-0 win over the Connecticut Navigator AAU Club.

John Allen cracked a single, double and homer and David Guerriero added a double and two singles to power the offense. Lammy Papalambros and John Pelletier had two hits apiece. Jim Garrigan had a clutch hit and shined as usual at shortstop.

In the second game, Quincy defeated the New Jersey All-Stars, 10-3. Allen turned in a monster game, belting two homers, ripping a single and laying down a successful squeeze bunt to break open a close game. Jaehnig and Papalambros collected three hits apiece and Matt Edgerly stroked a double and a single.

Quincy improved to 3-0 in the tourney after rallying from a 4-0 deficit to score a 7-4 victory over the Farmingdale Mets of Long Island, N.Y. Jared Tucker pitched a strong game with relief help from Mike Garland. Kevin Bossart banded out three hits, while Garland and Jaehnig each had a pair. Chris Rooney and Tom Pasquantonio had clutch hits that sparked a third-inning rally.

Playing its fourth game in two days, Quincy self-destructed as it suffered its first loss, 13-2, to the powerful Hornets of Deep Creek, Va. Bossart pitched well, but the team committed six errors that led to 10 unearned runs. Paul Doolan knocked in both runs with a sharp single and Rob DeAngelis had a beautiful bunt single.

In the pivotal game of the week, Quincy dropped a heartbreaking, 4-2 loss to the Flemington New Jersey Rockets. Once again it was one bad defensive inning that cost the team, with four errors leading to three unearned runs.

Garland tossed a strong game, allowing only four hits and one run. He also did the job at the plate with two hits, three stole bases and two runs scored. Allen drove in both runs with a sacrifice fly and a double.

Bossart, the catcher, made a great hustling play by backing up first base, picking up an errant throw and chasing the runner down at second—all while wearing his full catcher's gear. Quincy also pulled off a perfectly timed pickoff play at second, which was the best defensive play of the week.

In the playoff round, Quincy fell, 7-1, to the California Crush—the eventual tourney champs. Quincy tied the game at 1-1 in the second inning when Guerriero squeezed home Pelletier (double). Unfortunately, Quincy's bats went silent while the Crush began to crush the ball.

Quincy showed a lot of character by bouncing back to beat a tough Decatur, Ind., team, 5-1, snapping its three-game slide. Pelletier scattered six hits to record the complete-game victory. Garland walked three times, stole five bases and scored three runs. Allen had two more RBI. Tucker had two hits, and Jaehnig singled and placed a perfect squeeze bunt to score an insurance run. Garrigan excelled at shortstop and Doolan made a super throw from center field to cut down a run.

In the final game, Quincy routed the New York Stars, 12-3. Tucker (home run), Rooney and Doolan each had two hits to lead the offense. Edgerly and Guerriero each had squeeze bunts and Pasquantonio pulled off a hit-and-run play. Jaehnig knocked in the winning run and pitched two scoreless innings for the win. Edgerly earned the save.

City Tennis Tournament Starts Sept. 6

Entry forms are now available for the Quincy Recreation Department's 31st annual Tennis Tournament, announces Recreation Director Barry Welch.

The Quincy Municipal Credit Union has once again agreed to serve as co-sponsor.

Entry forms can be picked up at the Quincy Municipal Credit Union, the Recreation Department office, City Hall and at various tennis courts throughout the city. The deadline for entry is Aug. 30 and the tournament will start Sept. 6.

Cost is $11 for adults and $8 for youth. There are T-shirts for all participants. Matches are played nights and weekends at the Russell Park Tennis Courts on the grounds of the Center for Technical Education.

The tournament, believed to be the largest municipal tourney in New England, has events for men, women, boys and girls, as well as mixed doubles. The director is John Franceschini, who has guided the event for over 20 years.

Events scheduled are: men's singles, women's singles, men's 50 and over, men's 35 and over, women's 35 and over, women's doubles, men's doubles, boys' 16 and under, girls' 16 and under, and mixed doubles.

There is also a special event, the men's "B," which is open to all participants in the men's singles who are defeated in the first round. Also, a new division of play has been added this year with events for men or women who are employees of the city of Quincy.

For more information call the Recreation Department at 617-376-1394.

Quincy Girls Compete In Under 16 Soccer Tournament

The Quincy Under 16 Division II girls soccer team recently finished with a 1-1-1 record in the state tournament held at UMass-Amherst, almost knocking out the first-place team with a tie.

Sweeper Ashley Ridge and outside backs Megan Griffin, Jamie Clifford, Amanda Murphy, Mary Lombard and Heather Cesero played outstanding defense.

Caroline Fields, Lorin Beaton and Nancy Yankun controlled the middle of the field. The outside midfielders consisted of Breanne Therrien and Erin Herlihy.

Strikers Katy Faherty, Sasha Mackey and Katie Murphy led the offense. Goalie Sarah Shea shined in net.

Quincy reached the tournament by capturing the South Shore League championship at Oliver Ames High School in Easton. The team blanked Bridgewater, 1-0, in the finals and ousted Weymouth with a 4-2 overtime victory in the semifinals.

Quincy finished the regular season in fourth place with a 4-4 record, locking up the final spot in the league playoffs.

DINNER THEATRE: THE TAFFETA'S

AUGUST 15, 16, 22 & 23

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You sometimes go to extremes to prove a point. But this time, you won't have to. Supporters are ready, falling over themselves to come to help you make your case.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Venus might be your ruling planet, but Mars is in the picture as well. So don't be surprised if your romantic relationships are a bit rocky at this time. But they'll soon smooth over.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Gemini's might rush into romance and risk being wrong about someone rather than be left with no one. But this is one time when it's wiser to be wary of where your heart takes you.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) With all (or most) of those pesky problems behind you, take time for your family and friends. Travel aspects are favored, with long-distance journeys high on the list.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might have started to question the wisdom of being open with someone you hoped you could trust. But be assured that you won't be disappointed. You'll soon hear good news.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You have a reputation for honesty and integrity, and that will help turn around a situation that was not only disappointing but also quite unfair. Good luck.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A happy event creates a closer tie with a family member who seemed hopelessly estranged. Positive aspects also dominate in important career matters.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your ruling planet, Pluto, helps you adjust to change. So, stop putting off that long-delayed move, and make it with the assurance that you're doing the right thing.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You have a wonderful capacity to learn quickly and well. This will help you when you are faced with an opportunity to move on to a new path in life.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Good news. You suddenly find that you're not facing that new challenge alone. You now have someone at your side, ready to offer whatever support you might need.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your versatility — which is just one of those aspects of yourself that makes you so special — helps you adapt to the challenges of a new and exciting opportunity.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your sensitive nature picks up on the needs of others. But what about your desires? You need to take more time to assess what your goals are and, if necessary, redirect them.

BORN THIS WEEK: You give your trust openly and easily. People find you easy to be with and enjoy your wit, your good sense and your capacity to love and be loved.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Have you ever thought about all the things that you planned on doing back in your early years? How many of them have you been able to do? How many times have you waited for "someday"? How many times have you dreamed of the future and what you were going to do when that time came?

Some people spend their entire lives dreaming of the future only to realize in later years that their treasured dream is still very far away. Many of us waste much time wishing instead of doing what we really dream of and want to do... always thinking that we can put it off for another year or another month... And that time never seems to come.

Someone once said that "Anything is possible, if you set your mind to it... Remember this 'old world of ours' is full of wonderful experiences. So don't keep your dream locked away for 'someday' because that 'someday' is now before you."

"Dreams never hurt anybody if he keeps working right behind the dream to make as much of it come real as he can."... F.W. Woolworth

Robert H. Rimmer, 84

Author Of Controversial Best-Seller

A memorial service was held for Robert H. Rimmer, 84, of Quincy, author of the controversial best-selling book, "The Harrad Experiment."

He died Aug. 1 at home. "The Harrad Experiment," published in 1962, sold more than 3 million copies over the next 12 years, and was later made into a movie starring Don Johnson. It explored the idea of male and female cohabitation in a college dorm and is credited by some for the creation of coeducational dormitories.

Mr. Rimmer went on to write many more books, including "Proposition 31," "Me and Samuel's Wife" and "The Lov-Ed Solution." His writing offered alternative models of intimacy in and out of marriage and were popular reading among the "free-love generation."

Born in Boston, he was a lifelong resident of Quincy. He graduated from Quincy High School in 1934. He continued his education at Thayer Academy and graduated from Bates College in 1939 with a bachelor's degree in English.

He graduated from Wake Forest Finance School as an Army private first-class and attended Duke University for infantry training and advanced army finance. He received his master's degree in business administration from Harvard Business School in 1945.

Mr. Rimmer served in the Army as a 2nd lieutenant in the China-Burma-India Theater. He was honorably discharged in 1946.

He was president of the family business, Relief Printing Corp., for many years. Under his direction, Relief Printing expanded from Boston to New York and Los Angeles. He also published his work with his own publishing company, Challenge Press.

He was a member of the Neighborhood Club and United First Parish.

He is survived by his wife of 60 years, Erma Rimmer of Quincy; two sons, Robert Henry Rimmer Jr. of Arizona and Stephen King Rimmer of Duxbury; and four grandchildren.

Quincy Public Schools Offers GED Testing

Quincy Public Schools is offering GED Testing Mondays and Wednesdays from 4:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the CTE Building, 107 Woodward Ave., on the following dates: Oct. 1 and Oct. 3; Oct. 22 and Oct. 24; and Nov. 26 and Nov. 28.

Also available are an official GED practice examination and GED preparation training.

Registration is required and candidates must bring two forms of identification — one must be a picture ID — and a $55 money order. No cash or personal checks will be accepted.

To register or for more information, call (617) 984-8888.

In 2000, the GED testing program experienced the second greatest number of test-takers in its 59 year history.

"We are predicting a significant increase in the number of adults taking the tests before the December 2001 end date for the 1988 Series GED Tests," said Joan Chikos Auchter, executive director of the GED Testing Service in Washington, DC.

In the year 2000, more adults worldwide took one or more GED Tests (860,684) than any other year except 1996 (867,802) just before GEDTS raised the minimum passing score on the GED Test Battery.

According to a recent report of the American Council on Education (ACE), two percent more adults completing the GED Tests in Quincy met GED score requirements in 2000 than in the previous year.

Keith Segalla, director of QPS Adult and Continuing Education and chief examiner, said 425 people completed the GED battery in Quincy during 2000. The average GED candidate in Quincy is between 16 and 20 years of age and has completed Grade 10. Thirty percent of candidates are 20 years of age or older.

In 2000, a total of 747,617 people completed the GED battery tests in the United States, its territories and affiliated areas, and throughout Canada. As a result of testing conducted at more than 3,000 testing centers, 68.6 percent of the examinees earned scores that qualified them for a GED diploma.

Two of every three adults tested reported that they took the tests for further training and education beyond the high school level.

The current GED Tests battery will be discontinued Dec. 31, 2001. Partial scores from the current GED test battery may not be combined with scores from the new series to be offered starting Jan. 1, 2002.

GED candidates are urged to complete the five tests in the GED Tests battery as soon as possible as demand at test sites is anticipated to reach record levels by December.

Emmanouil Failed Lien Triggers Controversy

property, control of which was lost to Fleet Bank and ultimately MARAD in default of a $55 million loan.

The creditor told Harold that he had considered placing a lien on the Brookline property but found that it had been sold.

Harold said ownership of the $2.7 million mansion had been transferred from Emmanouil's name to Marine Industrial Services, a subsidiary of MHI, "for less than $10 on April 3, 2000, only 20 days after Mayor Sheets signed the City Council resolution."

Another transfer of the property from Marine Industrial Services to Kathryn B. Kavadis for $2.7 million in cash, no mortgage, took place on Sept. 6, 2000, said Harold. Kathryn B. Kavadis was not further identified.

"The city had a chance to recover an estimated $500,000 on the debt owed by Emmanouil and Massachusetts Heavy Industries and they blew it," said Harold.

"Instead, the taxpayers will have to pay back $800,000 a year for the next 20 years on the loan it took out and gave to Emmanouil.

"In collecting taxes and debt owed to the city, there is no delay in slapping a lien on bungalows in West Quincy. Why was this person treated differently and allowed to transfer his Brookline mansion beyond the reach of the city's Law Department?" asked Harold.

In response, McGrath began by saying that the council resolve sponsored by Harold March 6 was "completely incorrect" because it listed Marine Industrial Services as holding the mortgage on the 130 Goddard Ave. property. A review of the records, McGrath said, revealed that Fleet Bank held the mortgage on the property.

"Either it's a shocking misunderstanding of real estate fundamentals or it's an intentional misstatement of fact," McGrath said.

McGrath further explained that the Law Department pushed ahead with the resolve, bringing a 33-count complaint before the court

March 21 and requesting a lien shortly thereafter.

"We brought in a motion for attachment in accordance with the resolve and the judge wouldn't allow it," said McGrath, adding that the decision by Judge Robert Mulligan was issued March 28.

"The Judge ruled that all actions of the corporation were separate from actions of Emmanouil," McGrath continued. "We tried to argue otherwise but the judge said there was no 'paper trail' to prove it."

"We did, in fact, act promptly."

THE SWATEK FAMILY thanked guests at a benefit held Saturday at St. Joseph's parish center by sending along this family picture from their home in Wisconsin. The benefit raised $50,000 for Quincy native Sharon (Paolucci) Swatek, who has lost both arms and both legs in her battle against a rare and deadly type of Strep A invasive bacteria. The Swatek family includes, from left, husband Lon Swatek, a firefighter with the Wauwatose Fire Department, Wauwatose, WI; daughter Kelly Swatek; Swatek herself; and son Al Swatek.

Family and friends of Quincy native Sharon (Paolucci) Swatek raised roughly $50,000 at a sold-out benefit Saturday night at St. Joseph's parish center in Quincy Point.

Swatek, who now lives in Milwaukee, WI, with husband Lon Swatek, a firefighter with the Wauwatose Fire Department, and their children Al and Kelly, faces staggering medical expenses after the amputation of both arms and legs to save her life from a deadly type of Strep A invasive bacteria.

"It was wall-to-wall people," said retired Quincy Fire Captain John DiPietro. Sharon's uncle, who estimated Saturday's crowd at close to 600

After Infected Dead Crow Found

Mosquitoes Being Caught To Test For West Nile Virus

The Norfolk County Mosquito Control Project (NCMCP) placed a "gravit trap" at 84 Furnace Brook Parkway Monday to collect mosquitoes to be tested for the West Nile Virus.

The placing of the trap is one of several mosquito control activities at the city, county, and state levels in response to the Aug. 14 discovery of a dead crow at 122 Furnace Brook Parkway which tested positive for West Nile Virus.

In addition to the collection and testing of mosquitoes, said Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue, the NCMCP is monitoring the mosquito population and viral levels in the area and will continue to honor requests for aerosol applications on early Thursday mornings for nuisance control of mosquitoes, including a request to spray in the area along Furnace Brook Parkway where the dead bird was found.

In conjunction with the city, the NCMCP is also conducting larval control measures in the salt marsh areas of Quincy and will monitor the Furnace Brook Parkway area to determine if additional larvicide briquettes are required in previously treated catch basins.

Mosquito Protection Tips

NCMCP Superintendent John Smith said the project is prepared to conduct mosquito control treatments in the city if multiple bird deaths are reported in combination with findings of positive pools of mosquitoes in the city.

But Gallahue urged calm, emphasizing that one positive bird was not an indicator of viral activity in the city as the bird could have flown into the area from another location. She also reassured residents that fewer than one percent of people infected with WNV develop serious illness.

The best course of action, Gallahue advised, was to take measures to limit exposure to mosquitoes, including removing stagnant water from one's property, limiting outdoor activity at dawn and dusk, and using mosquito repellent that includes DEET.

Gallahue also urged anyone experiencing any symptoms of WNV to see a doctor immediately as a precaution. WNV symptoms include: high fever, severe headache, stiff neck, muscle weakness, confusion and or sensitivity to light.

West Nile Virus, first identified in the United States in 1999, is a rare disease which can be serious and even fatal in a small percentage of the population.

Answer Awaited: Rooming House Or Two Separate Apartments?

Inspectional Services Director Walter White said a decision could be made as early as next week whether the 549-553 Washington St. property owned by former Mayor Joseph LaRaia should be defined as a rooming house or not.

White, who will return from vacation Aug. 29, said he was still waiting for reports on the property, which LaRaia defines as a two-family home containing two separate apartments and not requiring a rooming house license or a fire sprinkler system.

After making his decision, White said, he intended to discuss possible next steps with LaRaia, who has expressed an interest in selling the property after what he termed "harassment" on the part of some city officials.

"The whole process was illegal," said LaRaia, referring to an Aug. 17 inspection of the property by a variety of inspectors, including plumbing, electrical, and health inspectors as well as the Quincy Fire Department. "They should never have been down there in the first place without my approval."

Gutro Calls For Debates In Ward 5 Council Race

Douglas Gutro, candidate for Ward 5 city councillor, is issuing a challenge to the other candidates to debate the issues.

In a letter he said was mailed Saturday to incumbent Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin and candidate James Mullaney, Gutro asked them to urge the local media and local civic organizations to sponsor an opportunity to debate the issues before the Sept. 11 preliminary election.

"With more candidates running for elective office in Quincy than at any time in almost three decades, residents deserve a chance to learn about our differences," said Gutro. "Public debates enliven the spirit of our democracy and help voters make informed decisions about who they want representing them at City Hall."

"Ward 5 is in the center of our city and redistricting will require strong leadership on many local issues. I've knocked on 2,500 doors during the past six months and have had the opportunity to meet one-on-one with hundreds of voters and discuss all of the important issues. But with less than a month before the Sept. 11 preliminary election, voters deserve the opportunity to learn where each of us stand on important issues such as the need for improvements to roads and sidewalks, education, public safety, traffic and parking, development, the cleanup of Wollaston Beach as well as budgeting and taxes."

Gutro called upon civic organizations and the local news media, including The Quincy Sun, Patriot Ledger, WJDA, Quincy Access Television, and The Boston Globe South Weekly to sponsor public debates in races where a preliminary election will be held.

Durkin called Gutro's challenge "a stunt" and said, as of Tuesday, he had yet to receive Gutro's letter.

"We already have a debate set up," said Durkin, referring to a Sept. 6 Candidates Night at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School sponsored by the Ward 5 Community Association. "It's not the number of debates but the quality of debates."

"If a candidate wants to debate, the way to do it is to arrange for someone to sponsor it, not issue a press release."

Durkin added that if there were to be a debate scheduled, he would be willing to participate barring any scheduling conflicts.

Mullaney, like Gutro a challenger for the Ward 5 seat, said Tuesday he had also not received Gutro's letter.

Mullaney said he would be willing to debate the issues but, like Durkin, he added that scheduling the debates on such short notice could prove difficult because of candidates' prior commitments.

Ward 5 Association To Hold Candidates Night Sept. 6

The Ward 5 Community Association will sponsor a Candidates Night Thursday, Sept. 6 from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School, 225 Fenno St.

The program will be divided into three segments dealing with the contested elections for mayor, councillor at-large, and Ward 5 city councillor. The format will consist of each candidate being given time for an opening statement, followed by a question and answer session and ending with closing statements by each candidate.

A moderator -- not affiliated with the Ward 5 Association -- will oversee the program, enforce time limits for statements, and direct the flow of the program.

During the question and answer segment, the moderator will choose questions submitted in writing by audience members and ask a candidate to respond. Other candidates can ask permission from the moderator to respond to a question asked of another candidate and the moderator will have the discretion to allow or refuse to allow responses, taking into consideration the time constraints of the program.

The program will begin with the mayoral candidates from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.; the councillor at-large candidates from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.; and the Ward 5 candidates from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Christmas Float Building Seminar Set For Sept. 19

The annual How-To-Do-It float building seminar to assist amateur builders will be held Wednesday, Sept. 19 at 7 p.m. under the sponsorship of the Quincy Christmas Festival Committee.

The seminar is designed to benefit organizations planning to enter floats in the 49th annual Christmas parade in November. The program will be held at Quincy Access Television, 88 Washington St., Quincy Center. Participants may enter through the Washington Street parking lot entrance adjacent to the new Thomas Crane library addition.

Speakers representing both amateur and professional float builders will discuss building techniques that conform to the Festival Committee float building guidelines.

A video of parade float activities will be shown.

Paul Kennedy, committee float activity coordinator, will introduce parade judges for comments and suggestions. A general discussion will follow. Refreshments will be served. There is no charge for attending.

For more information contact Paul Kennedy at 9 Trevor St., or by calling 617-328-1059.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Aug. 24, 79 A.D., Mount Vesuvius erupts in southern Italy, devastating the prosperous Roman cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum and killing thousands. In the 18th century, Pompeii and Herculaneum were rediscovered and excavated, providing an unprecedented archaeological record of the everyday life of an ancient civilization.

• On Aug. 25, 1875, Matthew Webb, a 27-year-old merchant navy captain, becomes the first known person to successfully swim the English Channel. Webb accomplished the grueling 21-mile crossing in 21 hours and 45 minutes.

• On Aug. 21, 1920, Daphne Milne, wife of writer A.A. Milne, gives birth to a son, whom the couple name Christopher Robin Milne. The child received a stuffed bear as a present for his first birthday, which inspired Milne to begin writing a series of whimsical stories centered around Winnie-the-Pooh.

• On Aug. 26, 1920, the 19th Amendment, guaranteeing women the right to vote, is formally adopted into the U.S. Constitution by proclamation of Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby. The amendment was the culmination of more than 70 years of struggle by woman suffragists.

• On Aug. 23, 1926, silent-screen idol Rudolph Valentino dies at the age of 31, sending his fans into a hysterical state of mass mourning. Tens of thousands of people paid tribute at his open coffin in New York City.

• On Aug. 20, 1989, Lyle and Erik Menendez shoot their parents to death in the den of the family's Beverly Hills, Calif., home. The Menendez murders became a national sensation when the new television network, Court TV, broadcast the trial in 1993. In 1996, both Lyle and Erik were convicted and sentenced to life in prison.

Bellotti Off And Running

Michael Bellotti calls it getting ready. But the Norfolk County sheriff and Quincy Democrat appears to be already off and running for secretary of state.

Bellotti a few months ago acknowledged he was "seriously considering" a bid for the office if incumbent William Galvin decided to run for governor.

Now it looks like he has moved well beyond that stage to getting ready for the run and lining up support.

But whether he becomes an official candidate still hinges on what Galvin does. If Galvin goes for governor, Bellotti goes for secretary of state.

And the feeling is Galvin is going for governor.

Bellotti says he hasn't touched base with Galvin lately. But sources around Galvin believe he is moving closer to a run for governor.

Meanwhile, Bellotti isn't letting any grass grow under his feet.

"I'm looking for a headquarters in the Quincy Center area," he reveals.

He indicates it will be his major headquarters for at least six or seven months.

And he has his campaign manager and two other key committee figures already in camp.

Jack McCarthy of Norwood who knows his way around state political circles will manage the campaign.

McCarthy has been Bellotti's deputy chief of staff for the past five months in Dedham and was chief of staff in the secretary of state's office under both Galvin and before him, Michael Connolly.

McCarthy will be leaving his post in the sheriff's office in a couple of weeks to assume duties as Bellotti's campaign manager.

Quincy Atty. Tom Kiley will be campaign finance chairman. Kiley served as first assistant to Bellotti's father, Frank Bellotti, when he was attorney general.

Quincy accountant James Mullaney who was Bellotti's treasurer in his run for sheriff in 1998 will hold that position in the secretary of state campaign. Mullaney is a candidate himself this year as a contender for the Ward 5 city council seat.

Bellotti acknowledges he has been moving around lining up support.

He reveals he has 10 sheriffs in his corner, 60 state representatives including Quincy's Bruce Ayers, Ron Mariano and Steve Tobin, and Senator Michael Morrissey, if he is a candidate.

And he has been talking with labor officials for their support if he is the Democratic candidate for secretary of state.

Bellotti would bring a well-known, vote attracting name to the Democratic ticket next year.

His father was elected state-wide as both lieutenant governor and attorney general and almost made it to the governor's office.

Young Bellotti, before being elected sheriff of Norfolk County which comprises 28 communities with a population of 600,000, one-tenth of the state, served three terms as state representative.

Both Kiley and Bellotti's father are know-how veterans when it comes to building a war chest for a state-wide campaign.

A grass-roots fundraiser called a "Summer Sunset" is set for Tuesday, Aug. 28, 5:30 to 8 p.m., at The Gazebo at the Best Western Adams Inn, 29 Hancock St., North Quincy. Tickets are $35 per person, $50 per couple.

You might call it a starter-upper.

REAL ESTATE MARKET: Norfolk County Register of Deeds Paul Harold has this interesting footnote to the recent sale of the former Harvard Pilgrim headquarters at 1200 Crown Colony Drive.

The sale, he reports, resulted in one of the highest excise tax stamps in the county's history.

The excise tax, he notes, is $4.56 per $1,000 in value. This added up to the sellers paying $226,007.23 in deed stamps.

The annual tax bill for the property: $988,493.38.

IF YOU GET your Sun at the newsstand or from a carrier on Wednesdays, you still have to register for the Sept. 11 preliminary election.

Deadline is 8 p.m. tonight (Wednesday) at City Hall.

But if you don't get registered for the preliminary, you still have time to make it for the Nov. 6 final election, reminds City Clerk Joseph Shea.

You can register for that one at the City Hall Election Department during regular hours 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Last call will be 8 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 17.

YES, IT IS a small world as this note from Martha and Donald Robinson of Quincy attests:

"Captain Kirk MacDonald and his wife, Charity MacDonald of Clarksville, TN, formerly of Marshfield and Quincy are the proud parents of a baby boy born at Blanchfield Community Hospital at Fort Campbell, KY.

"While visiting our first great grandson in the hospital at Fort Campbell, we met a nurse who was a long way from home. She was Lt. Monique Williams, daughter of Tom Williams, a well-known Quincy attorney.

"Recently as we were returning from a trip to Finland, a young lady returning from a trip to Hungary offered to help us with our luggage. Surprise! It was Vicki Williams, another daughter of Tom Williams.

"We manage to meet the Williams family in the most interesting places."

Tom is mighty proud of his girls as is their mom, Patricia. And, for good reason, as you can see.

New Taxpayers' Association Being Organized Aug. 28

A meeting to form a new Quincy Taxpayers' Association will be held Tuesday, Aug. 28 at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Alan H. Cousin, former candidate for the City Council Ward 3 seat, scheduled the meeting.

"Quincy has lots of neighborhood and civic associations, but no taxpayers' association," Cousin says. "There is no one holding city government accountable to the people who pay the bills."

Cousin noted there used to be a Quincy Taxpayers' Association, which is now defunct.

The organizational meeting will be held in the meeting room of the library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

Those interested may also call Cousin at 617-770-4188.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1930 POSTCARD is a view of Wollaston Boulevard looking south at its intersection with Davis Street. The building on the right was home to restaurants, gift shops and a bathhouse. It later became home to Kent's Carpetland until it burned down and was demolished several years ago. The site is now known as Don Kent Park, in honor of the man whose first weather forecasts were broadcast over WJDA from a shack on the top of his family's business. This sandy section of Wollaston Beach was one of the most popular spots for bathers.

Sargent Nixes Funds For Fore River Bridge

By PAUL HAROLD

Governor Francis Sargent said he would take no action on legislation providing for an $11 million enlargement of the Fore River Bridge. He did say, however, that he'd take another look at it next year.

The widening of the span of the bridge from 75 feet to 300 feet was long sought by General Dynamics so they could bid on the new super tankers.

Mayor James McIntyre said he would call for a meeting of the shipyard unions and management with the governor to stress the impact the bridge widening would have on the economy of eastern Mass.

GROUND BROKEN FOR NEW SALVATION ARMY CENTER

Ground was broken for the new $600,000 Salvation Army Center at the corner of Elm and Baxter Sts.

The new building, designed at no cost by Edgar Wood and Associates, was expected to be completed in six months. It would replace the 64-year-old building at 150 Granite St. The Fruit Basket bought the old building with plans to demolish it to build a new retail shop.

SCOTTISH GAMES AT VETERANS STADIUM

Clan MacGregor's 80th annual Scottish picnic and Highland Games were held at Veterans' Memorial Stadium, with Mayor McIntyre as honorary chairman.

The event brought together sports and music competitors for the east coast and Canada, including the New York City Fire Department's Pipe Band.

One of the contests involved the tossing of the caber, a 17-foot long bar.

QUINCY-ISMS

Supports Mayor's Plans For New QHS, Central

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
The suggestion and logic to renovate Central Middle School and to use Coddington Hall (Quincy College) for Central's lab needs to be questioned.

These same proponents to renovate Quincy High School feel the new high school will be too small, yet they are willing to support renovating a smaller Central Middle School for 400 students, when the current enrollment is 649. This will force redistricting to the other four junior high schools, which are already overcrowded.

They also suggest having Quincy College vacate Coddington Hall, having the taxpayers left with the burden of renovating this building to house Central's lab program.

Central Middle School is 107 years old. It has been documented that it would cost $21 million dollars to make this building only minimally adequate. It has a two-acre parcel of land. Although surrounded by the lovely gardens and grounds of the historic Dorothy Quincy Estate, the children of Central don't utilize these grounds for athletic fields, or practice fields or for gym.

Many in the city are beginning to question if some people in the city are attempting to formulate their own building plan solely based on how it will affect the lab program at Central. The current plan set forth by Mayor Sheets' building needs task force takes into consideration all of the children, and will be the least disruptive to our children's education. The children will not be forced into double sessions, relocated or forced to attend classes in make shift buildings on a flooded Faxon Field. Coddington Hall will continue to offer affordable higher education accessible by public transportation for Quincy residents and others.

The time is now to build a new Quincy High and renovate the existing one for the new Central Middle School.

Are All Sidewalks Created Equal?

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Whatever happened to the 14th amendment? You know, the one about everyone being an equal of everyone else? I believe the city of Quincy should have one standard citywide when it comes to basic services but I'm beginning to think it ain't so.

Recently, I drove over to South Shore Plaza via Willard St. and I happened to notice all the new sidewalk work the city of Quincy recently had completed through a city contractor. How could one miss it? One long line of blacktop.

During the last school year, another contract job along Hollis Ave. across from the Atlantic Middle School was done. Here again, the sidewalks were blacktopped.

However, the other day while driving through Wollaston near Eastern Nazarene College, I noticed the street and sidewalk work along East Elm St. Here the sidewalks look like real sidewalks concrete and all.

Why do some wards get concrete while others get blacktop? Are some wards more equal to others? Why don't we have one standard for sidewalk work. Either we all get blacktop or we all get concrete but the city of Quincy shouldn't be mixing concrete with blacktop.

Personally, most citizens would prefer concrete. It has longer lasting power. It also looks better. Which in a roundabout way leads me to thinking how good would blacktop have looked for sidewalks along a well-known private college, eh? Say, over in Ward 5. Meanwhile, blacktop seems okay for Atlantic Middle or the Shea Rink, I guess?

I think in comparing East Elm St. with Hollis Ave. or Willard St., methinks East Elm looks like the New York Yankees while Hollis and Willard could easily be the Red Sox or Oakland A's looking for a wild card.

What I saw made me both angry and frustrated. You can bet when Quincy Center needs new sidewalks, they'll be pouring concrete again. Some sidewalks are obviously more equal than others.

Parent To Parent Program 48 Volunteer Knitters Honored At River Bay Luncheon

The River Bay Club on Brackett St. recently hosted a luncheon honoring 48 volunteer knitters of the Parent to Parent Program of the city of Quincy's Commission on the Family.

On hand for the ceremony was Mayor James Sheets, who thanked the volunteer knitters and presented each one with a certificate of recognition.

Receiving awards were: Harriet Fitzgerald, Flora Kingsbury, Antoinette LaFleur, Rose Veneto, Sooky Malamut, Lillian Sicchio, Marion Gray, Catherine Recupero, Esther Myers, Ruth Witty, Phyllis Warner, Fran O'Connell, Sandy Buckley, Mary O'Brien, Mary Santoro, Kay McKenna, Charlotte Brenner, Lillian Murphy.

Bea Seastrom, Janet Hickey, Sister Peggy Lowell, Roberta Driscoll, Norma Kelly, Lorraine Gallagher, Rosemary Rhinehart, Virginia Wigmore, Isabella Barra, Lucy Loud, Josephine Patternaude, Anna Trzcinski, Ann Kelliher, Kathleen Carrol, Helen Lenane, Gertrude Enos, Kay Karrolls.

Bunny Dennis, Judy Goldrick, Berty Batson, Jeanette Duffy, Loretta Bolter, Mary Donlon, Marion Batas, Peg O'Connor, Norma Powers, Sybil White, Margaret Shige, Bruno Stratco, Ruth Tuffy,

ROSE VENETO, a volunteer knitter for the Family to Family program, was one of 48 such volunteers to receive a certificate of recognition from Mayor James Sheets at a recent luncheon held at the River Bay Club.

Mildred Ambrosia, Louise Darcy, Doris Beale, Marie Constantino, and Helen Sheehan.

Also in attendance were: Linda Stice, executive director of the Commission on the Family; Richard Meade, director of Planning and Community Development; Kelly Scheaf of the Planning Department.

Michelle Campbell, program coordinator of the Quincy Community Action Programs Family Network; Kevin Coughlin, co-chairman of the Commission on the Family's Family Council; Mary Phelan of the mayor's office; Marti O'Keefe McKenna and Heather Chauncey of the Parent to Parent Program; and Geri Dussault of the River Bay Club as well as several mothers and their babies.

The luncheon is held annually to thank the women for the time and effort they give to the program.

The Parent to Parent Program is a home visiting program which offers visits to any family in Quincy with a newborn ages 0 to six months. A volunteer home visitor brings each family who has requested a visit a gift basket containing a variety of useful baby products and the award-winning early childhood book Goodnight Moon.

In addition, each basket is lined with a baby blanket, hand made by a senior citizen, providing a multigenerational link between the families receiving the basket and the senior women in the community.

The families are also brought a "Parenting Bag" filled with parenting information including The "Pink and Blue" Pages, a resource guide for new parents, and a Parents Page informing families of programs available in the community for families with children ages 0 to three.

The Parent to Parent

FLORA KINGSBURY (left), a volunteer knitter with the Parent to Parent Program, and Heather Chauncey of the Parent to Parent Program spend some time with newborn Jocelyne Zuckerman at a recent luncheon held at River Bay Club to honor the volunteer knitters. The Commission on the Family program has than 40 volunteer seniors who knit baby blankets which are placed in gift baskets for newborn parents.

Program is funded jointly by the Department of Education Family Network Grant through Quincy Community Action Programs acting as lead agency and by the Community Development Block Grant.

The Commission on the Family also offers a six-week course called "My Baby and Me" for parents of newborns; a single mothers support group; and "Walks in the Park," a weekly summer get-together for parents and babies.

Any family with an infant six months or younger that is interested in receiving a visit should contact Marti or Heather at the Parent to Parent Program at (617) 689-8352.

Individuals looking for volunteering opportunities as home visitors or knitters can also the number.
